GUN DUELS NORTH OF LYS

CANADIANS GO OVER THE TOP

BACK AREAS ARE UNDER FIRE

Both Artilleries Pound Enemy Communications—Rain Impedes German Preparations.

LONDON, May 7.—"Our own and the enemy's artillery have been very active north of the Lys and have shown some activity on other parts of the battlefronts," says Field Marshal Haig's report from British Headquarters in France tonight. "There is nothing further to report."

The British made a successful raid last night near Neuville-Vitasse, southwest of Arras, capturing three machine guns and a few prisoners, and suffering only slight casualties, according to the day official report, which says:

> We carried out a successful raid last night in the neighborhood of Neuville-Vitasse (on the front recently taken over by the Canadians), and captured a few prisoners and three machine-guns, with slight casualties to our troops. A raid attempted by the enemy near Boyelles was repulsed. There is nothing further to report.

The British official communication dealing with aviation issued tonight says:

> Rain prevented flying Monday until 5 o'clock in the afternoon. After this some fighting occurred, in which six hostile machines were downed. One of our machines is missing.

Terrific Two-Hour Bombardment.

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, May 7 (via Ottawa).—There was a terrific bombardment of two hours' duration last night in connection with two raids. One was carried out by the enemy, and was unsuccessful. The other was by the Canadians, near Neuville-Vitasse, southwest of Arras. The Canadian raiders reported that many Germans were killed or wounded in hand-to-hand fighting, and that great destruction was wrought in the enemy's defense works.

Heavy rains are rendering the ground very bad for fighting. Undoubtedly the enemy is preparing for another violent blow, but the British are ready to meet it.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, May 7, (Associated Press.)—The artillerymen yesterday and last night continued to carry the weight of the conflict on their shoulders and had a busy time of it at numerous points along the battlefront.

There was no infantry action in this period, but from the furious gun duel waged south of Arras during the early part of the night one might easily have drawn the conclusion that a grand attack was in progress. It developed nothing bigger than raids, but the quick response of "heavies" along the line showed the tension that existed.

In the course of the evening the German essayed a raid near Boyelles, and about the same time the British, a few thousand yards northward, at Neuville-Vitasse, undertook an expedition into the enemy's lines. The first move sent colored flares whirling across the sky in an appeal for an artillery barrage. Within a few seconds the big guns of both sides all along this part of the front were pounding away like mad, and for several hours the duel continued with drumfire-like intensity.

Yesterday and last night the Germans kept up a considerable bombardment of the back areas in Flanders with high-velocity guns. The Allies, on the other hand, were busy hammering the enemy's roads and concentration points.

It rained again last night and this morning, making the Flanders battleground still more difficult for the enemy to work over in carrying out preparations for a further attack.

Capt. J. N. Hall, Noted American Airman, Lost After Thrilling Fight with the "Flying Circus"

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 7, (Associated Press.)—Flight Captain James Norman Hall, author and one of the best-known aviators in the American or allied armies, is missing, after a thrilling battle ten miles inside Germany opposite the Toul sector.

The fight was between three American planes and four German machines, which apparently belonged to the "flying circus."

Two German machines went to earth in the battle in a crippled condition.

Captain Hall's home is in Colfax, Iowa.

German machines were out in force, apparently hunting for the Americans, all day despite the bad weather. The Amercians answered alarms throughout the day just as the Boche hoped they would. Once a Lieutenant answered an alarm for one enemy machine which was reported to be flying low. When he approached the enemy, five additional German machines dropped down from the clouds and attacked the American plane, which was driven by Lieutenant Cunningham, who put up a desperate fight till his machine gun jammed and he was forced to withdraw. The Germans did not follow him. Cunningham returned with ten bullet holes in his plane.

James Norman Hall joined the British Army in London in August, 1914. After a year and a half in the service he obtained his discharge and returned to the United States on private business. As soon as possible he returned to France and there enlisted in the Lafayette Escadrille. It was shortly after this that his book, "Kitchener's Mob," was published.

Hall was transferred to the American Army from the Lafayette Escadrille on Feb. 8, 1918, and on March 2 he brought down two German airplanes in a fight lasting but seven minutes. On March 13 he received the Distinguished Service Cross of the United States Army, and the same day he destroyed a German airplane and forced two others to land.

HARDEN IN DEFENSE OF LICHNOWSKY

RIDICULES COUNT CZERNIN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, May 7.—It is perhaps a sign of the times that Maxmilian Harden's Zukunft is now printed in Roman type for the first time. In the current issue Harden treats of Czernin and Lichnowsky, exposing the former's insincerity, and defending the latter. He also publishes President Wilson's Baltimore speech, but with little comment.

"Wilson's speech, made in Baltimore April 6 expresses the same thoughts," he says, "although somewhat more forcibly stated, as his former speeches."

Die Zukunft has an article on Czernin's fall entitled "Tiger and Spider." "Did you ever see a cat spring at a fly?" Harden asks. "He licks his fur; the pupils of his eyes dilate; he shakes himself and springs. * * * Woe to him if he jumps on a nail, as some old short sighted cats do."

The writer proceeds to describe Clemenceau as the tiger and Czernin as the spider that spun its web and was caught in it. He remarks, however, that Germans may be glad of this. He says that there is something insincere and disappointing in Czernin, on whom all the people who still believed in humanity had pinned their hopes, "even though he made speeches in Vienna and Budapast last Summer which Wilson might have made. Democracy, self-determination, neither annexation nor indemnities, disarmament, a court of arbitration—everything which the beating heart of humanity desires. A little ambiguity, the attempt to mirror the spinning of fine threads between Vienna and Washington, made us hesitate even then. But the master of the White House smilingly ironed out the creases, and with him all persons of good will applauded the rosy passages in the speeches."

But, Harden continues, after the turn of the tide, after the advent of Lenine and the disarming of the Russian Army and the destruction of the Russian military spirit, Czernin went to Brest-Litovsk. "Those who took part in the forced 'peace' have, in my judgment and that of politicians known to me, been excommunicated from the sphere in which statesmen are allowed to breathe."

The Zukunft writer notes the rumors that Czernin knew of two royal indiscretions preserved at the Elyée Palace which might one day cause inconvenience to the Crown and the Empire, and so tried to lure the French out of their secrecy, using the moment of the German western offensive to insure Austria against fire. Harden professes not to credit this theory, but rather believes that the Minister wished to retire gracefully. He recalls how Czernin spoke to a delegation from the Vienna Municipal Council on April 2, saying: "All men on deck! Then we shall be victorious."

The same issue of Die Zukunft contains a long defense of Lichnowsky, remarking upon the injustice of the prosecution of that statesman and asking in what way he has harmed the Prussian Diet.

"I will swear," says Harden, "that there are dozens of men sitting there in these dark war hours who have written and said similar things in sharper and more bitter words," and he asks if they would meet the same fate if their papers were stolen and exposed in German's shop windows. "Many a trusted wife," he says, "must cry out in fear: 'But, you know, Ernst, Adolf, and Klaus have spoken more desperately.'"

The chief theme of Lichnowsky's memorandum, the editor of Die Zukunft asserts, was the danger to Germany

VIENNA MANIFESTO THREATENS RISING

REPRESSION ANGERS SLAVS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 7.—A dispatch to The Daily Mail from Vevey, Switzerland, says that a Vienna Telegram to the Geneva papers states that the Vienna Sozial Demokratische Correspondenz contains the following threat:

"A committee of the Socialist Party and a committee of the German Socialist Deputies' Club have decided to publish a manifesto informing the workers that parliament has been adjourned owing to the inability of the Government to control the Assembly for fear of discussion of the Emperor's letter to Prince Sixtus and the motives for Count Czernin's resignation. If absolutism be re-established, the manifesto says, out of regard for Pan-Germanism, which is prolonging the war, if it be intended that Austria shall again be governed after the manner of Count Stuerghk the working classes will be forced to fight for their rights."

The manifesto ends with an exhortation to the workers to hold themselves ready to fight if that becomes necessary.

A dispatch to The Daily Mail from Berne says that the Vienna Arbeiter Zeitung laughs to scorn as childish and criminal the idea of the Austrian Government that it can soothe the passions of the mob and solve the crisis by the simple expedient of proroguing parliament until the storm has blown over. The journal appeals to the Government to see its error ere it is too late and warns Premier von Seidler and those behind him that he is on the brink of a precipice.

Vienna Threats Infuriate Slavs.

LONDON, May 7.—The latest developments in the Austrian situation apparently can be summarized as "concession to the Germans and threats to the southern Slavs, says a dispatch from The Hague to The Daily Mail.

"At least," continues the correspondent, "that is how the Czechs and the southern Slavs regard the decision of Premier von Seidler to introduce for Bohemia alone the rearrangement of the provincial administration which was promised nearly a year ago for all Austria.

"The Austrian Germans are pressing for a number of administrative changes which would give them influence over the machinery of the Government greatly in excess of their numerical proportion. The Czechs consider that the concession to the Germans is an obstacle put in the way of the realization of their own demand for the political independence of Bohemia, one and undivided.

"Von Seidler's announcement has infuriated the Czechs. The southern Slavs are furious over the proclamation that stern measures will be taken to repress disturbances in the south. The German reactionary press is urging the Government to quash the rebellious tendencies of the Czechs and the southern Slavs by force and to use the military to commandeer foodstuffs in the agricultural districts, pointing out that the Ukraine developments have shown that force alone overcomes obstacles when normal

Nicaragua Declares War on Germany and Her Allies

SAN JUAN DEL SUR, Nicaragua, May 7.—Nicaragua today declared war on Germany and her allies. The declaration of war was adopted by Congress at the suggestion of President Chamorro, with only four dissenting votes.

Congress also adopted a declaration of solidarity with the United States and the other American republics at war with Germany and Austria, and authorized the President to take steps for utilization to a full measure of the nation's forces in the war.

Nicaragua's action follows that of its neighbor, Guatemala, which last month declared war on Germany. Nicaragua severed relations with Germany a year ago.

Nicaragua is the twentieth nation which has declared war against Germany.

AIRCRAFT INQUIRY BY THE SENATE; NONE BY HOUSE

HOUSE DISCOVERS NO GRAFT

PRODUCTION SPEEDING UP

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The country seems to be in a fair way to learn the facts concerning the breakdown in the military aircraft production program. On the heels of the action taken by President Wilson yesterday in ordering the Attorney General to investigate charges of inefficiency and crookedness, with a view to criminal proceedings, if justified, the Senate Committee on Military Affairs decided today to conduct an investigation of its own. In announcing that decision to the Senate, Mr. Chamberlain, Chairman of the committee, gave notice that there would be no immunity baths, and that the committee "doesn't propose to indulge in any whitewashing, either."

This revival of effort to ascertain why the aircraft program is a failure is due in the main to the action of President Wilson in directing the Attorney General to make a judicial investigation. The President's course was based on charges made by Gutzon Borglum, the sculptor, who conducted an inquiry into aircraft production with the President's sanction, and on the report submitted recently by a special investigating committee of lawyers appointed by the President, with H. Snowden Marshall of New York at its head.

Neither the Broglum nor the Marshall report has been made public. Mild criticism of this suppression was voiced in the Senate today. Letters that passed between the President and Senator Thomas of Colorado and the President and Mr. Borglum, some of them given to the press by the White House, and others furnished by Mr. Borglum, showed that the sculptor-investigator charged that his inquiry had developed that profiteering, graft, inefficiency, and pro-German hampering had been responsible for the aircraft failure.

Disbelieve Graft Charges.

While the Senate was debating the aircraft situation the House Committee on Military Affairs was engaged this afternoon in examining officials having to do with carrying out the plans that have gone awry. As a result of these examinations members of the committee expressed themselves as satisfied that the charges of graft and inefficiency made by Mr. Borglum were untrue. This opinion was not confined to Democratic members of the committee, but was freely given by Republican members, including severe critics of the Administration in its conduct of the war.

The House committee will not hold an investigation. After they had heard the aircraft officials, members said that while there had been delay, due to a variety of causes, they were satisfied that no criminality existed, and that the production program was at present in a satisfactory state. Statements of this character were made by both Republican and Democratic members of the House committee, while the opposite or critical view taken at the other end of the Capitol was shared by Senators of both political parties.

LONDON, May 7.—One explanation offered in circles well acquainted with the practical workings of British parliamentary institutions of how the Premier and Mr. Bonar Law came to make the statements questioned by General Maurice is that their statements were the mere slips of busy men discussing details of transactions concerning which they were compelled to trust subordinates for information.

It is stated that Maurice is the last man to fail to appreciate the effect, both national and personal, of his remarkable letter. He is not only a distinguished soldier, one of the best brains in the British Army, but also a highly cultivated writer, and noted for his keen, analytical mind. Bred up, moreover, in all the traditions of the British Army, he could never have broken with its custom of reticence on professional matters unless he were convinced that it was absolutely necessary.

He feared, it is suggested, that the army was growing indignant at what it considered was the attitude of the civil officials. It knows that it is facing the hardest task ever set to a British Army, and is performing it without regard to the cost to itself. It remembers certain passages in Lloyd George's Paris speech in which its efforts of last year were disparaged, and it is indignant that there should be any misconception of the conditions under which it is facing the present tremendous German offensive.

The friends of the Government are quite sure that the Ministers never intended to mislead the nation. Their surmise is that Bonar Law, knowing he was to be questioned about the extension of the British line, applied in the ordinary course for information from the War Office, and that the official who supplied it blundered. Consequently, the leader of the House of Commons, it is urged, is now pilloried for the mistake of his subordinate.

As for the statements of the Premier, it is pointed out that they were made in the course of a long speech introducing the Man Power bill, which, it is safe to assume, was not entirely of his own composition. It was noted at the time that he read from voluminous notes with which he had only partly familiarized himself, and it is urged that to hold him personally responsible for every word in the technical part of his address would be to require of him an accuracy of detail impossible in a man of his immense responsibilities. Moreover, even his best friends have never accused Lloyd George of pedantic exactness of mind.

Serious Menace to Cabinet.

Meanwhile, Maurice's letter has inevitably roused excited speculation as to its effect on the Government, and many believe that it will assuredly cause its fall. Coming as it does just as the Irish question is once more springing into prominence, it is doubly dangerous.

Many believe that there is no real majority for Irish conscription in the Commons, and that if the desire to keep the Government in were removed they might be defeated over that. Then, of course, they could appeal to the country if they wished, and would probably find that their Irish policy was far more popular in the constituencies than in the House itself.

They would have, therefore, a chance of remaining in power, but the old objections to general elections on a register nearly five years old remain in full force. The new register,

Text of Maurice's Charges Against Cabinet Officers, Withheld From America 24 Hours by Censorship

The following dispatch to THE NEW YORK TIMES, *containing the text of General Maurice's letter accusing Lloyd George and Bonar Law, was filed in London at 9:10 o'clock Monday night, but transmission to America was denied by the censorship for nearly twenty-four hours, although the letter was published by four newspapers in London Tuesday morning. LONDON, Monday, May 6, (9:10 P. M.)—Major Gen. Sir Frederick Barton Maurice, who was Director of British Military Operations from 1915 until recently, when Brig. Gen. Delma-Radcliffe succeeded him, has addressed a letter to The Daily Chronicle which is bound to create an extreme sensation. General Maurice challenges the accuracy of certain statements made in the House of Commons with regard to the military situation by both Premier Lloyd George and Andrew Bonar Law, and demands a Parliamentary investigation.

To the Editor of The Daily Chronicle:

My attention has been called to answers given in the House of Commons on April 23 by Mr. Bonar Law to questions put by R. C. Lambert, Colonel C. R. Burn, and W. M. R. Pringle as to the extension of the British front in France. Those answers contain certain misstatements which, in sum, give a totally misleading impression of what occurred. This is not the place to enter into a discussion as to all the facts, but Hansard's report concludes:

"Mr. Pringle—Was this matter entered into at the Versailles War Council at any time?

"Mr. Bonar Law—That particular question was not dealt with at all by the Versailles War Council."

I was at Versailles when the question was decided by the Supreme War Council, to whom it had been referred.

This is the latest of a series of misstatements which have been made recently in the House of Commons by the present Government. On April 9 the Prime Minister said:

"What was the position at the beginning of the battle? Notwithstanding the heavy casualties in 1917, the army in France was considerably stronger on Jan. 1, 1918, than on Jan. 1, 1917. (Hansard, Vol. 104, No. 24, P. 1328.)"

That statement implies that Sir Douglas Haig's fighting strength on the eve of the great battle which began March 21 had not been diminished. This is not correct. Again in the same speech the Prime Minister said:

"In Mesopotamia there is only one white division at all, and in Egypt and Palestine there are only three white divisions. The rest are either Indians or mixed with a very small proportion of British troops in these divisions. I am referring to infantry divisions, Ibid P. 1,327."

This is not correct.

Now, Sir, this letter is not the result of a military conspiracy. It has been seen by no soldier. I am by descent and conviction as sincere a democrat as the Prime Minister, and the last thing I desire is to see the Government of our country in the hands of soldiers.

My reasons for taking the very grave step of writing this letter are that the statements quoted above are known to a large number of soldiers to be incorrect, and this knowledge is breeding such a distrust of the Government as can only end in impairing the splendid morale of our troops at a time when everything possible should be done to raise it. I have therefore decided, fully realizing the consequences to myself, that my duty as a citizen must override my duty as a soldier, and I ask you to publish this letter in the hope that Parliament may see fit to order an investigation into the statements I have made. I am, Sir, yours, faithfully,

F. B. MAURICE, Major General.

Asquith Moves for Commons Inquiry; Fight on Issue to Come Tomorrow

Ex-Premier Blocks Cabinet's Program for Two Judges to Act as a "Court of Honor" on Maurice Charges—Disciplinary Action Against General Not to Wait.

LONDON, May 7.—Andrew Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, who is spokesman for the War Cabinet in the House of Commons, since the Premier's duties in managing the war do not give him time for constant attendance in Parliament, told the House this afternoon that the Cabinet had decided to intrust to a commission of two Judges the investigation of the charges made by General Maurice.

Ex-Premier Asquith, who is always a supporter of Parliamentary traditions, led the faction in the House which insisted that the investigation be made by a Parliamentary Committee.

Mr. Bonar Law said that the Army Council was dealing with questions of discipline growing out of the letter written by General Maurice.

"General Maurice's letter," said Mr. Bonar Law, "raised two questions—the question of military discipline involved in writing such a letter, and the question of the veracity of Ministerial statements.

"As regards the first question, that is being dealt with by the Army Council in the ordinary way. As regards the second question, though it must be obvious to the House that the Government could not be carried on if an inquiry into the conduct of Ministers should be considered necessary whenever their action was challenged by a servant of the Government who has occupied a position of the highest confidence, it affects the honor of the Ministers, and it is proposed to invite two Judges to act as a Court of Honor to inquire into the charge of misstatements alleged to have been made by the Ministers, and to report as quickly as possible."

Mr. Bonar Law's statement gave rise to a lively series of questions, in reply to which the Chancellor said that, as secret documents would have to be gone into, it would be unsuitable to appoint a select committee from the House of Commons, but, he added, a day would be given for discussion after the Judges had reported. The disciplinary proceedings against General Maurice would not be suspended pending the finding of the court of inquiry.

"The Government have considered the best method of doing what they deem necessary to satisfy the House that we have not made misleading statements, and in our opinion that can best be done by the court suggested," said the Chancellor.

He thought that every one involved would be glad to place his information at the disposal of the Judges, and if the Judges were not given everything they wanted they would certainly let the Government know.

Admiral Sir Hedworth Meux said that the answer given by Mr. Bonar Law would be received with the greatest dissatisfaction in the army and navy.

"They are sick to death," he said, "with the way things are going on in the House of Commons."

Replying to further questions by Sir Edward Carson, Mr. Bonar Law said that the judges would decide whether the members and former members of the Cabinet should be called as witnesses and allowed to state what had transpired in the Cabinet. There should not be any feeling in the House that there was any desire to burke the examination of this question, and he was willing to allow Mr. Asquith to select two judges as proof of that.

Repeating that the disciplinary proceedings against General Maurice would not be suspended pending the inquiry, the Chancellor said:

"Even if every statement were true, discipline in the army would be impossible if such letters were permitted to be published."

Mr. Asquith said:

"This is a matter which we ought to have the opportunity of discussing in some form of a motion, and will the Government give us a day for that purpose?"

Mr. Bonar Law replied:

"Certainly, if you desire it. Am I to understand that the right honorable Member desires that we should not set up our court until the discussion takes place?"

"Certainly," said Mr. Asquith.

Mr. Asquith then gave notice that he would move for the apointment of a committee from the House to investigate the affair, instead of having the inquiry made by judges. The motion will be debated on Thursday.

General Maurice has strong support from the part of the army behind him, how strong remains to be seen. Critics of the Premier have accused him of trying to shoulder upon the army what they allege to have been his mistakes, and a newspaper controversy has been going on since the beginning of the German offensive, which may be described as the army against the politicians, the gist of which has been that the War Cabinet has overriden its military advisers in matters of strategy, and especially in regard to the military demands for men on the western front. This quarrel has come to a crisis, which is now likely to be settled and the air cleared.

General Maurice is one of the foremost military authorities and military historians of the war. After giving out the famous "Where is Blücher?" interview, he was relieved of his position as Director of Military Operations at the War Office, and it was understood that he was then being transferred to an important position in France. No notice of another assignment has been issued, however, and apparently none was made.

The debate on Thursday will hinge upon a motion by Mr. Asquith worded, "that a select committee of this house be appointed to inquire into the allegations or incorrectness in certain statements of Ministers of the Crown to this house contained in a letter of Major Gen. Maurice, late Director of Military Operations, published in the press of May 7."

OPPOSITION READY TO ACT

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, May 8.—General Maurice's letter charging misstatements by Premier Lloyd George and Andrew Bonar Law regarding the army has raised in Parliament as serious an issue as any that has confronted the British people, speaking from a domestic point of view, since the war began. His direct challenge of the accuracy of Ministerial statements is regarded as a most serious indictment of the Government.

"Mr. Asquith will move a resolution which if carried will be a vote of censure on the Government. A division is absolutely certain. Your attendance is most specially requested."

The Daily Chronicle and Morning Post Parliamentary correspondents, writing in Wednesday morning's issues, both understand that the Government proposes to regard Mr. Asquith's motion for the appointment of a select committee of the House of Commons to inquire into General Maurice's allegations as a vote of censure. The decision on Thursday evening will, therefore, be of critical importance. A hostile majority would mean the downfall of the Government.

The Chronicle correspondent says that Thursday's division would be more menacing if the Irish Nationalist members were in attendance. There is no certainty that they will cross from Dublin to take part in it.

The Morning Post correspondent says that in the present critical stage of the war, a majority of the House would hesitate very much before taking a drastic step which would involve the resignation of the Government.

Asquith Ready to Take Office.

The Daily Telegraph says editorially:

"The opposition, led by Mr. Asquith, regards the time as ripe and is prepared to accept the responsibility of office. It is for the House to choose. An alternative Government exists. It would be a Government exclusively radical in its composition. Of that there is no doubt."

The Daily Telegraph's Parliamentary correspondent says this morning:

"The situation is regarded as one of the utmost gravity, as the Government have made it known that they will consider the adoption of Mr. Asquith's resolution as a vote of no confidence, and will as a matter of course promptly tender their resignation."

The same correspondent understands that the Premier in tomorrow's debate will make a full statement regarding the issues raised, and says:

"He will probably find it necessary to give certain facts and figures which, from a military point of view, it might be better not to discuss. These have been supplied to him as the head of the War Cabinet by responsible officials of the Army Council. The House may expect to have placed before it figures comparing our forces on the western front at the beginning of 1917 and the beginning of 1918, with a review of the relative strengths of the British and German armies at the commencement of the enemy's present offensive. Mr. Bonar Law may also make an explanation on his own behalf."

The Daily News lobby correspondent says this (Wednesday) morning:

have a complete answer to General Maurice. The Cabinet have also decided to abandon their offer of a tribunal of two judges to investigate the charges on the rather curious ground that Mr. Asquith preferred a select committee to a legal tribunal. There is now to be no inquiry. The Government say that the House of Commons tomorrow shall be the tribunal to decide on the question of the honor of the members of the Cabinet involved, and that the issue shall be taken at once."

The Daily News says of the program this morning:

"That course will have one high virtue. It means an instant verdict, and that is supremely desirable. This dark cloud must not hang over the nation at this time an hour longer than can be helped. It is not the morale of the army alone which is involved. The morale of the nation is equally at stake. The course of the Government for months past has created in the mind of the public a condition of disquiet and distrust which is a menace to the country. Incredulity, suspicion, and all the miasma of doubt and disbelief are the breath of our nostrils."

Cabinet Summons Supporters.

The Times Parliamentary correspondent this morning says:

"Mr. Asquith's motion will be resisted by the Government with all the strength at their command. The Ministry last night sent telegrams to all their supporters except those on active service, urgently summoning them to attend tomorrow's sitting. It is understood that the Prime Minister will be in his place prepared to make a full reply in open session to the specific points raised by General Maurice.

The Times says editorially:

"No Government can afford to ignore or merely to rebut such a challenge as is contained in General Maurice's letter. Unless and until it is impartially investigated and disproved it must profoundly shake public confidence in every statement made from the Treasury Bench."

The Daily Express lobby correspondent says:

"The Asquith Liberals told me frankly last night [Tuesday] that if the Government do not meet them and grant them a select committee they will go into the division lobby against the Ministry."

War Office Cited as Authority.

The Daily Mail's political correspondent says:

"It is understood that the information in Bonar Law's statement to which General Maurice takes exception was supplied direct from the War Office, and the figures given by Lloyd George in his two statements were furnished by the highest military authorities. The suggesttion of willful misrepresentation is considered by his supporters to be ridiculous. A section of the House, however, is determined to shake the confidence of the public in the Government, and they make no secret of their hope 'to turn Lloyd George out of Downing Street.' To judge by their language, one would imagine that the defeat of his Ministry would mean more to them than the defeat of the enemy.

"The supporters of the Government are not disturbed on a simple matter of fact. It ought to be easy to prove who has spoken the truth, and a select committee, which might continue its deliberations for weeks, seems a cumbersome tribunal to decide a point of honor, which an impartial Judge could settle in five minutes. If military secrets are to be disclosed, it is probable that the House will go into secret session."

The Chronicle's parliamentary correspondent writes this morning:

"The House of Commons, always jealous of its own rights, did not jump to Bonar Law's suggestion that the allegations contained in Maurice's letter should be inquired into by a court of two judges. In order to constitute such a court, legislation would be necessary, and the terms of the reference to it would have to be settled by the House, but the objection of the members is not to the time that would be occupied by these preliminaries. It is the traditional objection to the calling in of any external tribunal to pronounce on matters affecting the House of Commons.

"Last evening Mr. Asquith handed in a notice of a motion that a select committee of the House be appointed to inquire into Maurice's allegations. The motion will be discussed on Thursday. I understand the Government will oppose it and treat the matter as one of confidence. In short, they propose to regard Mr. Asquith's motion as a vote of censure. That being so, a division on Thursday evening will be one of critical importance. A hostile majority would mean the downfall of the Government.

"In Ministerial circles the situation is viewed with serene composure. I am informed the Government are confident of their ability to substantiate the accuracy of the statements that have been impugned. As to the statement about the fighting strength at Haig's disposal on March 21 it may well be that Maurice excluded certain factors that were included in the estimate made by the Prime Minister. Otherwise the variance is inexplicable. It is incredible that Lloyd George in a carefully prepared speech such as that of April 9 would make a misstatement on a vital matter that must have been for days previously engaging the attention of the War Cabinet. General Maurice and other officers of high rank were present at Cabinet councils where the facts and figures in regard to the strength of the British Army in France and Flanders were discussed."

CABINET'S DEFENSE AGAINST MAURICE

with the addition of millions of women and new voters, is not likely to be ready before November, and there will undoubtedly be a great effort made to prevent a political upheaval until that time.

Talk of Milner and Asquith.

This implies the possibility of a stop-gap Government to carry over, and one very interesting suggestion is a Milner-Asquith combination. Lord Milner has gathered considerable strength since he became a member of the War Cabinet, and this appointment as War Secretary was generally approved.

Strangely enough, considering that it has been considered correct to criticise him on the ground of his arbitrary methods, he has won great favor among the younger labor leaders. They regard him as a straightforward, able man who cares nothing for old politics and parties and is only out to win the war, but he is no parliamentarian, and a British Prime Minister must be a ready speaker and debater. It is, therefore, suggested that he might lead the Government from the peaceful atmosphere of the Lords, while Asquith, with his rare personal popularity, would lead the Commons.

Of course, there would be an outcry against Asquith's return to the Ministry from certain sections of the community, and, indeed, it is unlikely that he could again be Prime Minister during the war, but those who favor his inclusion in a possible Milner Cabinet hold that as the leader of the House of Commons his great powers of conciliation would be again turned to the service of the country, while Milner would, in himself, be quite strong enough to give sufficient decision and sternness to the policy of the Government. The foregoing is an outline of general unofficial comment in circles which have Parliamentary, departmental, and other official relations.

Papers Call It a Bombshell.

General Maurice's letter is generally described as a bombshell. Both the radical Star and Lord Northcliffe's Evening News use that term. The latter paper at first followed the example of The Daily Mail in not publishing the letter, but gave it in full in later editions, together with the editorial in The Daily Chronicle, which The News said "has consistently supported the policy of the Government."

The Westminster Gazette, in an editorial written before Bonar Law's announcement in the House of Commons of the judicial inquiry plan, spoke of Maurice having "taken a strong step which can only be justified by extreme public necessity," and added:

"Whatever allowance may be made for the necessary vagueness of official statements respecting the strength of the army in time of war, no Government could allow its veracity to be impugned by a soldier in Maurice's position and pass it by in silence. The statements challenged have an intimate bearing on the relations of the Government with the army. Their cumulative effect was to suggest that the army in undiminished numbers had suffered a reverse for which the Government was blameless and the army alone responsible.

"In his message from the front on Sunday Mr. Lloyd George gave us to understand that the Generals were greatly surprised to hear of discussions going on at home on the assumption that they had been defeated, and that the only question of importance was as to who was to blame. If that idea has got abroad among them, an explanation may at least partly be found in the statements which General Maurice declares to be not correct."

Maurice Letter "Grave Precedent."

The Evening Standard, which is a governmental supporter, feels it to be its duty to point out that a very grave precedent has been created by the letter, adding:

"Clearly, if every distinguished soldier who does not see eye to eye with the Cabinet on questions of policy or fact is to act as a kind of public prosecutor, a fatal blow will have been delivered at the system of Ministerial responsibility to which we are accustomed in this country. The position of a Minister whose conduct is subject to Parliamentary inquiry held on the demand of a subordinate is scarcely possible. He cannot act with authority when that authority is ipso facto impugned. If General Maurice is held to be justified in this case, no Government's existence can be guaranteed against similar attacks, and it is easy to understand that all such attacks might not be with the transparent honesty which characterizes the General's letter."

In its news columns the same paper prints a paragraph saying:

"Public opinion already strongly deprecates highly placed officers until recently holding important posts rushing into print and raising controversies as to the respective degrees of responsibility of Ministers and soldiers for operations which are already things of the past."

The Pall Mall Gazette omits editorial reference.

Predicts Fall of Cabinet.

The Globe, which for some time past has been attacking the Government, comes to the conclusion that "the present régime in Downing Street cannot last," and is anxious that "our allies and the dominions should realize that a change in Downing Street is inevitable, and we would caution them against the fable that the fall of Lloyd George involves a relapse toward defeatism or pacifism, which were never at such discount in Great Britain as today."

The Star says:

"The only thing that Parliament has to consider is the discovery of the truth. The Maurice affair is the culmination of a series of similar affairs—the Jellicoe affair, the Robertson affair, and the Trenchard affair. Taking these four affairs together, it is beyond question that there is something wrong with the present Government in its relations with the navy and army.

"In fiction and in the drama the long arm of coincidence can be used to make the improbable seem probable and the impossible seem possible, but in war these four coincidents strain the most fantastic credulity. If the case of Jellicoe had been an isolated one, or even if the cases of Jellicoe and Robertson had stood alone, those who cling desperately to the mystical faith that Lloyd George is our only war winner might have managed to hold on, but four—Jellicoe, Robertson, Trenchard, and Maurice—really there is a limit."

Supports Maurice's Demand.

[The following dispatches to THE TIMES are of Monday night's date, and were delayed by the censorship.]

The Daily Chronicle editorially says:

"The letter which we print in another column from General Maurice speaks for itself. It is not possible to overstate its gravity. General Maurice as Director of Military Operations of the Imperial General Staff, had an unsurpassed first-hand knowledge of facts and figures relating to our forces in the field during the long period when he filled that post.

"He writes to say that certain recent statements made in the House of Commons by the Prime Minister and Mr. Bonar Law are untrue. The statements in question were not casual but elaborate and deliberate ones. They concerned not minor matters, but the most central and vital of all the circumstances under which the British Army took every extra piece of front south of St. Quentin, where the disaster of March 21 occurred, the fighting strentgh at Sir Douglas Haig's disposal on the eve of the great battle and the degree to which our white troops have been employed this year in our Asiatic campaigns.

"General Maurice's step is, of course, a very serious one for him personally. He has taken it because he judged the case too grave for any other course. That he is acting from a high sense of duty is obvious. Whether he is right remains to be ascertained, but he can scarcely be refused his appeal to Caesar, that is, to a Parliamentary inquiry.

"For their own vindication the Ministers impugned must submit to one. As it is, they stand charged by a responsible official witness with misleading Parliament and the nation. Their alleged misstatements look worse because they were such that they had the effect of diverting blame from the shoulders of the Ministers to those of the soldiers whom they employed.

"Moreover, there are grave questions of policy as well as of statement, for if it were the case that Sir Douglas Haig, with the German menace piling itself up against him month after month, was left by the War Cabinet actually with fewer troops than in 1917, the country would not view the Cabinet's responsibility leniently.

"We say this without in any way desiring to prejudice the case. It is not a case that ought to be prejudiced, but it is emphatically one that ought to be tried, and tried by the only adequate tribunal—a Parliamentary inquiry. If the two Ministers have, as they may well have, a good and conclusive answer, let them make it there without delay."

The Times, Daily News, and Morning Post also published General Maurice's letter, the first two without comment.

Maurice Detached from Politics.

General Maurice's position may require definition for American readers. The post which he held until recently, when he applied for a change, was known as that of Director of Military Operations of the Imperial General Staff. Actually he directed no military operations, but was the connecting link between the British commanders in the field and the war Cabinet at home. His reputation as both a soldier and a man of ability was of the highest.

His weekly review of operations for the press created a deep impression upon his hearers, who were men of all nationalities, some of them distinguished students of war. On several occasions, when political and military questions had become intermingled, General Maurice was asked for an opinion. He invariably refused to make any statement which could be interpreted as departing in the slightest degree from the purely military viewpoint.

The official statement issued this afternoon says:

> The artillery on both sides was active north and south of the Avre. A German raid against a small French post near Hangard was repulsed. In the same region we carried out a local operation and brought back prisoners.
>
> There is nothing to report elsewhere on the front.

> There has been marked activity by both artilleries on the front of Hailles-Villers-Bretonneux, (Amiens sector.)
>
> An enemy surprise attack to the south of Hartmanns-Weilerkopf (Alsace) failed.
>
> On May 6 four German airplanes were brought down in the course of an aerial fight. Ten others were sent down damaged within their own lines. During the same day our bombarding machines dropped 4,000 kilograms of projectiles on the stations of Fluille, Martel, Merresis, Ham, Guiscard, Noyon, and Vermond.

ITALIAN PRAISE FOR FOCH.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, May 7.—"English stubbornness and French dash have been heroically combined in resisting an enemy superior in numbers and strongly supported by an imposing mass of artillery and poison gases," says General Corsi, The Tribuna's military critic, reviewing the situation in France.

"One of the surest proofs that the Germans have been kept in check is the present pause in operations. Although they have made gigantic efforts south and north of Ypres, the Germans have not managed to obtain new successes. It is forty days since they launched their great offensive on all parts of the front without having obtained a strategic result. The Germans took more than three months to prepare for their action in France; the British and French initiated the unity necessary for any operation of war under the fire of the enemy's guns, the pressure of attacking hordes, and the influence of advancing enemy masses. The organization and co-ordination of masses of troops needs time and calmness. Therefore, all must admire what General Foch has been able to accomplish under the circumstances.

"These considerations are recommended to those who impatiently seek in the comuniques for a sign of a counter-offensive. In defensive tactics economy of forces is an essential factor. It is this economy which has maintained for the last thirty days the compactness of the front, despite the violent and overwhelming pressure of the enemy. Those facts are the highest tribute which can be given the British and French troops who in fraternal union vie with one another in sacrifice and heroism."

BERLIN ADMITS LOSS IN AUSTRALIAN ATTACK

Says Assailants Reached Some Foremost Trenches, but Failed Elsewhere.

BERLIN, May 7, (via London.)—The German official communication issued today says:

> On the battlefront in the morning hours the artillery activity was lively. On the northern bank of the Lys advances by English companies failed.
>
> Between the Ancre and the Somme the enemy employed Australians for a night attack. On both sides of the Corbie-Bray road they succeeded in reaching our foremost line. For the rest their twice-repeated attack broke down before our posts with heavy losses. The artillery battle continued until daylight with the greatest intensity.
>
> South of Brimont storming detachments pushed forward across the Aisne Canal into the enemy's positions near Courcy and brought back some prisoners.

BRITISH CASUALTIES 38,691.

Heaviest for Any Single Week—6,555 Officers and Men Killed.

LONDON, May 7.—British casualties reported during the week ended today reached a total of 38,691. Of this number, 6,555 officers and men were killed or died of wounds, and 32,136 were wounded or reported missing. The casualties were divided as follows:

Killed or died of wounds: Officers, 499; men, 6,056.

Wounded or missing: Officers, 1,859; men, 30,277.

British casualties reported during April, starting with low figures in the first week, began to mount rapidly thereafter, so that the total for the month reached 52,475. The returns from the heavy fighting against the German offensive in late March and April are now apparently in full flow.

Figures for casualties reported for separate weeks have not been made available with anything like uniformity during the war, but it appears probable that those reported during the current week are the heaviest in any single week of the fighting. In the days of the Somme battle of 1916, however, the losses reported in August averaged 30,000 per week, and an average of more than $25,000 has been reached in several other months.

CALLS UPON PACIFISTS TO WAR UPON GERMANY

Pastor Charles Wagner of Paris, author and one of the world's leading exponents of "the simple life," has sent a message to the American people in which he warns against a German peace, and declares that "to go on leading a quiet life when iniquity is flooding the earth is to become an accomplice of iniquity." The message makes a special appeal to pacifists.

"It appears more clearly every day by the acts of our enemies," says the massage, "that they are endeavoring to achieve a worldwide domination. They cover the falseness of their designs with the cloak of piety. It is in the name of God that they want to impose their tyranny and make everything give way and bow before them. What we have to face now is a fearful attempt to reduce mankind to slavery by usurping divine power itself. Who are they, those who are proffering peace? They are the men who let loose war, believing they would surely conquer, who violated the treaties they themselves had signed, who ransacked unoffending countries, who pillaged and burned towns, who dealt ruthlessly with the civilians of the invaded countries, including aged people, women, and children. They need peace in order to profit by their booty. Those who are offering us peace are a highly organized gang of highway robbers who have enormous plunder and want to keep it under the cover of treaties.

RUMANIA SIGNS FOES' PEACE TREATY

All Demands of Central Powers Agreed To by the Little Kingdom.

HOW AMERICANS ESCAPED

Red Cross Mission from Jassy Tells of Exciting Adventures in Flight to Safety.

AMSTERDAM, May 7.—The peace treaty between Rumania and the Central Powers was signed yesterday morning, says an official dispatch from Bucharest today.

The plenipotentiaries of the four Teutonic allied powers and Rumania, under the Chairmanship of Dr. von Kühlmann, the German Foreign Secretary, signed the treaty in the same room of the castle where the entry of Rumania into the war was decided upon. The treaty will be called "the Peace of Bucharest," and the text will be published at an early date.

Americans' Escape from Odessa.

LONDON, May 7.—In an eventful flight from Jassy, the Rumanian capital, the American Red Cross Mission to Rumania, which now has arrived in London, escaped from Odessa thirty-six hours before the Germans entered it only to be fired upon by a German battery in the Ukraine 200 miles north of the famous Black Sea port.

The German shells did no damage to the Red Cross train, falling about a half a mile from it, but several members of the mission breathed a sigh of relief when the bombardment came to an end after five minutes which had seemed like hours.

When the mission left Jassy, it was known that the journey likely would be a dangerous one. Reports in Jassy as to the whereabouts of the Germans varied greatly, but it was fairly clear that they were within fifty or sixty miles of Odessa, and that their advance parties might be encountered along the line. Most of the passengers on the train were officers and privates of the French Military Mission to Rumania, and it was hardly to be expected that German or guerilla bands would make any careful distinction in favor of a few American Red Cross uniforms.

The members of the American Red Cross Mission left on the third of six trains which carried the allied missions from Jassy. The first train left at noon on March 9, and the other trains followed at intervals of two or three hours.

Each train was provided with food for a month. There was no dining car and the food was cooked in two military food kitchens abandoned by Russian troops and which were carried on a freight car on the end of the train. Three other freight cars, loaded with rails, ties, and railway iron, also were carried, so that the roadbed could be repaired quickly in case of accident, or in case the Germans had torn up the line.

The train on which the Americans traveled was one of the most extraordinary combinations of railway rolling stock ever seen. American doctors and officers had a third-class sleeping car, while the nurses had a second-class sleeper. Both cars were of ancient Russian vintage and without water supply, or heating facilities

The French officers had sleeping cars, some Russian and some Rumanian, but the privates were compelled to get along with ordinary freight cars of nondescript types, and two or three in different passenger cars

Engineer Lived in Box Car.

The engine which pulled the train dated back to 1876 and only burned wood, which was picked up along the way. The engineer matched the engine. He was an elderly Russian of Bolshevist opinion, and had to be fed with rubles and cognac almost as frequently as the engine required wood. He carried his family along with him in a box car next to the engine, and whenever meals or other domestic affairs required his attention he stopped the train and went "home" to his box car.

Just outside Odessa the engineer became dissatisfied with the flow of rubles and cognac and went on a strike. The French officers tried to reason with him, but he was obdurate, and departed with the engine and the box car, leaving the remainder of the train standing on the main line. He had chosen rather a critical time, for reports were current that the Germans were likely to reach the railway at any moment. After some delay the French succeeded in finding another engineer and engine, and the train proceeded.

As a matter of fact German battalions entered Odessa only thirty-six hours after the Americans passed through the city, and it is probable that some of their advance parties already were in the suburbs at the time the engineer went on strike.

The striker apparently suffered a change of heart soon after he left the train, for the next day when the train was a hundred miles or so beyond Odessa, he, with his engine and "home," caught up with the train. He begged the French officers to take him back on their own terms. The French declined to reinstate the old engineer, and the last seen of him he was taking his engine and box car backward on the return trip to South Russia.

For the first hundred miles or so out of Odessa the trains carrying the allied missions traveled over a new railway which had been completed only a short time before by Russian military engineers. It was rather a circuitous route, but it was believed the Germans were ignorant of its existence, and that it was safer than the old lines.

On the second day when the train bearing the Americans was about 200 miles north of Odessa, one of the doctors saw a flash of fire away off on the horizon. It was followed quickly by a loud explosion and a great geyser of earth and rocks as a shell burst in a field about half a mile from the moving train. The first shell was followed by many others, the bombardment continuing for five minutes.

Nobody knew what was going on, but the general belief was that the train had come within sight of a distant German observation post which was trying to direct the fire of its batteries on the railway track. Military men on board declared the shells were 6.9 inch or larger. The shells appeared to fall in a regular line, as if the gunners had the railroad carefully registered. The range was a little too great for the German guns, however, and all the shells fell short.

Battle Causes a Detour.

Arriving at the station of Doinskaia, the Americans were informed by the Bolshevist authorities that a battle was in progress to the north. The train then turned from its scheduled route and proceeded southeast, returning to its northward route after a lengthy detour. For the next forty-eight hours hardly an hour passed without rumors of danger from Germans or guerrilla bands.

At Kursk the Americans were greeted enthusiastically by several thousand Bohemian troops who originally had been prisoners captured from the Germans, but lately had been fighting with the Russians against the Central Powers. They said they had just returned from a severe battle with the Germans between Kiev and Kursk, and many of them were wounded. They boasted that this action on their part had saved the American mission, as otherwise the Germans would have been in Kursk before the Americans arrived there. Most of these Bohemian troops had offered themselves for service in France.

The mission arrived in Moscow on March 16. The trip northward to the Mourmansk coast and thence to England was without danger of German interference.

political administration becomes impossible, owing to local conditions."

Move to Stifle Budapest Parliament.

AMSTERDAM, May 7.—Premier Wekerle of Hungary, having agreed to attempt the formation of a new Cabinet, as was announced recently, a Royal rescript was published yesterday in the Official Gazette of Budapest confirming him in his post and instructing him to make proposals for a recomposition of the Cabinet and for carrying through the franchise reform project, if possible.

If he should be unable to bring about an agreement which would make it possible to adopt electoral reform in accordance with the Emperor's rescript of last year the Premier is authorized to dissolve Parliament and issue writs for new elections, even though it should be desirable to avoid a general election during the war.

The rescript also asserts that the legal influence of the Hungarian Government in the conduct of the joint affairs of the monarchy shall be maintained always, and that it is the Emperor's wish that the new Cabinet should realize the social and economic program which has been laid down.

The power conferred on Premier Wekerle to dissolve Parliament and postpone the general elections until after the war foreshadows a situation in Hungary similar to that in Austria. Last week Emperor Charles authorized the Austrian Premier to adjourn Parliament and adopt measures to render impossible the resumption of its activities.

In Hungary as well as Austria there has been great political unrest recently. The Wekerle Ministry resigned last month because it had become doubtful whether it would be authorized to dissolve Parliament to carry through the Electoral Reform bill, which would give the vote to every Hungarian, male or female, 24 years of age and able to read and write. Great demonstrations have been held recently in Hungarian industrial centres in behalf of the bill.

PEOPLES IN AUSTRIA 'LIKE HUNGRY WOLVES'

Spirit of Revolt Rife and Cries of "Long Live Wilson!" Are Heard, Says Traveler.

STOCKHOLM, May 7.—The Politiken today publishes an interview with "a person in an important position who has just traveled through the lands of the Central Powers, where he came in contact with a large number of influential persons from different classes of political parties and professions, including also Russians, Lithuanians, Ukrainians, Poles, Rumanians, Czechs, and Hungarians."

In the interview this person gives a very dark picture of conditions in the Dual Monarchy. He declares that Austria especially is in a bad situation. Famine conditions prevail and general discontent was never so great, he says.

"The different nationalities regard each other like hungry wolves," the interview continues. "The Czechs are united in supporting a Czechish republic, and their ambition is separation from Austria. Even the southern Slavs are more openly taking a front against the Hapsburgs. The Poles are striving for a union with the Congress of Poland.

"The spirit of revolt is rife among these three nations, and the sole desire is that the enemy may conquer. 'Long Live Wilson' has become a regular cry in wide circles.

"In Austria the political struggle is growing more bitter, and the Government dares not summon Parliament.

"The situation is tangled similarly in Hungary. Count Tisza governs from behind the scenes, and is trying to regain his grip on Austria. This irritates the Czechs and disquiets the Emperor. The solution of the franchise question is impossible because of Magyar obstruction, which takes the form of strikes and sabotage by the workmen.

"Hungary, which has plenty to eat, boycotts Austria, which is starving. Almost nothing is coming from the Ukraine, because the Bolsheviki burned everything on their retreat, and what does come goes to Bohemia to help calm the flames of insurrection. The German provinces in their turn complain about this, saying that their loyalty is being retarded by hunger."

The informant declares that the labor unrest is most acute, especially in Vienna and Prague. The Socialists are shifting rapidly to Zimmerwaldism and the Zimmerwaldists soon will be in the majority.

of a too close alliance with Vienna and Budapest, of the flirtation with Poland, and his insistence upon the necessity of friendly relations with a strong Russia. The German outcry against Lichnowsky, however, gave foreign countries the impression that the Prince had made fearfully damaging disclosures of Berlin's guilt. The question of blame, he says, "reflected almost an identical interpretation to that of our White Book, and a cool head would not have made a world sensation out of it."

Harden concludes by saying that an ostracized Lichnowsky would become a power; but the Prussian Diet has no sense of humor.

GERMAN POISON GASES FELT ALONG THE RHINE

GENEVA, May 7.—The municipal authorities at Mülhausen, Alsace, have ordered all inhabitants to obtain gas masks before May 10, as protection "against aerial gas attacks," the Lausanne Gazette says.

The truth of the matter is, the newspaper adds, that, owing to contrary winds, large quantities of poison gas employed by the Germans are now drifting gradually toward towns along the Rhine, which already are feeling the effects of the gas.

JAPAN TO WORK WITH AMERICA

BRITISH EYES ON RUSSIA

London Times Urges That Allies Help Her and Says Their Efforts Would Be Welcomed.

A "NECESSARY PARTNER"

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Baron Shimpei Goto, the new Japanese Minister for Foreign Affairs, and Secretary Lansing have exchanged messages showing that both Governments are determined to work together in resisting Germany as the common enemy menacing the safety of both Japan and the United States. Baron Goto sent this message to Secretary Lansing:

> Charged with the direction of foreign affairs in this Ministry, owing to the regrettable illness and retirement of Viscount Motono, I need hardly assure you of as firm a determination as ever of this Government to promote and cement in every possible way the relations of mutual regard and confidence between our two nations, holding implicit faith in the final victory of our common cause to which we are unalterably committed. I am indeed proud of the privilege that is afforded me of associating myself with you in the great task before us.

Secretary Lansing's reply, also made public at the State Department today, follows:

> I have read with gratification your telegram of yesterday, which expresses so frankly the spirit of goodwill for this country and of devotion to the common cause to which we are pledged.
>
> It is needless to assure your Excellency that your words of confidence and esteem are fully reciprocated by this Government. Candor and friendship in all our relations are our supreme wish and purpose; and we feel confident that, guided by this spirit, the United States and Japan will enjoy an even better understanding—if that is possible—than the understanding which today characterizes their intercourse.
>
> I appreciate your words concerning our personal association, and I am highly honored in this relationship, looking forward as I do with confidence to a continuance of the cordial spirit of helpfulness which has been so manifest in these days of conflict when the bonds of mutual interest draw our countries so closely together.
>
> Please accept my expressions of sincere esteem and of earnest desire to co-operate with you in vigorously and successfully resisting our common enemy who menaces the national safety of Japan as well as that of the United States.

New "Atmosphere" in Russia.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 7.—The Times, commenting editorially on its Christiania dispatch concerning the situation in Russia and its advices from Tokio, says:

"It is the plain duty of well-wishers of the Russian people on both sides of the Atlantic to give the Russian people all the assistance in their power in the great work of national reconstruction. The temporary paralysis of Russia has been a heavy blow to the Allies in their fight for freedom. Her dissolution, her prolonged weakness as a great power, or her practical subjection to Germany would constitute a new and standing menace to the peace and security of both hemispheres. She is a necessary partner in the projected league of nations, and her copartners are bound by every consideration of justice and of self-interest to see that she takes her place in full enjoyment of her resources and of her independence.

"We cannot doubt for a moment that any of them would hesitate to give her all the help in their power were she to invite it through the medium of a stable government, or, indeed, of any elements which gave promise of effective co-operation for the common cause. It is well known that such elements exist. The changes in Petrograd are conclusive proof that things in Russia are no longer what they were. Signs of a new 'atmosphere' are indeed so manifest that even the absence of an official or public invitation to assist the new movement need not necessarily be a bar to such a step. It is certain that whether they venture to speak out or not, the aid of the Allies would be cordially welcomed by great numbers of sensible and patriotic Russians.

"It is gratifying to know that the only one of the Allies who would be able to afford this assistance promptly and effectually in the present state of the world struggle is also willing to afford it. Baron Goto's recent statements make it clear that Japan would not refuse, were she properly approached, to undertake this duty. She would doubtless require a mandate from her allies and associates in the war. The form and terms of such a document would, of course, need to be settled between them, as would the wording of the proclamation of disinterestedness which all powers concerned would naturally address to the Russian people.

Japan's Motives Elevated.

"All the Allies and America are well aware, we are confident, that if Japan were to undertake such a mission she would do so under the inspiration of a policy as elevated as it would be farsighted. She has already shown she would act in a spirit of the utmost friendship for Russia, whose reconstruction she is bound to desire in her own interests as warden of the peace of the Far East."

THE HAGUE, May 7.—Commenting on the report by The London Times correspondent at Tokio on the question of Japanese intervention, the Vossische Zeitung says that the Republican Party in the American Congress is endeavoring to make capital out of President Wilson's hesitating attitude regarding Japan's intervention, and that in furtherance of the party's new severe war and imperialist policy the Republicans are demanding that Japan have a free hand without considering the consequences for America's future world position. The Vossische refers to Senator Poindexter's recent demands and criticism of the Government.

The War Situation

BY THE MILITARY EXPERT OF THE NEW YORK TIMES.

It is difficult to conceive, except in a most general way, of the enormous extent of the offensive operations which the Germans have attempted since the 21st of March. In this fighting of the first six weeks, which includes all of the fighting in Picardy and the opening of the fighting in Flanders, the Germans used 129 divisions. This was an unprecedented strength, just as the width and scope of the attack was unprecedented. Never before had an attack been launched on such a wide front or anything approaching it. In a corresponding time in the battle of Verdun, which is rightly regarded as the most stubbornly defensive fight the Allies have yet been in, or had been in previous to March 21st, the Germans used but 20½ divisions. When we remember the ferocity of the Verdun offensive in those early days, the meaning of these figures becomes obvious. Although there has been a lapse in the fighting now lasting for the better part of a week, the very hugeness of the numbers that are known to be engaged negatives any other idea than that the offensive must go on.

The Germans have not passed these days in idleness, we may be sure. On the contrary, they have been used in preparing for another blow. This preparation has taken a variety of forms, all of which are time-consuming. The practice of shifting divisions from active fronts to those where there is relative idleness has been common ever since the western front acquired the habit of staging offensive operations. The British have followed it consistently. The German divisions which have been used in the offensive so far have in many cases been very roughly handled. Some have been almost obliterated and are of no further use in the fighting and have to be fully reorganized with material which in the natural course of things would be by no means as good as that which was used in striking the first blow.

The probabilities are, then, that these divisions have been reformed and sent to one of the quiet sectors of the front east of Montdidier, while their places on the active fighting front have been taken by fresh divisions which they relieved. There is a limit to which this practice can be carried, of course. The effect of it is a gradual rotting away of the efficiency of the striking and resisting power of the remainder of the line which is inactive. Sooner or later this part of the line reaches a point where it is too weak to resist. This point has not been reached yet. Possibly it is far from that point up to the present time. When it is reached it will be General Foch's time to strike.

The time for Germany to begin operations again is fast approaching. There are indications that within twenty-four hours the battle may be renewed in all its intensity. Before it does break, there are certain facts in regard to it to which we may well steel our minds. When this attack is launched it will be in great strength. Very probably the German forces which are thrown in will be as great as, if not greater than, those which began the attack in March. They will be concentrated at the point of attack in such a way as to take immediate advantage of the slightest wavering of the allied line. They will try to break through and continue their progress to the sea.

And we may be sure that some initial progress will mark the opening days of the fight. It is almost impossible to conceive of a great mass of troops being thrown against a section of the line and not bending it back when the element of casualties is to a large extent ignored. There will be a weight of artillery support equalling anything the war has yet seen. It will, indeed, be the great German effort of the war, more vital than the fighting which has heretofore taken place. The reason for this is that this next move will truly spell victory or disaster. If Germany is to win it must be against the Allies while they are on their guard. It is no longer possible to catch them by surprise. They have known where the attack was coming within reasonable limits, and have had ample time to prepare to meet it. It is against this situation which Germany must win. If she is thrown back after the preliminary period of advance, if she is held in place and checked as she has been both in Flanders and in Picardy, the end has been reached. By no possible circumstances can Germany win.

Germany realizes this. That is why this coming blow means so much, why we may regard it as the crucial test of the war. The Allies, knowing that the blow is coming, appear to be confident of the result. They have had the shock, they have met it, and after an initial period which for a time savored of disaster, have held the Germans absolutely in place. Their reserves are up, ready to be thrown in where needed. Certainly, somewhere in the fighting zone there is a large force held in readiness to be thrown in should the occasion demand it. It is in reality in anticipation of failure that the German peace waves are being formed, ready to be thrown out by the projecting machinery of German propaganda. The Germans, we have learned, are farsighted and prepare for every contingency their leaders can visualize, and one of these is now most certainly the possibility of defeat, whatever it may have been before the battle was begun. If this next offensive meets the same fate as the first, Germany's sole hope lies in a peace negotiated quickly. For only in such quick action can she escape ultimate defeat.

BERLIN PRESS ADMITS FAILURE IN UKRAINE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, May 7.—The papers openly criticise the turn of events in the Ukraine. The Tageblatt considers it was a great mistake to make the Main Committee debate so secret, pointing out that the Ukranian failure has created much excitement, and that the press naturally endeavors to learn something of the proceedings.

Even the Vossische Zeitung admits that Erzberger was right in saying that mistakes were being made. The Vossische Zeitung, however, considers the mistakes were made long ago and with the consent of the Reichstag. The paper says the peace was always one of necessity. It deplores the policy toward the Russians and the celebration of the peace as a "bread peace," and also the shortsightedness of Vienna's policy.

AMSTERDAM, May 7.—The uneasiness caused by Germany's policy in the Ukraine, as revealed in the recent Reichstag debates, was again reflected in yesterday's sitting of the Main Committee of the Reichstag.

Hugo Haase, leader of the Socialist minority in the Reichstag, said it was remarkable that the peace treaty with the Ukraine was still unratified, and that it must be ratified most speedily.

"The militarists," said Herr Haase, "run the risk of spoiling for the future the things we have won with the sword. Why should we by our field tribunals bring upon our heads the hatred of the whole population?

Dr. Gustav Stresemann, the National Liberal leader, said:

"Surely, our policy is to support the independence and aspirations of border peoples in order to weaken Great Russia. Yet our Ukraine policy tends to the opposite direction. Our action against the Rada cannot be approved and will be long exploited against us.

Herr von Payer, the Imperial German Vice Chancellor, announced in the Main Committee today that a special department would be established to uniformly regulate Germany's whole eastern policy. The department will direct the border States under orderly government and administrative conditions. The department, Herr von Payer added, will be incorporated in some existing imperial department.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Advices received by the State Department today stated that at a meeting of the Imperial Rationing Committee in Berlin it was disclosed that the quantity of food supplies expected from the Ukraine would be so far below the desired amount that it would barely prevent a material reduction of the food ration in Germany. The report stated that the significant thing was that the Ukrainian supplies only saved the situation and did not really improve it.

It was disclosed that the large cities in the Ukraine were themselves suffering from hunger. Grain was being kept in secret stores by the individual peasants, and it was declared that even a very slight passive resistance might make the German military task of gathering it extremely difficult.

An official German report on May 2 stated that 12,000 carloads of grain were already in Rumania ready for transportation. From the official calculation, it will not be possible to receive these supplies in Germany until July 21. The German meat supply has run so short, the dispatch stated, that there is already talk of reducing the ration, which is now 200 grammes a week, to 150 grammes.

ASKED EICHHORN'S RECALL.

Ukraine Government Also Wanted German Ambassador Withdrawn.

LONDON, May 7.—The Ukrainian Government has sent a note to Berlin intimating that it will resign if several German officials are not recalled by Germany, says a Reuter dispatch from Moscow dated Saturday. The note specifically mentions General von Eichhorn, the Military Commander, and Baron Mumm von Schwarzenstein, the German Ambassador.

MIRBACH WATCHES REVIEW.

German Envoy with Turk Colleague at Moscow May Day Parade.

MOSCOW, May 2, (Associated Press.)—May Day was notably celebrated throughout Russia by the Soviets. The Soviet proclamation declared the day doubly important, as it also marked the end of the sixth month of the workmen's Government in Russia and the firm establishment of the Soviet power.

The Moscow celebration centred about the Red Square, adjoining the Kremlin, where the victims of the October revolution are buried. Probably 100,000 workingmen and workingwomen of the various unions, bearing gigantic red banners proclaiming international Socialism and extolling the Soviet Government, passed before the members of the Central Government, grouped about the graves of the revolutionists.

Viceroy Thanks America.

LONDON, May 7.—Thanks to the American Government for valuable assistance given in connection with the supply of silver in India were expressed by Lord Chelmsford, the Viceroy, at the recent war conference of the members of the Viceregal and Provincial Councils and of the ruling Princes at Delhi, according to a delayed telegram received by Reuter's, Ltd.

BALFOUR SAYS AMERICA HAS NOT BEEN SLOW

Believes History Cannot Show a Parallel to Our Action in This War.

LONDON, May 7.—Presiding this evening at London University at the first of the lectures of Professor Andrew C. McLaughlin of the University of Chicago on the causes of America's entry into the war, Arthur J. Balfour, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, said:

"No people understood better than ourselves the reasons which held America back from entering the war until she did. Had we been in the position of her people we should have hesitated quite as long as America, perhaps longer, before we plunged into the tremendous conflict. I do not think that there was ever a thought of anything in the nature of an apology required for the fact that the great, peace-loving, free, industrial community should not at once have rushed into the fray.

"What I am thankful for is that by a process which I do not consider slow, 100,000,000 of English-speaking people have been brought in with a unanimity never known in the history, perhaps, of any country governed as America is.

"I do not believe that the whole history of the world shows anything quite parallel or equal to the action of America in this war.

"There is something almost dramatic in the punishment which has fallen upon the cynical appetite for domination which possesses the German people."

OUR TROOPS POURING IN.

They Continue to Arrive in Force at the Front, Clemenceau Says.

PARIS, May 7.—American troops are continuing to arrive on the front in force, Premier Clemenceau told Marcel Hutin, editor of the Echo de Paris, on returning today from a two days' visit to the front area.

The Premier brought back, he said, a feeling of confidence in the invincibility of the Entente forces.

ADMITS SUCCESS OF RAID.

Frankfurter Zeitung Calls Zeebrugge Attack an Audacious Stroke.

LONDON, May 7.—That the recent British attack on the German submarine base at Zeebrugge was successful is admitted by the Frankfurter Zeitung in commenting upon the affair. The newspaper urges that the German Navy take measures to deal "with an antagonist of remarkable boldness."

"It would be foolish to deny," it says, "that the British fleet scored a great success through a fantastically audacious stroke in penetrating into one of the most important strongholds over which the German flag floats.

"However unpleasant it may be, we must frankly admit that the enemy ships actually entered the port of Zeebrugge. That being so, there is no reason why they should not achieve a similar feat at other times. It therefore behooves our navy command to be alert, for we have to deal with an antagonist of remarkable boldness."

This might happen to your estate

SOME months ago a fine old gentleman died who for many years had acted as trustee for a large estate and this Company was appointed to succeed him.

WHEN he assumed the trusteeship he was in the prime of successful business life and was well able to manage the property, but as he grew older his vigilance relaxed. When we took charge we found that a large part of the principal of the estate was in mortgages, some of which had run for twenty years without being renewed or the property appraised.

WE immediately had conservative appraisers examine the properties and began to put the mortgages on a sound basis. We found, however, that about $20,000 had been lost through failure of the elderly trustee to keep careful watch over the security behind the mortgages.

IF this Company had been appointed trustee in the first instance, this loss would have been avoided. The Company keeps a constant scrutiny over all investments in which trust funds are placed.

TWO INVESTIGATIONS OF BORGLUM AIRCRAFT CHARGES TO BE MADE

THOROUGH AIRCRAFT INQUIRY PLANNED

Chamberlain Tells Senate That Borglum Charges and Other Phases Will Be Sifted.

TAKES PRESIDENT AT WORD

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—In announcing in the Senate today that a sweeping inquiry into the aircraft situation would be taken up within the next few days by the Military Affairs Committee, Senator Chamberlain, its Chairman, said the investigation would include expenditures by the Aircraft Production Board, as to which allegations of graft have been made, and charges of inefficiency, as well as the alleged deliberate attempt to hold up the aircraft program.

The committee investigation, Senator Chamberlain said, was inspired by President Wilson's suggestion in his letter to Senator Thomas of Colorado—that, apart from the Department of Justice inquiry, he hoped the airplane situation would be "treated as one for searching official investigation by the constituted authorities of the Government."

Mr. Chamberlain expressed gratification that the President should want the situation investigated, and said the Senate would probe "diligently."

Senator Chamberlain explained that the committee would look into every phase of expenditures from the $1,000,000,000 fund appropriated by Congress for the aircraft program. The Department of Justice would conduct the criminal investigation, he said, although the Senate Committee might, as the investigation developed, go into that phase of the matter also. The committee, Mr. Chamberlain said, would not call witnesses whose ultimate prosecution the Department of Justice might contemplate. No immunity baths would be given, nor would there be any "whitewashing."

Mr. Chamberlain bitterly criticised the failure of the aircraft program, saying not one American-built battleplane had been shipped to France, unless recently, and there had been "something radically wrong with the whole program." The committee, he said, would try to find out precisely what was wrong and let the public know. Mr. Chamberlain criticised the withholding of the Gutzon Borglum report and the report of the President's Committee, headed by H. Snowden Marshall, on the aircraft situation, saying a tendency had been manifest to smother ugly facts.

Senator Brandegee of Connecticut sharply attacked the Administration for not having taken the public into its confidence in aircraft and other war activities. Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, Reed of Missouri, McCumber of North Dakota, and others insisted on the fullest inquiry to ascertain what has become of the money appropriated by Congress for aircraft.

Will Try to Get at the Truth.

Senator Chamberlain, in announcing the decision to take up the inquiry, said:

"I have never seen the Borglum report. I have never had any conversation with Mr. Borglum, although I saw him a little while yesterday in the committee room. I infer the Borglum report had reference particularly to dishonest or pro-German transactions affecting the work of the Aircraft Board.

"The Committee on Military Affairs made a report on airplane production, without going into details as to the expenditure of money. The conclusions of the committee were the same as those reported by the Marshall Committee and reached by Mr. Borglum—that there ought to be centralization of effort in aircraft production. The President has undertaken to centralize the work under Mr. Ryan. I hope to see better results achieved by a man who, having been successful in his own affairs, is likely to be successful for the Government.

"The President has referred the Borglum report, according to his letter, to the Department of Justice, with instructions that every instrumentality at the disposal of the department be used to investigate charges of dishonesty and malversation. The Borglum report, I understand, deals largely with the expenditure of money.

"The Department of Justice is practically the only department which can investigate a particular case into which the criminal element enters. But it is not the purpose of this committee to abandon its efforts to ascertain the truth with reference to aircraft construction.

"There has been something radically wrong in the whole program. I have not been able to put my hand on the expenditure of the money, and I do not think there is any member of the committee who can account for the expenditure of anything like $640,000,000. The committee, if it can have the consent of the Senate, is going to ascertain, if possible, where this money has been expended and where the delay has been occasioned."

"Ought not the committee, independent of the criminal question, investigate and ascertain to whom this money has been paid and for what purposes?" asked Senator Nelson.

A Constituted Authority.

"The committee is going to try to find out the truth of the whole situation," replied Senator Chamberlain. "I am very glad, indeed, to know from the President's letter that he approves of a searching, official investigation by the constituted authorities of the Government. The Military Affairs Committee is a constituted authority of the Government, and, without fear or favor, intends to do whatever is necessary to get at the bottom of this whole matter. I am sure that is what the President wants, and I am glad, indeed, to know that this course has his approval in advance.

"This investigation is not the development of a day. We make our investigations and think we have closed them, and the very next day the mail will bring charges of a sensational kind, made in many instances by reputable citizens interested only in winning the war. These charges must be segregated and the motives of the complainants analyzed. Charges are coming to me every day, such, for instance, as those in the Borglum report, which this committee never saw.

"This committee is determined to do whatever is necessary to win this war. If there is responsibility for a lack of speeding up, this committee hopes to put its finger on the man or men who are responsible. It proposes to do that without fear. It does not propose to protect the reputation of any individuals who have been connected with any dishonest transactions, from the highest to the lowest. It is the purpose of the committee to find out and to point out to the country the men who are responsible, if such there be, and it does not propose to engage in any whitewashing process.

Senator Vardaman asked Senator Chamberlain if he knew how much of the airplane appropriation had been spent for construction.

"I only know that the money appropriated was $640,000,000, and I understand there is to be a deficiency appropriation of $200,000 more, in regard to which I presume a report will be made in due time," replied Mr. Chamberlain.

Senator Vardaman inquired the number of airplanes built out of that fund and how many were now in use.

"There has been so much misrepresentation that it is difficult to learn," Mr. Chamberlain replied. "America has not put any planes on the battlefront of France, unless within the last two or three weeks—battleplanes built in America and shipped abroad for the use of American troops. There have been planes built in France at the expense of America, and these have been put on the battlefront. If the Senator calls them American battleplanes, then some have been built. How many I do not know. America has also sent to Great Britain and France material out of which airplanes are to be made, and is continuing to do that.

"Our people ought to be informed. Those who ought to know the truth do not tell it all. I am not blaming anybody, possibly it is impossible for anybody to know what the truth is. I do know, however, that it was testified before the committee that the flower of American youth to the number of about 1,500 was sent abroad to be trained in France in the use of battle and other planes at the front, and yet at this very day some of those very men have not had the advantage of training in American-built planes or in any planes whatever.

"It has become the purpose of the Chief Signal Officer, as he testified before the committee, that these young men should be returned to America and trained here, after having been kept over there nearly a year with nothing to do. If America has all the planes she needs, why has she not placed them in the hands of these young men on the battlefront of France?"

In reply to an inquiry Mr. Chamberlain explained that it was "the extreme optimism of the Chief Signal Officer and the men associated with him" in the airplane production that caused these men to be sent over.

"Did he indicate to the committee the basis of his expectation that they would get planes there?" asked Senator Walsh.

"Oh, if the Senator had been watching the newspapers and the testimony as it was adduced before the committee he would know that they had been disappointed in nearly every expectation they had," replied Senator Chamberlain. "If the Senator will come into my committee room some day I will give him a confidential statement that he can almost read at a glance."

"Is it not true that there were young men sent over there who were partly trained, ready to go on with flying, who had not had their feet off the ground since they had been there?" asked Senator Lodge.

"I could not state that positively," said Senator Chamberlain.

"I can only state it in a general way," Senator Lodge said, "but they have not had an opportunity to fly."

Aviators' Morale Shaken.

"I have a letter from a young man who went to France, who claimed that the morale of these 1,500 young men was almost destroyed by months of weary waiting," said Mr. Chamberlain. "They went over there expecting to become the 'aces' of America. They were young men from different colleges, who were sent because it was deemed that they would be most efficient and likely to be the best fighters that America could send. Since they have gone over, selected, as they were, as the best young men in the country, others have gone over, outranking them in commissions; and an effort is now being made to arrange the order in which the commissions shall be issued so as to protect these young men, as far as possible, against the optimism of the Aircraft Board."

"How is it," asked Senator Walsh, "that the American schools and aviation fields were abundantly supplied with training planes and the French schools were not?"

"That leads up to another question," said Senator Chamberlain. "This whole business has been camouflaged and misrepresented to the American people. It has only been recently that the American aviation fields have been supplied with proper planes for the training of these young men; and yet the statement is constantly being made that there were sufficient airplanes for the training of the American boys here and abroad."

Senator McCumber asked "the number of airplanes we were to have."

"I do not recall exactly," replied Senator Chamberlain, "the number we were to have in Europe by July; I think something like 2,500 or 3,000, with a possibility of increased production."

"Do we propose to have 50,000 to 80,000 there finally?" asked Mr. McCumber.

"We will not," said Senator Chamberlain.

"Will the Senator state," pursued Mr. McCumber, "how much the planes were to cost apiece? From the investigations I have made those machines ought to be produced at a big profit at $3,000 apiece; but, even allowing $10,000 apiece, with a billion dollars we could produce 100,000 planes. It seems to me, inasmuch as we have spent nearly a billion dollars and have got nothing, we ought to find out what has become of it."

Senator Reed remarked that no such low figures as those intimated as sufficient by Senator McCumber ought to go before the country.

"I think we are all aware," put in Senator Lodge, "of the constant changes and improvements; and yet England and France and Germany have managed to keep great numbers of fighting machines on both fronts in constant use."

"That is true," said Senator Reed. "We made the primary colossal blunder of undertaking to build an engine to fit almost any airplane in the world, whereas skilled mechanics and men who understand the business say that in every instance the engine must be built to fit the plane. The so-called Liberty motor is only adaptable to two or three types of planes, and among those types is not included the battleplane."

Suffrage and Prohibition.

"If there is any virtue in co-ordination, let us co-ordinate," said Senator Brandegee. "We have three co-ordinate departments of the Government. Now let us co-ordinate. This war is not going to be won by Colonel House. It is not going to be won by any pet or favorite of the President. It is only going to be won by the people of the whole country having confidence in this Government, and if the Government warrants the confidence which the public places in it.

"I have no partisanship in this war. They can take my property; they can take my life. They are taking the lives of the fellows they draft into the army, and they can have my life. I have only one life to live, and I have only one death to die, and I know of no better cause in which to sacrifice my life than in standing against this German brute who is trampling over civilization. But, my God, I'm a free man! I am not a partisan! No word that I have said on this floor has any partisan tinge to it.

"To be sure, when the President presumes, as I think at times, to be a superman, and to think his judgment is better than that of the hundred million people of the country, I make some jokes about it and some sarcastic references to it. There is no ill-nature about that, and I am not doing it for politics; I am doing it in the hope that, at last, he will some day realize that there are other people in this country besides him, who have some brains, and some loyalty, and some patriotism.

"You cannot win this war by talking about woman suffrage and prohibition. We won every war we ever were in without woman suffrage and prohibition. We won the War of 1776, and 1812, and the Mexican War, and the War of 1861, and the Spanish-American War, and there were no pink tea parties talking about putting pink chemises on the men and Plymouth Rock pants on the women. The women do not propose to go over in the trenches abroad and do the fighting. It is the men who will have to do that. Instead of bleating around here about their saving democracy by forcing their way into caucuses and conventions, they had better go home and knit bandages and pick lint and get ready to take care of their brothers, and sons, and fathers, who are going to be shot to pieces in the trenches abroad.

"And, take the boys in the trenches 'over there,' standing all night in two feet of ice water, with orders in their pockets to go over the top in the cold gray dawn, in a chilly fog, to put their unprotected bodies up against shot and shrapnel, and machine guns and poison gas, in addition to frozen feet! And they say they are going to fill each man's belly full of ice water before he starts as a moral stimulus to him. It is perfectly absurd! Every army abroad gives its men a drink of something to expand the cockles of the heart before they go up against the cold blue steel, and it may be the last one the poor devils will ever get. Yet you would think that this war is going to be won by such fads and fancies and frills as that.

"Now let us get down to brass tacks and win this war. Let us find out the facts, and let us investigate all these irregularities in a nonpartisan way and report to the representatives of the people, and then let the people pronounce the verdict."

AIRCRAFT INQUIRY BY THE SENATE

today under the President's instructions to investigate the Borglum charges. After consultation with advisers, he announced that he had placed Assistant Attorney General Frierson in charge of investigation. Mr. Gregory made this statement:

Attorney General's Statement.

"The Attorney General has received a letter from the President in regard to aircraft construction. The purpose of the investigation by the Department of Justice will be to determine whether there has been any dishonesty or malversion of any kind. In case either is developed, necessary steps to punish the guilty will be taken. The investigation will begin at once, and Assistant Attorney General William L. Frierson will be in immediate charge."

Mr. Frierson is one of the younger of the higher officials of the department. He will have a large personnel to assist him, including the officers and agents of the Division of Investigations, of which A. Bruce Bielaski is chief, the detective force of the department.

Mr. Gregory said there was ample law for the prosecution of offenders. It was asserted at the department that the investigation would be pushed with all the possible energy that was followed in the Hog Island inquiry.

No formal announcement has been made by the War Department in regard to the request by Major Gen. George O. Squier, Chief Signal Officer of the Army, for the appointment of a military court of inquiry to investigate the charges affecting him and others made by Mr. Borglum. It was alleged by Mr. Borglum that General Squier attempted to impede his investigation. It is said to be likely that the request for a court of inquiry will not be granted in view of the investigation undertaken by the Attorney General and the inquiry to be made by the Senate Committee.

Among members of the two military committees of Congress there is a disposition to credit General Squier with having honestly believed that the elaborate assurances as to aircraft production would be carried out. General Squier was recently relieved from authority over military aeronautics, this section of the Signal Corps being placed in charge of Brig. Gen. Kenly, an artillery officer who has been in charge of aircraft activities in France.

AIRCRAFT FIGURES CONVINCE COMMITTEE

Graft Charges Baseless, House Members Declare—Potter Gives Construction Data.

WASHINGTON, May 7. — Figures presented to the House Military Affairs Committee today by W. C. Potter, Chief of the Equipment Division of the Aviation Section, United States Army, convinced members that much of the criticism leveled at the Administration would not have arisen had the War Department officials frankly explained from time to time the difficulties encountered in aircraft production.

This conclusion was reached by many members of the committee after a thorough presentation had been made to them of the progress and the present status of aviation production by officials connected with the aviation service. Some Republican members, after hearing from the experts, emphatically declared against an independent investigation and asserted that reasonable progress was now being made in the aircraft program.

The opinion was expressed by leading members of the House committee that there had been no corruption in the aviation contracts, and that while many mistakes had been made, chiefly due to lack of co-ordination, these had not led to undue waste in expenditures. These mistakes have been corrected, it was asserted.

The majority sentiment in the committee is opposed to any further inquiry into aviation. It was declared that the officials had fully satisfied the committee that the money had been honestly expended and that the aircraft situation was now well organized, satisfactory progress being made in production.

While the officials connected with aviation in the War Department refrained from making any specific charges that pro-German influence had operated against production, Mr. Potter declared that what was suspected to be German influence had brought about strikes in plants making airplanes and that sabotage had been practiced which was probably due to the same influences.

Secretary Baker, who appeared at the morning session, impressed upon the committee the utmost necessity for secrecy, and members were unwilling to go into details as to what had been testified to by Mr. Baker and the other officials.

Billion Dollars for Next Year.

The estimates for aviation for the next fiscal year submitted by Secretary Baker call for an expenditure of more than a billion dollars for the construction of flying machines. In stating the exact number of machines the War Department proposed to build and the types planned, Mr. Baker impressively requested the committee not to give the figures even to other Congressmen. It can be stated, without supplying the enemy with military information, that the program for next year calls for a number greatly in excess of 22,000, which were to be built out of the appropriation of $740,000,000 provided for aviation purposes this year.

Mr. Baker, whose testimony was of a highly confidential nature, was one of those who gave the committeemen assurances that the aviation program was now proceeding without undue delay. One member said the War Department had made a great mistake in not publishing a businesslike statement of the exact status of aircraft production and a recital of some of the difficulties met in the early stages. He said if the public had the exact figures as to production and were informed as to the necessary delays, much of the criticism that has developed would not have arisen, and confidence would have been inspired.

Mr. Potter answered in detail questions submitted in writing by the Subcommittee on Aviation. He frankly replied to every question, and explained fully just what had been done with the money appropriated by Congress for aviation. It was his full and frank explanation of the expenditures and the progress made which led members of the committee to express the opinion that the aviation program was now in a satisfactory condition.

Some Results Accomplished.

So far as could be learned, the $740,000,000 apportioned for aviation has been expended as follows:

The War Department has expended $307,000,000 for airplanes and fields.

There is an unexpended balance now on hand of $433,000,000.

Of the unexpended balance, all is covered by contract, and additional contracts have been let for machines and other equipment which provide for expenditures of $148,000,000 beyond the appropriation.

The money already expended has been used as follows:

For engines and airplanes and general machine equipment......	$168,00,000
For hangars and the acquirement of aviation fields in this country	42,000,000
For aviation fields and other purposes in France...............	31,000,000
For gas balloons................	5,000,000

There is $31,000,000 in the hands of the Disbursing Agents and not reported at the hearing.

The balance has been spent for miscellaneous aviation work, for experiments and other general expenses connected with the program.

Liberty motors are now being made at the rate of 100 a week, Mr. Potter informed the committee.

The Government has ordered 14,000 foreign planes, and 1,800 have been delivered, he said, while 8,000 foreign engines have been contracted for, the deliveries amounting to fewer than 1,500.

There are between 1,200 and 1,400 aviators actually flying with the American forces on the Western front.

There are 5,000 men physically fit and ready to enter the service, while there are 15,000 flying and non-flying aviation service officers in the United States and France.

In the Signal Corps today there are 133,000 men and officers, which exceeds the strength of the regular army when this country entered the war.

In discussing the Liberty motor, Mr. Potter said that it was not good for all classes of aviation work, but was especially adapted to bombing and heavy work. The French Government, which has made a contract for a large number of these motors, he said, had canceled part of the contract and ordered the building of Bugatti engines. He said that, while the American experts were satisfied that the Liberty motor was a good engine, it required a great breadth of wings, which necessarily meant a sacrifice of speed.

In the opinion of this witness, if any criticism might be made of the aircraft situation, it was that too much time had been consumed in developing a single type of engine, and that it might have been wiser and more economical to use existing types.

Liberty Motor Making Good.

One hundred Liberty motors have been shipped to France, Mr. Potter said, and, while France has contracted for Bugatti engines for scouting purposes, she still has orders for 10,000 Liberty motors with this Government. In addition to the Liberty and Bugatti motors, this country is making a large quantity of Hispano-Suiza engines.

Asked whether the Liberty motor was doing all that had been promised for it, Mr. Potter said it was, although it was not suitable for use in pursuit planes, needed for overtaking fast enemy flyers. Production of the twelve-cylinder Liberty motor, he said, had been very slow in the last month, but production was now 100 a week, with the number increasing. The motor, he said, is still in process of refinement and perfection.

In the last year, the witness added, 5,000 planes were built in this country, but these were training planes, unsuitable for any other purposes.

Mr. Potter said that he never saw Gutzon Borglum while the latter was making his investigation of the aviation program. He said he was familiar with the charges, and declared some of them were true, while others were without basis.

"Mr. Potter's explanation to the committee is very satisfactory to me, and, I think, to every one of the committee," said Representative Shallenberger of Nebraska. "We realize that the expenditure of the money provided by Congress last year has not resulted in the construction of any combat planes which we had expected to have. The production capacity of the country, however, is now ready for the making of airplanes. The committee believes, from Mr. Potter's statement, that production will now keep pace with the demand.

"Mr. Potter, in answer to a direct question from me, stated that there was nothing whatever at issue between the War Department and the Packard Motor Company. He said that the Packard people had conducted a line of preliminary experimental work on the Liberty motor, for which they have been paid approximately $200,000."

With the decision of the committee to abandon its announced plan of conducting a thorough investigation into the aviation program, the Military Appropriation bill will be drafted speedily and reported to the House within the next two weeks.

SEDITION BILL SENT TO WILSON BY HOUSE

MEYER LONDON PROTESTS

Socialist Objects to Elimination of Amendment Exempting Critics Who Speak the Truth.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Final legislative action was taken today on the Sedition bill, giving the Government broad new powers to punish disloyal acts and utterances. Adopting a conference report already approved by the Senate, the House sent to the President for his signature the measure which has been before Congress for weeks.

The President is expected to sign the bill promptly, and through vigorous enforcement of its provisions officials of the Department of Justice say they will be able to do much toward checking the wave of mob outbreaks for which unpunished disloyalty and enemy activity are blamed.

Penalties of twenty years, imprisonment or a fine of $10,000, or both, are provided in the bill for those convicted of uttering or printing disloyal, abusive, profane, scurrilous, contemptuous, or abusive language about the United States or the Government, or the form of government, or the flag, and for those who are convicted of favoring Germany or her allies in the present war.

Only Representative London of New York, the Socialist, voted against the conference report on the final test. Representatives Lundeen of Minnesota, Republican, and Church of California, Democrat, voted present.

Representative London sought vainly to send the report back to conference because of the elimination of the Senate amendment exempting those who in criticism of the Government speak the truth with good motives and for justifiable ends. Representative Gordon of Ohio, Democrat, declared the Senate placed language in the bill "which plainly is in viloation of the Federal Constitution guaranteeing free speech."

Others opposed the bill largely because of their objection to conferring new censorship powers on the Postmaster General who is authorized to refuse the service of the mails to any person or concern using the mails in violation of the proposed act.

Representative Johnson of Washington attacked Representative London's criticism of the provision against using abusive language against the Constitution of the United States, and wanted to know whether the Socialist member approved the activities of the I. W. W.

"When a group of conscienceless employers refuse to recognize the right of people to organize, they will have to deal with the I. W. W.," Representative London replied. "I believe the I. W. W. is the working out of the law of compensation."

"I am eternally opposed to having the Constitution made over along the lines of a Karl Marx book on socialism," retorted Mr. Johnson, "and I am also opposed to making the Stars and Stripes into a red flag of revolution for the anarchists, of the I. W. W., or the Socialists."

Representative Webb of North Carolina, Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, and Representative Graham of Pennsylvania, Republican, who led the fight for the report, insisted that the powers proposed were necessary and would not be abused.

Representative Wood of Indiana and Representative Green of Iowa, Republicans, objected to the powers given the Postmaster General. The mail censorship section reads as follows:

"The Postmaster General may upon evidence satisfactory to him that any person or concern is using the mails in violation of the provisions of this act instruct the Postmaster at any Post Office at which mail is received addressed to such person or concern to return to the Postmaster at the office at which they were originally mailed all letters or other matter so addressed, with the words, 'Mail to this address undeliverable under Espionage act,' plainly written or stamped upon the outside thereof, and all such letters or other matters so returned to such Postmasters shall be by them returned to the senders thereof under such regulations as the Postmaster General may prescribe."

Penalties under the bill would apply to those who make false reports or statements with intent to interfere with the operation or success of the military or naval forces of the United States, or to promote the success of its enemies, or say or do anything with intent to obstruct the sale of Government securities during the war. They would apply to those who attempt to incite insubordination or mutiny or refusal of duty in the military or naval forces, or retard recruiting, or to those who speak, write, or publish abusive language against the uniform of the soldier or sailor or the flag or the Constitution.

GOVERNOR ASSERTS PROHIBITION CAN WAIT

Tells Temperance Forces It Would Be Unwise to Call Extra Session to Consider It.

ALBANY, May 7.—There will be no extra session of the Legislature to consider ratification of the prohibition amendment to the Federal Constitution. Governor Whitman made this plain today to a committee representing the temperance forces of the State which called upon him to express appreciation of his activities in favor of ratification. The committee was composed of Canon Chase of Brooklyn, representing the New York Civic League; Gordon H. Payne of Medina, representing the Good Templars, and Mrs. C. E. Lindsay, President of the Albany County Branch of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

The committee also assured the Governor that the temperance forces would support him in any decision he might make regarding an extra session of the Legislature, although it made no request for such a session.

"At present," said the Governor, "it does not seem wise nor desirable to convene an extra session. I have no information that would lead me to believe that there has been any change in the Legislature. As this is a matter that can be acted upon by any subsequent Legislature for the next six years, I do not feel that an emergency exists such as would justify calling the Legislature together in extraordinary session."

The split in the forces recently defeated in an effort to force Statewide prohibition, caused by the introduction of a resolution by Clinton N. Howard, an official of William J. Bryan's National Dry Federation, asking the delegates to a no-liquor conference in Albany on Monday to work for the ousting of William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the New York Anti-Saloon League, was widened yesterday by a statement which Mr. Anderson issued. In part, it was:

"I am perfectly willing to be abused to save the temperance cause from the disgrace and the contempt that would have been brought upon it, if its leadership had had no more gratitude or intelligence than to embarrass the only Governor who ever accomplished anything for prohibition, and had become the pliant tool in the hands of the Barnes-Brown-Sweet faction, in their scheme to protect themselves by using the prohibition forces as the means of turning the State over to Tammany as the only way in which they can throw off Governor Whitman's leadership of their party."

Mr. Anderson supplemented his formal statement by saying that the league championed Whitman for another term, and that the dry forces that had started the dissension were adroitly working for Speaker Sweet, who, Mr. Anderson said, felt the first stirring of Gubernatorial ambition. He declared that, using the prohibition wrangle as a weapon, the Speaker's supporters hoped to strike at the Governor.

LEWIS IS TO RUN AGAINST WHITMAN

Attorney General Will Be Candidate in the Republican Primaries.

GOVERNOR'S CAMP AROUSED

State Leaders, After Canvass of State, Determined to Put a New Man in the Field.

Attorney General Merton E. Lewis, who announced in Albany on Monday that he would not seek re-election to his present office, will become a candidate in the Republican primaries for the Gubernatorial nomination against Governor Whitman. This became known last night after Mr. Lewis had arrived in this city for conferences with Republican leaders who expect to give their support to his candidacy.

Official announcement of Attorney General Lewis's intentions may be delayed for several days. But a friend of the Attorney General is authority for the statement that when he decided to withdraw his name from Governor Whitman's third-term primary slate it was with the sole object of beginning a rival quest for the Gubernatorial nomination.

Plans for a fight to thwart Governor Whitman in his designs for a third term and to block the only avenue open to the Governor for the realization of his ambition to become a prominent figure in the Presidential contest two years hence have been under discussion among a group of Republican leaders for some weeks. The name of Attorney General Lewis has been mentioned as a possible leader in the fight. More recently the name of United States Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., has occurred in the gossip growing out of these conferences. Word reached Albany from Washington on Monday that Senator Wadsworth definitely made up his mind to remain in the United States Senate. Within a very few hours announcement came from Attorney General Lewis that he would not be a candidate for re-election.

According to advices received from Albany last night, the announcement has caused a great stir in the Whitman camp, although friends of Governor Whitman declared that if Mr. Lewis had retired as a candidate for Attorney General in order to run for Governor they knew nothing about it. George A. Glynn, Chairman of the Republican State Committee, when interviewed at Albany, said that if Mr. Lewis intended to become a candidate for Governor he had reckoned without George W. Aldridge, Republican leader of Monroe County, the political habitat of the Attorney General.

"Mr. Aldridge has assured me personally that he and his Monroe County organization are for the renomination of Governor Whitman and will continue to support his candidacy to the end," was the statement made by Mr. Glynn.

A friend of Mr. Lewis said last night that the Republican leaders who are preparing to back him in his fight for the Gubernatorial nomination had canvassed the State carefully and found so much opposition to the renomination of Governor Whitman that they had decided it would be wise to put a new man in the field. Unrest among the farmers, disaffection among Republicans in all parts of the State on account of the Governor's stand on prohibition, a demand among up-State Republicans that an up-State Republican be designated for the nomination, and fear that Governor Whitman's aspirations for a third term in itself would prove a challenge as contrary to political tradition, it was said, were some of the considerations that had prompted the backers of the Lewis boom.

"We would be seriously handicapped with Governor Whitman as our candidate, because everybody knows that he is seeking a third term solely as a stepping stone to the Presidential nomination," said one of the Republican leaders identified with the Lewis movement last night. "Mr. Lewis seeks the nomination because he wants to be Governor and believes, as do his friends, that he is well equipped to render good service to the State in that position."

It is not believed that the opposition will put a full ticket in the field. Secretary of State Francis M. Hugo, it is known, will have a place on both tickets and get through without a primary fight. Little attention has been given to the filling of other places on the ticket to be headed by the former Attorney General. There has been some talk of inducing Speaker Thaddeus C. Sweet to accept a place on the ticket, probably for State Controller. In that event he would be pitted against Eugene M. Travis, the present Controller, who some months ago reached an understanding with Governor Whitman under which he was to run with him on the "Officeholders' Entente" third term ticket.

William Barnes, William L. Ward of Westchester, Harvey D. Hinman of Broome, Edgar Truman Brackett of Saratoga, Speaker Sweet of the Assembly, Senate Leader Elon R. Brown of Jefferson are among prominent Republican leaders who will support Mr. Lewis. That United States Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., will stand with the anti-Whitman forces if he decides to take an active part in the fight is certain.

Of "Old Guard" leaders who at present are considered friendly to the Governor are George W. Aldridge of Monroe, Francis Hendricks of Syracuse, Fred Greiner of Erie, J. Sloat Fassett of Chemung, Samuel S. Koenig of New York County, and Fred J. H. Kracke of Kings. Jacob A. Livingston, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Kings County Republican Committee, on the other hand, is opposed to the renomination of Governor Whitman, and has been taking an active part in the movement to put another candidate in the field.

SEES STATE VINDICATED.

Wisconsin's Loan Record Doesn't Show Disloyalty, Says Cooper.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Speaking in the House today, Representative Cooper of Wisconsin, Republican, declared the oversubscription to the Liberty Loan in Wisconsin furnished sufficient proof to refute insinuations of the State's disloyalty.

He called attention to the casualty list which a few days ago showed eighty-nine men from Wisconsin, and cited a large number of Wisconsin men aboard the torpedoed transport Tuscania.

DR. BOLDUAN TO QUIT CITY'S HEALTH WORK

Opens Way for Hylan Administration to Put $40 Clerk in Charge of Health Education.

A NEW MacBRIDE INQUIRY

Civil Service Head Expects to Reclassify Some Health Department Employes.

Dr. Charles F. Bolduan, Director of the Bureau of Public Health Education of the Health Department, it was announced yesterday by friends of his, has received a number of offers from other health organizations and will soon accept one of the places.

The removal of Dr. Balduan was one of the recommendations of Mayor Hylan's Health Department investigators, who also suggested that the work of the department could be managed by a $40 a week clerk. Dr. Royal S. Copeland, the new Health Commissioner, disagreed with this feature of the investigating committee's report.

The resignation of Dr. Bolduan, which will be tendered very soon, will permit carrying out at least part of the program of Chairman James E. MacBride of the Civil Service Commission and his confrères. It has been freely predicted that the bureau as a bureau would be abolished as soon as Dr. Bolduan departed. Commissioner Copeland's reiteration of his great interest in public health education has been taken to mean that he would include the work of the bureau among his many duties.

Chairman MacBride announced yesterday the discontinuance, at least temporarily, of the Civil Service Commission's investigation of alleged civil service irregularities in the Health Department. He also announced that beginning at 2 o'clock this afternoon there would be public hearings at the office of the commission in a general scheme for the reclassification of employes of all city departments. "This general reclassification may wipe out some inequalities that we have found exist in the Health Department," he said.

Dr. Bolduan has been with the Health Department since 1904, having been appointed in that year as bacteriologist in the Bureau of Laboratories. Following this he was for seven years assistant to Dr. Hermann M. Biggs, then the General Medical Officer of the department. When Dr. Biggs retired in 1914, Health Commissioner S. S. Goldwater formed the Bureau of Public Health Education and put Dr. Bolduan in charge.

Following a conference yesterday with officials of the department, Commissioner Copeland sent inspectors for a vigorous supervision of the sale of food during warm weather.

AMERICAN GUNNERS SAY THEY SANK U-BOAT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7. — Announcement was made by the Navy Department today that the American steamer Tidewater almost ran into a German submarine on March 17 and fired three shots, at least one of which is believed by officers and crew of the steamer to have been effective. The official announcement read:

"The commander of the armed guard on the steamship Tidewater reports to the Navy Department that on March 17, about 11:30 P. M., a submarine was sighted off the starboard bow, heading toward the vessel, about 150 yards off. As the ship turned it missed the submarine by not more than twenty feet. The U-boat was then submerging. The ship's guns were brought to bear, and the first shot hit some distance ahead of her wake.

"'The pointer fired the second shot,' says the report, 'and made what the Captain, the chief engineer, myself, and other members of the crew called a clean hit and was satisfied that it was effective. The third shot was fired by the boatswain's mate in charge of the after gun's crew, having her spotted and firing in the position she last submerged in. We resumed our course and commenced zig-zagging, standing by for an attack, but the submarine did not appear again. We made all preparations for an attack at daybreak, but there were no signs of a submarine.'"

OLD DOMINION LINER SUNK BY SUBMARINE

11 Men, Including 5 Naval Gunners, Lost on the Tyler Off the French Coast.

The Old Dominion liner Tyler and the Canadian Pacific Company's steamer Medora have been sunk off the French coast, according to a message received here yesterday by the Marine Insurance Company, which read: "Tyler and Medora victims of war peril." Additional information received in shipping circles is that eleven of the men on the Tyler were killed or drowned. Of these six were members of the crew and five were navy gunners. The members of the crew reported dead are:

Gragario Carro, coalpasser, Corunna, Spain; Fernando Lasse, Corunna, Spain; E. W. Mears, third assistant engineer, Washe Creek, Va.; F. Kauamato, messman, no address; Clarence E. Knowlton, oiler, 407 West Thirty-first Street, Norfolk, Va., and Jose Roderigues, fireman, Corunna, Spain.

The Tyler was sunk on May 3. She was one of the first vessels to be commandeered by the United States Shipping Board, being taken over last October, since when she had been engaged in the Italian trade.

HIT U-BOAT CAPTAIN WHO SANK HIS SHIP

SAVED BY A DESTROYER

Dived Overboard After Felling Commander and Came Up Behind Wreckage Which Hid Him.

AN ATLANTIC PORT, May 7.—To have felled a German U-boat commander on the deck of a submarine and then to have made his escape is the experience of Captain D. J. McDonald, the tall, ruddy Nova Scotian skipper of the three-masted schooner John G. Walter, now at the bottom of the Atlantic. His quickness in diving overboard and the timely appearance of an allied destroyer saved him. The Captain told of his experience today when he arrived on an American steamship.

The schooner, he said, was on her way from a Canadian port to England when she fell in with a submarine. The U-boat commander, after ordering the crew to take to their boats, sank her with bombs. He took the Captain off, however, and ordered him on board the U-boat. While some of the German crew were bringing over some of the stores taken from the Walter the two Captains stood on the deck and watched the proceedings.

"I guess you will have to make a visit to Germany," the German naval officer said.

Captain McDonald did not reply immediately. He waited a few seconds, and then his fist shot out and caught the German on the point of the jaw. As the U-boat commander fell stunned the Nova Scotian turned and went head first over the side.

"I swam under water as long as I could, and when I came up I was fortunate in emerging in such a position that one of the small boats was between me and the submarine."

FINDS CHEROKEE WAS UNFIT

Court of Inquiry Also Says Lost Tug Was Badly Handled.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Secretary Daniels today submitted to the House Naval Committee and made public the reports of the Board of Investigation and the later Court of Inquiry which were appointed to determine the responsibility for the foundering in a gale off Cape Henlopen on Feb. 27, 1918, of the naval tug Cherokee, with a loss of thirty lives, including that of Lieutenant E. D. Newell, the commanding offficer. Both the Board of Investigation and the Court of Inquiry found that the loss of the tug was caused by the fact that the vessel was not in the most seaworthy condition and by errors of judgment, if not inferior seamanship, in handling the vessel.

The Cherokee was formerly the Edgar F. Luckenbach, and was taken over by the Government in the Fall of 1917 from the Luckenbach Steamship Company.

WARTIME CURRENCY NEXT.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Designed for the nation's first wartime currency, Federal Reserve Bank notes of $1 and $2 denominations today were approved by the Treasury, and the new bills will appear in general circulation about July 4.

A symbol of the war period is given to the reverse side of the $2 note in the design of one of the newest battleships. The face of the $2 notes bears a portrait of Thomas Jefferson. The face of the $1 note carries a portrait of George Washington, and the reverse side has a design of the spread eagle in warlike attitude clutching the American flag.

The bills are intended to replace silver certificates, about $30,000,000 of which have been withdrawn from circulation in the last two weeks, as the silver which secured them was melted into bullion under the new Silver act.

Why Not Bring Style Closer To Service

THE average man has no interest in a confusing variety of shoe styles. He wants a shoe to fit his foot—on a last endorsed by the leaders in foot fashions.

He gets what he wants here—100% shoe value and dependability—and he gets it cheaper. He isn't paying for a lot of odds and ends, "out of styles" and "left overs"—by-products of catch-fancy styling. And a store like this can always afford to have his size in stock.

The Regal Shoe Company, as a nation-wide institution, standardizes shoe values—concentrates all its factories exclusively on the most wanted lasts and leathers, cuts out the waste—sells the right style in a shoe that gives service on your foot.

We expect to be in business a long while.

TAMMANY WELCOMES WOMEN IN COUNCIL

MRS. VIBBARD IS HEARD

"Most Pleasant Session the Executive Committee Ever Held," Is Alfred E. Smith's Comment.

Tammany tradition was completely upset yesterday when the Fourteenth Street organization elected thirty-two women as members of its Executive Committee. Henceforth women will be on the same footing as the men in every Tammany district in the city and in the councils of the wigwam where Charles F. Murphy presides. There are five women district leaders yet to be selected, but they will be chosen within a few days, and then the organization will boast of seventy-four district leaders—thirty-seven men and thirty-seven women.

Although there are only twenty-three Assembly districts in New York County, some of the districts have had two and three leaders each. In those districts having two representatives each will have half a vote; in the districts having four each will have one-quarter of a vote, and in those having six leaders each will have one-sixth of a vote. The women selected yesterday will serve on the Executive Committee until the Fall primaries, when they and others will be chosen from the duly elected women members of the General Committee of the Democratic Party from each of the twenty-three districts.

Practically all of the regular Tammany leaders were present at the Hall yesterday. Leader Murphy was beaming with smiles and complimented the women on the interest they were taking in politics. The eldest Tammany leaders had pleasant things to say to the newcomers. Paddy Craig, the custodian of the building, had gallantly placed the new chairs in the meeting room down in front and the women took them as a matter of course. When some one suggested that it wasn't necessary to separate the women and wanted them scattered about the hall. Mr. Murphy, with a smile, insisted that the women should have the place of honor. He greeted each new member jovially and some of them remarked later that the "Chief" did not appear anything like his enemies had portrayed him. Many of the women leaders Mr. Murphy had never seen before. The women appeared to be perfectly at ease, and one of them, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Vibbard of the Twenty-third district, co-leader with Thomas F. McAvoy, made a speech.

First Woman's Motion Carried.

The proceedings got under way after there was a short talk on thrift stamps and some picture taking. Judge John R. Voorhis, 90 years old and the Grand Sachem of the organization, spoke of the work the Democratic organization has done for progressive legislation and also gave a general talk on the technical side of the ballot law. State Senator Robert F. Wagner, Chairman of the Democratic County Committee, told of the achievements of the Democrats at Albany in enacting legislation protecting women and children, especially in the labor field; Alfred E. Smith, President of the Board of Aldermen, discoursed on party election machinery, and Judge Edward F. Boyle also talked along the same lines.

At this point Frank Goodwin, Chairman of the committee to select the women in the various districts, suggested that the committee be discontinued, but Mr. Murphy asserted his authority and ruled that the committee keep on with its work until selections had been made in the Eleventh and the Twentieth Districts. Mrs. Vibbard at this point moved that the committee go on record as favoring legislation in Washington which would put the nurses of the Red Cross on the same footing as regards rank as members of the military establishment. It was the first motion ever put by a woman in the councils of the Tammany organization, and it was passed unanimously.

To give the setting a regular Tammany flavor, it developed that a contest has already sprung up among the women of the Twentieth District for leadership. Frank J. Hendricks is the male leader of the district and so many women contestants entered the field that it was impossible to make a choice in time for yesterday's meeting. At least six women, it was said, want to represent that district. The district committees have the selection of the women leaders and it is expected that the committee in the Twentieth District will make its selection in time for the woman leader chosen to sit in at the next meeting of the Executive Committee. In the Eleventh District, where James J. Hearn is leader, no contest has developed, but the District Committee failed to make a selection.

"All was harmony," said Mr. Murphy after the meeting. "I was very much impressed. These women are real leaders. They seemed earnest and very much interested."

Alfred E. Smith said: "It was probably the liveliest and most pleasant session the Executive Committee ever held." When asked what he meant by "liveliest," Mr. Smith replied: "Oh, I mean the most pleasant, you know."

The New Leaders.

Among the women selected are several prominent in charitable and women's affairs. The line up of the Assembly District leaders is now as follows:

BLAMES AMERICA'S PRESS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, May 7.—The Vossische Zeitung learns from Switzerland that a German named Robert Prager from Dresden, but living in Collinsville, Ill., was taken by a mob and hanged in a wood. It says Prager was accused of espionage by his neighbor because he talked German with an unknown woman in St. Louis.

"In reality there was nothing against Prager, and the Mayor refused to arrest him, as the offense was perpetrated outside the city precincts," the paper says.

The mob intended only to tar and feather Prager, but, finding no tar, hanged him, according to the Vossische Zeitung, which remarks that the American press is much perturbed over this lynching, but "it may be added that the American press is largely guilty owing to its love of sensation."

Republican National Chairman Says They Should Work with Men.

According to Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, who is in New York establishment committee headquarters and getting acquainted with local Republican leaders, women should take a prominent part in politics and work shoulder to shoulder with the men. The Chairman said he was expressing only his own personal opinion, and had no thought of laying down any rule to be followed by the State leaders.

The check was presented at exercises held last night to commemorate the institution's fiftieth anniversary.

WIGGIN GIVES HIS REASONS.

Resigned as Fuel Head to Give All His Time to Banking Interests.

Albert H. Wiggin, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Chase National Bank, told yesterday why he had resigned as Fuel Administrator for New York State after the arduous days of the Winter coal famine.

"I am next in line as Chairman of the Clearing House Committee," he said, "and that, with my duties as Chairman of the Board of Directors of the bank here, I did not feel that it was right for me to try and hold the office of Fuel Administrator as well, and the banking business is my business primarily, so that I cannot neglect that. Accordingly I offered my resignation verbally to Dr. Garfield some six weeks ago, as I did not want to wait until the Fall, when the fuel situation would have become acute. I heard nothing from him about it until a week ago. Yesterday I sent my resignation in writing."

Mr. Wiggin said that he had no idea who would be appointed to succeed him. Three men are said to be mentioned for the place—George W. Perkins, Reeve Schley, the New York County Fuel Administrator, and Harry T. Peters, Chairman of the Coal Conservation Committee of the State Fuel Administration.

SIGNS CITY PENSION BILLS.

Governor Also Indorses Measure Favored by Dairymen.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 7.—Governor Whitman, by signing the Hill bill today, exempts farmers, gardeners, and dairymen, members of co-operative associations, from provisions of the Donnelly Anti-Trust act relating to restraining trade. The Governor also signed the Wickes bill exempting them from the conspiracy provisions of the penal law.

In relation to the Hill bill, Governor Whitman declared that, while there may be some doubt as to the constitutionality of the measure, he believes it will prove constitutional because of changed conditions. Farmers, he said, are forced to sell their products to corporations.

The Governor also signed several New York City pension bills, including one authorizing the Board of Education in a city of over 100,000 population to establish a pension system for all classified civil service employes of the board.

SELL $12,000,000 WAR STAMPS HERE

NAILS FOR KAISER'S COFFIN

Under the stimulus of Thrift Stamp Day the sale of War Savings Stamps in New York, it was announced by the committee yesterday, had passed the $12,000,000 mark. Reports from post offices and the Federal Reserve Bank showed a total of $916,103 from the sale of stamps in the last six days, more than a third of this total being realized through the activity of 3,700 workers on Thrift Stamp Day alone.

The activity was even greater yesterday than on Monday, and promises to continue for the week. At all the tents the workers carried on a flourishing business, especially in the busy hours. At Frankfort and Nassau streets the tents containing the remains of "Bill Hohenzollern," who died, according to the inscription on his coffin, "of W. S. S., 1918," continued to attract throngs who cheerfully bought stamps for the privilege of driving nails into his imperial coffin. One Italian woman in an excess of emotion reverently crossed herself, muttering in her native tongue: "Thank God, he's dead at last!"

In the department stores the thrift banks recorded large sales. In most of the stores a space near the main entrance was devoted to stamps, and at each counter the girls were instructed to call the attention of purchasers to the biggest bargain. Among the windows which attracted special attention yesterday were Best's and McCreery's. Both illustrate the appeal of War Savings to the children. McCreery's window depicts a schoolroom, with the teacher pointing to a sum on the blackboard, which reads:

1 war savings certificate—$100 in 1923.

In Best's window a War Savings Stamp agent is seated at a desk, while a family of father, mother, and children files by to purchase stamps to fill Thrift Cards which they hold in their hands.

Macy's display consists of the interior of a house in which a mother and her boys are seated looking through the window at a battle scene in the background.

In the window of Franklin Simon's store, Liberty and the Kaiser appear at opposite ends of a scale, with the Kaiser having the best of it. A sign appeals to loyal Americans to pile their money upon Liberty's end of the balance to give the decision.

Leon Rothier and Mme. Frances Alda of the Metropolitan Opera Company have been added to the program for the War Thrift Festival at the Polo Grounds on Sunday, June 2. Rothier will sing "The Marseillaise" and Mme. Alda will sing "The Star Spangled Banner."

Next Wednesday will be "Ticket Day" for the festival. Women from patriotic bodies will canvass the city and the surrounding territory as far north as Albany in automobiles, selling tickets.

The pushcart peddlers of the east side took an active part in the campaign yesterday. Looking down Rivington, Grand, and Orchard Streets, it seemed as though Thrift Stamps had been translated into every conceivable tongue. On every pushcart hung a large placard explaining that the Government would give $5 in 1923 for every $4.16 invested during the present month.

Denies Transfer of Veteran Corps.

Announcement was made yesterday by Lieutenant H. Schieffelin Sayers, Adjutant of the Veteran Corps of Artillery of New York State, that the corps in its entirety had not been transferred to the Ninth Coast Artillery Corps. Lieutenant Sayers said that several hundred of the veterans, organized as provisional batteries, had gone over to the 9th and to the 23d Infantry, the transferred men being largely recruits obtained under a temporary suspension of the regiment's rule of making eligible only descendants of veterans of the Revolution and the war of 1812. Still intact as an organization, the corps, he said, was busily preparing for the work laid out for it in connection with the defense of the city.

Two Killed Avoiding Collision.

Two men were killed yesterday while trying to avoid collision with a boy on a bicycle. The motor cycle on which they were riding skidded and struck an elevated railroad pillar at Graham Avenue on Second Avenue, Astoria. One of the men killed was John Bauer, 21 years old, of 318 East Ninety-fourth Street, Manhattan. His companion was Frederick Johnson of Richmond Hill. The boy on the bicycle was Thomas Lillis of 126 Flushing Avenue.

TOTAL OF LOAN HERE NOW ABOVE BILLION

This Amount Will Be Exceeded, as Many Reports Are Still to be Tabulated.

Julia Richman High Wins First Honors with Sales of $1,909,150—First Payment Tomorrow.

The prediction that the New York district's subscriptions to the third Liberty Loan would total more than $1,000,000,000 was realized yesterday when the Federal Reserve Bank announced that the tabulated returns showed an aggregate of $1,002,900,200, with a large number of reports still to come. The banks have until tomorrow to make their final returns and the Reserve Bank has until Monday to forward its figures to the Treasury Department in Washington.

The initial payment of 5 per cent. on the bonds will have to be made tomorrow. These will be effected in three ways: First, the banks may pay into the Reserve Bank cash or its equivalent; second, they may credit the Government with a deposit on their books; and third, they may turn in Treasury certificates of indebtedness.

There will mature tomorrow $500,000,000 of 4 per cent. certificates, but the banks are not restricted to this issue in making their payments; they may turn in some of the 4½ per cent. certificates which mature May 28, June 18, July 9, and July 18; but they are not likely to do so for the reason that the later issues bear an interest rate which is ¼ per cent. higher than the bonds. The 4 per cent. certificates issued in anticipation of tax receipts and maturing June 25 are not available in payment of Liberty Loan subscriptions.

The sales of cash bonds "over the counter" have amounted to approximately $135,000,000 in this district.

The public schools of New York City have, almost in every instance, exceeded the quotas allotted them by Dr. William J. O'Shea, District Superintendent, in charge of war service activities. With returns still incomplete, 524,205 subscriptions, totaling $52,756,600, have been reported. The record, by boroughs, follows:

	Number of Subscriptions.	Amount of Subscriptions.
Manhattan	227,594	$23,847,150
Bronx	91,852	8,413,800
Brooklyn	169,350	17,360,400
Queens	32,175	2,703,000
Richmond	3,234	432,250

The Julia Richman High School earned first honors in the drive with 11,870 subscriptions, representing $1,909,150.

The New York Evening High School for Women and the Brooklyn Evening High School for Men lead the list of the city's evening high schools. Public School 93 in Manhattan earned first honors in the elementary schools division with a total of $803,450. Public School 39 in the Bronx was second with $631,250. Public School 24 in Manhattan and Public School 48 in the Bronx are putting up a great race for third place with totals of $436,200 and $434,400, respectively.

Among the Brooklyn schools, Public School 92 is fifth in the whole city and has a long lead in its home borough, with a total of 2,166 subscriptions, representing $424,700. In Queens, Public School 77 was first with $173,000 and 2,185 subscriptions. Public School 30 headed all the elementary schools.

Here are the high schools that have raised more than $200,000:

Julia Richman	$1,909,150
Boys'	1,343,750
De Witt Clinton	1,160,900

The Pennsylvania Railroad announced yesterday that subscriptions to the loan amounting to $12,051,900 had been received from 201,350, or more than 80 per cent., of its employes.

James S. Long, President of the Surveyor's Customs Welfare Association, announced yesterday that a 100 per cent. Industrial Honor Flag had been awarded to the employes of the Custom House for having subscribed $564,050 to the Third Liberty Loan. Every employe of every department in the Custom House subscribed to bonds.

Speaking before the Harlem Board of Commerce at 125th Street and Lenox Avenue last night, Police Commissioner Enright said that the members of the Police Department had subscribed for and obtained subscriptions for $19,000,000 of Liberty bonds of the three issues.

PRESIDENT AT THE CIRCUS.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The President and Mrs. Wilson went to Barnum & Bailey's Circus tonight. They bought peanuts and apparently enjoyed themselves in the conventional circus way. They remained for the concert, and when they left the crowd of 16,000 people, the biggest ever seen inside the big tent in Washington, cheered heartily.

The President and Mrs. Wilson entered the big tent through a rear entrance and thereby unknowingly evaded the payment of the war tax which is collected by the ticket takers at the main gate. When the President had been seated one of the circus attendants approached him and requested the payment of the tax. "How much is it?" asked the President, and when he was told that it was 15 cents, Mr. Wilson handed the attendant a quarter.

"Keep the change," said the President.

"I'm not permitted to," answered the circus man, handing a dime to the President.

Half a dozen members of the Cabinet were present with members of their families and were seated in boxes near the President and Mrs. Wilson.

W. W. SHARPE DIES AT 87.

W. W. Sharpe, founder of the advertising firm of W. W. Sharpe & Co. and one of the oldest advertising men in this country, died yesterday at his home in Mount Carmel, Conn., in his eighty-eighth year. Mr. Sharpe's offices in this city were at 208 Broadway. He began his career in newspaper advertising under Volney B. Palmer in 1849, and in 1854 came to New York as the manager of the Volney B. Palmer Advertising and Commercial Agency. Three years later he obtained an interest in this business.

He served in the civil war with the 37th Regiment, and during the draft riots which took place in this city was reported to have aided Horace Greeley, then editor of The New York Tribune, to escape from the rioters. Mr. Sharpe organized his advertising company in 1871. He was a member of the Press Club and the Delaware Society. His home in this city was at the Great Northern Hotel. Mr. Sharpe is survived by his wife and a son, Dr. William Fargo Sharpe of Cambridge, Mass.

URGES UNIONISTS TO FIGHT HOME RULE

Carson Calls on Them to Force Reconsideration by the Government.

CALLS SINN FEIN TRAITORS

Unionist M. P.'s Ask Bonar Law for a Statement as to the Home Rule Bill.

LONDON, May 7.—Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster Unionist leader, in another forcible letter to the press, warns the Government of the danger of its Home Rule policy. He expresses doubt as to whether the Government really intends to apply conscription to Ireland and urges the Unionist Party to compel reconsideration of the Government's policy.

"I cannot but think it will be a great calamity if, in the midst of the war, and at its most critical period," says Sir Edward's letter, "the Unionist Party, which is the main support of the Government, should be rent asunder by a revival of the home rule controversy. * * * The action of the Nationalists, Sinn Fein, and the Roman Catholic hierarchy have demonstrated how useless imperial reservations and paper safeguards must be in any Irish settlement.

"The advocates of a Federal plan have here most convincing proof it is not one which will satisfy Nationalist aspirations. If the Defense of the Realm act is not accepted in spirit as well as in letter as a part of the functions of the Imperial Parliament, it is idle to suppose that any reservations will be of any avail.

"But do the Government really intend to enforce conscription? I already have expressed grave doubts in this matter, and since that time it has been made clear by Minister Barnes that no such intention exists, at all events until home rule has become law.

"The appointment as Chief Secretary for Ireland of Edward Shortt, who opposed conscription for Ireland, is an indication in the same direction. Do the Government really contemplate that after setting up an Irish Government opposed to conscription its first action will be to fall foul of a Government of their own creation? It is evident that the situation is so changed that a vast body of the Southern Irish Unionists no longer support the action of Viscount Midleton and the Southern Unionist delegates at the convention. May I add also that the Government has the clearest evidence in its possession that the Sinn Fein organization is and has been in alliance with Germany?

"Have the Government calculated what part that organization will play in the new Irish Government? Where, then, does the benefit to the prosecution of the war come in? That is and must be the paramount consideration."

Then, referring to the manner of "loyal Ulster, waiting in calm confidence that specific pledges to her will be redeemed," Sir Edward says:

"This calm, it must be recollected, is an indication not of weakness, but of strength. I appeal, therefore, to the Unionist members of the Government and to the Unionist Party to compel a reconsideration of this matter before we have fratricidal conflict at a time when our whole energy should be devoted to the prosecution of the war."

The Unionist members of Parliament are signing a requisition asking Andrew Bonar Law, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, to summon a party meeting for Thursday in order that a full statement may be made concerning the Home Rule bill.

Ireland remains remarkably quiet, says the Dublin correspondent of The Daily Mail in reporting on conditions there incident to the anti-conscription campaign.

"Although the Church is raising," he adds, "an enormous 'national defense fund' which is ostensibly being collected to fight conscription, it apparently does not prefer to accept responsibility for the manner in which the money is spent, and control of the fund has passed into the hands of the Sinn Fein. The lists of names of men who signed the anti-conscription pledge under the direction of the priests is said to be in the hands of Sinn Feiners as a basis for a registration system.

"Conditions appear daily to be growing worse as Nationalism is being spread further along on the Sinn Fein flood. Moderate men of the Irish Convention have faded out of public recognition, and it is quite obvious that whatever are the Government's Home Rule proposals they will be rejected contemptuously by the bulk of the country and denounced more passionately than was conscription.

"The shortage of silver continues very acute, and difficulty in making change has almost paralyzed business in some towns. Postage stamps are being used in the midlands and in the west instead of coin. The Bank of Ireland has received in the last three months a supply of silver five times greater as compared with the same period in previous years, but as long as the hoarding continues all efforts to meet the shortage probably will be futile."

DUBLIN, May 7.—Denial that the Irish Episcopate was influenced by the Vatican in opposing conscription was made in a speech at Thurles on Monday by the Most Rev. John Harty, Archbishop of Cashel. All talk about any action by the Pope, he said, arose in the imagination of some English bigots who had attempted by a cry of "No Popery" to intimidate the Irish Bishops.

The English Catholic Union, he added, talked of appealing to the Holy See, but it did not represent all the Catholics in England. Archbishop Harty continued:

"If they appeal to the Holy See, it is not the Irish Bishops who will suffer."

The Irish Bishops had interfered in the conscription issue, he declared, because conscription raised moral and religious questions.

COLT'S REFUSES STATEMENT

But Reports of Slow Deliveries of Guns Are Discredited in Hartford.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., May 7.—Officials of Colt's Patent Fire Arms Manufacturing Company declined tonight to give out information that would either confirm or deny the reports regarding the alleged failure in the production of heavy Browning guns.

However, it is asserted that many of the statements made in the newspapers are beyond belief. One said that 3,000 Browning heavy guns were to be delivered in June of this year. This statement is said to be absolutely untrue, as it would be a physical impossibility to manufacture and deliver that number of guns by next month.

Another article said that no Browning guns could be delivered this year. It is asserted that all promised deliveries will be made by the Colt Company.

Nearly a year ago the Colt Company discontinued its commercial business, and at the present time it is engaged in Government work to the extent of at least 95 per cent. of production.

FIGHT ON GERMAN MUSIC.

Mrs. Field Criticises Organ Recital Program at City College.

Mrs. Oliver Cromwell Field, President of the American Relief Legion and Chairman of the American Defence Society's committee for supressing all things German, announced yesterday that she was going to make a fight against German music. She severely criticised Samuel Baldwin's program for yesterday's free organ recital at City College, which contained airs from Wagner, Shubert and Bach. She said she had vainly tried to get Mr. Baldwin to eliminate the German numbers.

WILSON PROCLAIMS "RED CROSS WEEK"

Issues Appeal to America to Aid $100,000,000 Drive Beginning May 20.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—President Wilson today issued a proclamation appealing to the American people in behalf of the American Red Cross, whose second war fund campaign to raise $100,000,000 is to begin May 20 and continue throughout that entire week. The President issued a proclamation fixing the week of May 20 as Red Cross Week, and urges that generous contributions be made to so worthy a cause. The text of the proclamation follows:

Proclamation.

Inasmuch as the War Fund of 1917, so generously contributed by the American people to the American Red Cross for the administration of relief at home and abroad, has been practically exhausted by appropriations for the welfare of the men in our military and naval forces and for those dependent upon them, and for the yet more urgent necessities of our allies, military and civilian, who have long borne the brunt of war;

And, inasmuch as the American Red Cross is recognized by law and international conventions as the public instrumentality for war relief;

And, inasmuch as the year of our own participation in the war has brought unprecedented demands upon the patriotism and liberality of our people, and made evident the necessity of concentrating the work of relief in one main organization which can respond effectively and universally to the needs of humanity under stress of war;

And, inasmuch as the duration of the war and the closer and closer co-operation of the American Red Cross with our own army and navy, with the Governments of our allies and with foreign relief organizations have resulted in the discovery of new opportunities of helpfulness under conditions which translate opportunity into duty;

And, inasmuch as the American Red Cross War Council and its Commissioners in Europe have faithfully and economically administered the people's trust:

Now, therefore, by virtue of my authority as President of the United States and President of the American Red Cross, I, Woodrow Wilson, do hereby proclaim the week beginning May 20, 1918, as "Red Cross Week," during which the people of the United States will be called upon again to give generously to the continuation of the important work of relieving distress, restoring the waste of war, and assisting in maintaining the morale of our own troops and the troops and peoples of our allies by this manifestation of effort and sacrifice on the part of those who, though not privileged to bear arms, are of one spirit, purpose, and determination with our warriors.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done in the District of Columbia, this 4th day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and eighteen, and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundred and forty-second.

WOODROW WILSON.

By the President:
ROBERT LANSING, Secretary of State.

CITY'S QUOTA IS $25,000,000.

10,000 Canvassers, Besides 30 Teams, Will Push Drive Here.

William C. Breed, Chairman of the American Red Cross War Fund Committee of New York, said yesterday that he was confident New York City would not fall short of its quota of $25,000,000 in the drive for $100,000,000.

"The work of preparation for the campaign by which $100,000,000 is to be raised for the American Red Cross has been going steadily forward since the first of the year," said Mr. Breed.

"Here in New York volunteers have been forming themselves into an organization which we hope will prove itself to be of real worth. Many of us have been steadily at work since the early part of January. New York's quota in this campaign will be $25,000,000, and I am confident that the city will not fall short of the amount expected from it."

Olin J. Stephens, Chairman of the Bronx County Chapter of the American Red Cross, announced yesterday that the quota for the Bronx in the coming Red Cross campaign was $1,000,000. He declared he was optimistic about the outcome, as the Bronx subscribed $13,000,000 to the recent Third Liberty Loan, although not one-third of that amount was credited to the northern borough because of the designation of downtown banks by subscribers. Headquarters have been opened in the Harvey Building, in East 149th Street. On May 18 there will be a parade in the Bronx.

WILSON THANKS COUNCILS.

Sends Letters to State Bodies Summoning War Conferences.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The President today sent the following telegram to the New Jersey State Council of Defense:

"May I not express to the war workers of New Jersey my profound appreciation of the public spirit that has led you to call a war conference at Trenton on May 7? In our fight for the rights of free men the world over your efforts and the efforts of your fellow-citizens are a vital factor. Your determination to perform the necessary labor and accept the necessary sacrifice and the like spirit which has now become manifest throughout our nation reassure a stricken world that our ideals of justice and humanity and liberty shall in the end prevail. WOODROW WILSON."

Similar telegrams have been sent by the President to the State Councils of Defense in all States holding war conferences this month.

SALVATIONISTS START DRIVE

$35,747.45 Is Raised Toward the Goal of $250,000.

The first full day of the week's campaign for the $250,000 which the General War Work Committee of the Salvation Army is attempting to raise in this city saw hundreds of workers throughout the five boroughs working for subscriptions yesterday. When the results of the day's work were announced last night it was said that no full reports had been received as yet from Brooklyn, Queens, and the Bronx, but that the subscriptions yesterday had totaled $6,597.45 in Manhattan and $1,150 in Richmond. With the $28,000 of advance subscriptions the fund now amounts to $35,747.45.

WEAR OUT YOUR CLOTHING

Individual Thrift Will Avert Evils of Forced Curtailment of Industry, Officials Hold.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The Council of National Defense, with the sanction of the War Industries Board, is soon to begin a nation wide economy campaign of the proportions of the food conservation drive. State councils have been asked to co-operate. Much literature will be distributed, and the Four-Minute Men may be called upon to aid in placing the facts before the country.

The authorities want the people to refrain from extravagance and save money to buy Liberty bonds and War Savings Stamps. It is held that such a movement, involving millions of people, not only would conserve the finances of the nation for the advancement of the war, but also would bring about curtailment of less essential industries and save tremendous quantities of materials for war purposes.

Walter S. Gifford, Director of the Council, and Julius Rosenwald, a member of the Advisory Committee, gave their views today of the effort which the American people should make to help win the war by practising economy.

"The plan we have outlined," said Mr. Gifford, "will help answer the question, 'What can I do to aid in winning the war?' Every one who practises economy will be doing a most vital thing.

"I believe we are rapidly coming to a time when people who practise extravagance will be looked upon as slackers. A person who is overdressed in such a time as this ought to be looked upon with disfavor, not as one who attracts envy. We should all feel that it is the patriotic thing to wear clothes as long as we can. Let's buy a suit, or dress, when it is necessary, but not when it is purely a luxury, and we already have enough."

"The sooner that spirit is awakened in our people," said Mr. Rosenwald, "the better for every one concerned—except the Kaiser. A nation is great and powerful to the extent that its people are thrifty. We should all adjust ourselves to the conditions faced; the sooner we do that the sooner shall we win the war."

Official Statement Issued.

Mr. Gifford made public this statement, authorized by the members of the Council of National Defense and other Government officials:

"The Council of National Defense and the Advisory Commission of the council believe that a concerted effort for economy by the people of the nation will not only go far toward paying America's expenses in the war, but will also reduce consumption of raw and manufactured materials essential to the conduct of the war.

"The council urges all to refrain from unnecessary expenditures of every kind and to bear constantly in mind that only one thing is of real importance, and that is the winning of the war.

"The nation's resources in man power, money, transportation, foodstuffs, raw materials, and fuel have already been subjected to heavy strain, and it is the clear duty of every citizen to guard against increasing this strain by a single waseteful act.

"It is most creditable for every one—man and woman, boy and girl—to be economical in dress, food, and manner of living. Every evidence of helpful self-denial on the part of all in a time like this is most commendable.

"This war is more than a conflict between armies; it is a contest to which every man, woman, and child can and should render assistance. Thrift and economy is not only a patriotic privilege. It is a duty."

Mr. Gifford said that all angles of the question had received careful consideration, including that of disturbance of labor. It was felt that the change would come about so slowly that labor would adjust itself without serious disturbance.

Better Than Forced Curtailment.

"The advisability of making public a list of so-called nonessentials or less-essentials has been thoroughly discussed," said Mr. Gifford, "and it was decided not to take that step. We found that it was almost impossible to discriminate between essentials and nonessentials—in fact, we came to the conclusion that there was nothing which might be called absolutely nonessential. but if the people themselves will refuse to buy things which they know are luxuries to them, and conserve their money instead, this voluntary action may solve the problem.

"This campaign applies to the very rich, as well as to people who have not so much money to spend, and we hope that it will prevent a condition which might be caused by compulsory curtailment of industries, which would make many things available only to the rich, because the supply would be suddenly cut down. If all practice economy and the curtailment of industries is the result of the falling off in the demand for articles, there would not be the excuse for a jump in prices which would follow the suspension of the laws of supply and demand."

Mr. Gifford said that asking the people to cut down their expenses in connection with moving-picture houses and theatres had not been considered.

"We didn't look upon places of amusement as in the luxury class at this time," he said.

WILL DEFY SUBMARINES TO SHIP GRAIN TO SWISS

Stovall Assures Berne That Germany's Threats Will Not Deter Us.

BERNE, May 7.—Pleasant A. Stovall, the American Minister to Switzerland, has notified the Swiss Government that shipments of American grain for Switzerland are to continue, even within the next three months, a period of delay which Germany has declared to be necessary for the communication of orders to German submarines concerning the future safe conduct of grain ships with cargoes for Switzerland. The American note says that this delay would be equivalent to maintaining an armed blockade against Switzerland, and adds:

"The Government of the United States accepts the challenge. Two ships flying the American flag are at the present moment on their way to a French Atlantic port loaded with wheat for Switzerland, escorted by the American Navy."

APPROVES OVERMAN BILL.

House Judiciary Committee, 15 to 1, Orders Favorable Report.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The Overman bill granting broad powers to the President to reorganize and co-ordinate government departments was ordered favorably reported to the House today by the Judiciary Committee by a vote of 15 to 1.

An amendment by Representative Walsh, Republican, of Massachusetts, to exempt the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Federal Reserve Board was defeated, 12 to 6. Another proposal to change the language of some sections was defeated without a record vote.

Chairman Webb announced efforts would be made to bring the bill to an early vote.

SHOWS 'THE DANCING GIRL.'

Gustav Amberg Gives a German Play Its First Production Here.

A brief supplementary season of German drama began at the Irving Place Theatre last night with the first production in this country of a play called "Die Tänzerin," ("The Dancing Girl,") the work of Melchior Lengyel. The production was made under the direction of Gustav Amberg, formerly director of the Irving Place company, and lobby gossip was to the effect that the piece was being staged principally in an effort to decide upon its possibilities for the English-speaking stage. Color was lent to this theory by the presence in the audience of a number of well-known theatrical figures.

The piece, which tells the story of an actress compelled to decide between a lover and a career, is classed as a comedy, but it is only in the continental sense of the word (there every play not a tragedy is regarded as a comedy) that the piece falls within that classification. The American adapter is likely to find himself with no inconsiderable task on his hands. The second act of the piece is the best; the others are rather overfurnished with words. It is possible, also, that good taste would dictate one or two radical changes.

The piece is well played at the Irving Place by a cast which includes Jenny Valliere as the dancing girl and Hans Unterkirchner as the lover. It will be repeated tomorrow night and Saturday afternoon.

DEAN KEPPEL QUITS COLUMBIA FACULTY

Third Assistant Secretary of War Is Succeeded by Professor H. E. Hawkes.

CREDITS FOR WAR STUDENTS

Men Who Leave College for Service to Receive Certificates Classing Them as Alumni.

President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia yesterday made public the resignation of Frederick Paul Keppel, Dean of Columbia College, who received a leave of absence last Spring to enter the War Department at a salary of $1 a year and who recently was appointed Third Assistant Secretary of War. The Board of Trustees at Columbia has accepted Dean Keppel's resignation and has appointed Professor Herbert E. Hawkes in his place. Dr. Hawkes, who was Professor of Mathematics, is a Yale graduate and has been acting as Dean.

President Butler further announced the appointment of Professor George B. Pegram of the department of physics, to be Dean of the Faculty of Applied Science to fill a vacancy which has existed for several years. Professor Pegram has been acting Dean of the Faculty for some time.

Coincident with these announcements were two others which directly concerned the College and the Applied Science Faculties. The first was of special interest to undergraduates in the college department, for under a new provision all college men in good standing who leave their studies to enter the national service are to receive what is known as a "Bachelor of Arts Certificate for National Service," provided they remain in the service from the time they leave college to the date on which theywould have received a degree. When the Faculty has been satisfied that such requirement has been met, the man will receive his certificate at the same time his classmates who remained in college get their degrees. This certificate, it was said, will be recognized by the university as entitling holders to be classed an alumni of the college with their several classes and as being entitled to the usual academic privileges.

Dean Hawkes said he believed this provision would meet objections which had been made to giving an academic degree to men who had not actually completed their course at college and who, in the opinion of many persons, had not earned such an award. Columbia's plan, it was pointed out, would recognize the students who left their work, and at the same time would not classify them with those who completed the academic curriculum. It was regarded as probable that a residence requirement, perhaps of two years, would have to be satisfied before students would be eligible to one of the special certificates.

The other announcement concerned the Faculty of Applied Science and the School of Medicine. It was an authorization from the Board of Trustees of the emergency courses which had been established at the engineering schools and the College of Physicians and Surgeons to provide the Government and the public with engineers and physicians to meet the urgent needs of the war. Under these courses, members of the junior and senior classes at the schools may be graduated at an early date.

In explanation of the dropping of certain courses which was announced Monday as one of the ways by which the university would meet the expected deficit of $200,000, it was said yesterday that these courses and "teaching positions" were well scattered throughout all the departments, and that the only object aimed at had been the economical consolidation of work, with the view, however, to maintaining the efficiency of all the Faculties.

Thomas Again Heads Dramatists.

The annual meeting of the Society of American Dramatists was held yesterday in the society's offices in the Candler Building, and resulted in the re-election of all officers for another year. These are: President, Augustus Thomas; Vice President, Rachael Crothers; Secretary, Maurice V. Samuels, and Treasurer, Henry Erskine Smith.

Anna Held Continues to Improve.

Anna Held continued to improve yesterday, her physician reported, and for the first time in several days did not have to be urged to take nourishment. She requested that food be brought her, and the physician considered this a favorable sign. Lillian Russell, a close friend, came from Pittsburgh to be with Miss Held, and was admitted to the bedside.

MAY ADD $260,000,000 TO RAILROAD PAYROLLS

McAdoo Considering Report of Wage Commission, Which Recommends 20% Advance.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Director General McAdoo will announce soon his decision on recommendations of the Railroad Wage Commission, which were said in well-informed quarters today to propose an average 20 per cent. advance in pay for all classes of employes. If Mr. McAdoo follows the suggestions of the Commission, approximately $260,000,000 will be added to the payrolls of the railroads.

Strong pressure is said to have been brought to bear on the Director General to modify some of the Commission's recommendations, especially affecting the four great Brotherhoods. Mr. McAdoo is not bound to follow the advice of the Commission, and can increase or reduce their recommendations as he sees fit. Apparently none of the Commission's recommendations has met the requests of the unions themselves, which ranged as high as forty, fifty and sixty per cent.

Aside from the wage question, the Commission made little effort to take up all the grievances presented to it, on the ground that it was appointed primarily to consider only questions of pay. The eight-hour day, however, involving large sums, was given close attention. A majority of the Commission is said to have felt that the eight-hour day should not be made universal for railroad employes while the war is in progress. It is said the commission has urged that after the war the eight-hour day be made the basis of employment of all classes of railroad workers.

EX-KING OF GREECE IN CRITICAL CONDITION

Fatal Termination of Constantine's Illness Said to Be Not Improbable.

PARIS, May 7.—Former King Constantine of Greece is seriously ill at Zurich, Switzerland, according to a dispatch to the Temps from Zurich.

Those at the bedside of the former monarch, according to the correspondent, regard a fatal termination of his illness as not improbable.

From the Spring to the Autumn of 1915 King Constantine was a sufferer from a mysterious disease. When his palace at Tatoi was burned in July, 1916, it was said that he nearly bled to death through the opening of an old wound. There is no record of his having received a wound on the battlefield, either in the Turko-Grecian war of 1897 or in the Balkan war of 1912. Rumor has been persistent that the wound was inflicted by Queen Sophia, the sister of the Kaiser, in a fit of anger when he had promised Venizelos that Greece should attack Turkey in the cause of the Allies.

In June, 1915, there had been constant news from Athens relating that the King was suffering from an attack of pleurisy, and that Professor Friedrich Kraus of Berlin, "who is familiar with the King's condition," had been telegraphed to come to Athens. Professor Kraus journeyed to Athens. On June 6 it was reported that a successful operation had been performed. Daily bulletins giving the King's temperature, pulse, and respiration continued until in the middle of the month they gave way to rumors of the assault.

On Oct. 19, 1917, it was reported that the wound caused by an operation in 1915 had reopened, and that another operation had been performed at the Sauerbach Clinic, in Zurich. At that time it was said his condition was very grave.

BROWNING MACHINE GUN DOUBTS

The statement of General TRACY C. DICKSON of the Ordnance Department that not a single heavy Browning machine gun had been delivered by the Colt's Arms Company was not made until the General went before the House Military Affairs Committee to enlighten it about the need of an appropriation of billions for guns, no less than $3,378,302,801 for light ordnance. The revelation did not come until there was no avoiding it. This company was to turn over 3,000 heavy Browning guns to the War Department by June 1. It remains to be seen how many of these guns, if any, are delivered by the end of this month. General DICKSON admits failure, but cannot explain it satisfactorily. He speaks of disorganization in the works, due to the draft and to labor troubles.

Members of the Military Affairs Committee are naturally skeptical. It is so easy to invoke the draft and the demands of union labor, and yet wages in the munition factories are very high. The hard-and-fast fact is that the War Department is not to get these guns by June 1, heralded, and with apparent reason, as the best of their type. When General CROZIER appeared before the Senate Military Affairs Committee on Dec. 31 Mr. McKELLAR of Tennessee asked him when all the land forces authorized would be equipped with machine guns. "I don't think," said General CROZIER, "it could be promised before July 1."

On Feb. 26 Secretary BAKER gave out a statement that the "peak of production" for the Browning machine rifle, called the light Browning gun, would be reached in June, when several thousands would be delivered weekly to the army. Of the heavy Browning machine gun he said that production on a quantity basis would begin in a few weeks in four factories; and the Secretary added that the Ordnance Department had been assured that manufacture of the heavy guns would not fall behind that of the machine rifles, or at least would compare favorably with their production. Mr. BAKER's statement concluded:

> The official tests that have been made by the Ordnance Department of the Browning guns, taken in connection with general machine gun equipment and plans, assure to the United States Army supremacy in this field of equipment.

But when? That is the question. It is now evident that General CROZIER was far out in his calculation that our land forces would probably be equipped with machine guns by July 1. Five factories are working on orders for the light Browning gun, and, according to General DICKSON, the production of these guns is proceeding satisfactorily, whatever that may prove to mean. The Ordnance Department, which does not make machine guns, has become wary about figures of production. It is to be feared that the supply of light Brownings by July 1 will not elate the Ordnance chiefs—certainly not if the draft and labor troubles are postponing the "peak of production."

Assistant Secretary of War CROWELL announced on Feb. 18 that fifteen light Brownings had been finished. He admitted that it was a small number, but maintained that they were the promise of thousands of guns to follow rapidly. Seven weeks later one would like to know what General DICKSON means when he says that the manufacture of the light Brownings is proceeding satisfactorily. In the same statement Mr. CROWELL said that deliveries of the heavy Brownings, to be made by the Colt's Arms Company, the Westinghouse Company, and the Remington Arms Company, would begin in April and May. He promised deliveries by the Remington Arms Company in April.

In General DICKSON's report to the House Military Affairs Committee only the backwardness of the Colt's Arms Company is mentioned. If the other companies had made deliveries, the General, we presume, would be glad to give their accomplishment publicity. Have all three companies had to struggle with the draft and labor troubles? No wonder Representative JULIUS KAHN called for an investigation by Congress. He was prevailed upon to await the result of a War Department inquiry, begun the day General DICKSON revealed the failure of the Colt's Arms Company to deliver even one Browning heavy to the Ordnance Department. If that inquiry does not proceed satisfactorily in point of dispatch, it will be the turn of Congress to use the searchlight.

BOTH.

We venerate the White Man's cause, yet for the Red Man dare to plead. Mr. WILLIAM H. ANDERSON, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, may be, is, more than somewhat impetuous at times, full of regrettable asperity in his criticisms. In the classic words of Joe Gargery: "When your sister goes upon the "Ram-page, Pip, candor compels fur "to admit that she is a Buster." How tranquil, how kind, affectionate, submissive was Mrs. Joe Gargery in her later career. Yet who doesn't love her more in her impetuous, rasping, housecleaning phase, or wielding "Tickler" to the detriment of Pip?

"Great Expectations" naturally suggests Mr. BRYAN, though his are in the past. The one thing hardest to forgive in Mr. ANDERSON is that he smote Mr. BRYAN without provocation. Mr. BRYAN is the blandest and kindest of Drys. His wrath is against the Mocker and the Raging; never doth he bludgeon his fellow-Dry. Why can't Mr. ANDERSON secrete a little of that Nebraska honey?

Great as Mr. ANDERSON's offending is, though, was it well for the conglomerated forces of good, gathered at Albany, prohibition societies and sodalities of many names, to denounce him for denouncing Mr. BRYAN, to call for Mr. ANDERSON's head on a charger?

Ah, brethren and sisters, don't we need them both in the business of drubbing the Demon? Can we spare either the honey or the wormwood? Give us both or give us neither!

THE AIRCRAFT PRODUCTION INQUIRIES.

Although Attorney General GREGORY has been charged by the President to investigate aircraft production with a view to action by the Department of Justice if evidence of malfeasance or misuse of last year's appropriation of $640,000,000 is discovered, there can be no objection to the separate inquiry which Chairman CHAMBERLAIN announces that the Senate Military Affairs Committee will undertake. A Senate committee has no power to draw indictments and prosecute, but the prerogative of investigation cannot be taken from it; and when, as in this case, there is reason to believe that public money has been wasted, the Department of Justice should welcome the co-operation of the Senate. Attorney General GREGORY will be glad to use any relevant information obtained by Chairman CHAMBERLAIN and his associates, who have promised that there will be no "whitewashing." A profession of that sort is never expected from the Department of Justice. Its duty is to seek the truth and let no guilty man escape.

If justification for the Senate's decision to make its own inquiry were called for, it would be found in the fact stated by Senator CHAMBERLAIN that the conclusions reached in the report of the official investigation made by Mr. H. SNOWDEN MARSHALL were in accord with those previously reached by the Senate Military Affairs Committee when it first delved into the aircraft production mystery. In its second inquiry the committee can also avail itself of the information gathered by the President's unofficial investigator, Mr. GUTZON BORGLUM. Both reports are at the service of Attorney General GREGORY, too.

DUTY OF WOMEN VOTERS.

On May 25, between the hours of 8 A. M. and 10 P. M., the women voters of New York will have the privilege of enrolling, so that they can vote in the September primaries. Every woman should take advantage of it; it is her duty. When the primaries are held, they will nominate candidates for all the offices to be filled at the November election. No one can vote in the primaries who is not enrolled. The men, or those of them who did their duty, enrolled themselves for this purpose last November. The women were not then enfranchised, and consequently a special enrollment day has been authorized that they may have the opportunity.

It is as much a duty to vote for the nomination of candidates as it is to vote for their election. If you do not take part in the primaries, you have no right to complain of the nomination of unfit candidates. If you do not like unfit candidates, you can prevent their nomination by going to the primaries and voting against them; you cannot prevent it in any other way. But you cannot go to the primaries unless you are enrolled.

Some women are inclined to fight shy of enrollment because they think it commits them to support the candidates of the party they enroll with. It does no such thing. There is neither legal nor moral obligation. If a woman enrolls with the Democratic Party and that party nominates candidates of whom she cannot approve, she has every legal and moral right to vote in November for the Republican candidates. She does not pledge herself, when she enrolls, to support the candidates of the party she enrolls with; she merely picks out the party she in general prefers, and in the nomination of whose candidates she would prefer to take a hand.

No pledge is required, no obligation is imposed, and unless a woman voter enrolls on May 25 she can have no part in voting to nominate a candidate for Governor, or Senator, or Congressman in September. The law requires that these nominations be made by the citizens of the State. Good citizens comply with the spirit of the law and go to the primaries. The women voters, we are confident, will show their good citizenship by aiding in the nominations; but they cannot do it unless they enroll on May 25.

FRESH AND OLD GERMAN PROSPERITY.

How the Germans, making war for their pockets, used to jeer at England with the stale Napoleonic jeer, "a nation of shopkeepers"! Here is the Kaiser talking about "a strong peace, "which will open new roads to German commerce and give us complete freedom for the development "of our industries." "Our sacrifices "of blood and treasure shall not be "made in vain." That is, we shall have stolen enough of other people's property and territory and raw material to pay us for a few million dead or disabled Germans.

Nothing, as a matter of fact, interfered with the free development of German industries before the war. Not content with economic power disassociated from political and military dominance, Germany has sown through the world hatreds and ruins that will interfere after peace with her expected enlargement of commercial opportunities; and she is now blithely raising up enemies in the great regions to the east which she expects to make feeders and tributaries of that "fresh prosperity for commerce" which the German Mars, wooden Hindenburg disguised as Mercury, patron of traders, has just promised to the German people. It would be refreshing to get Herr BALLIN's private opinion of the financial and commercial disaster into which the prosperity-by-war doctrine has dumped Germany so profoundly.

That curious Alnaschar, or savage-childish, quality of the German mind that builds visions of world-greatness on the mere hope, made more tenuous every day, of a German victory, is excellently displayed by the complacent demand of Mr. ZIMMERMANN, a colonial expert: "We shall have to make our deductions ruthlessly," he says, "from our military superiority "after further great events in the "west." The Belgian and the French Congo will not be enough to ask for. There must be a vast German colonial empire in Central Africa, the South Seas, and where not. When Germany has not a foot of colonial possessions left, Mr. ZIMMERMANN hears the palms of Nigeria and the Congo rustle, and assembles, in his mind, mountains of palm kernels, oceans of palm oil.

Less than four years ago, Germany had a colonial empire of more than eleven hundred thousand square miles, more than five times the size of the German Empire, larger than Austria-Hungary, France, Germany, Great Britain, Italy, Spain, put together. Mr. DERNBURG has said again and again that in time the colonies would supply the home country with most of the cocoa and coffee, the cotton and tobacco, the palm oil and palm kernels it needs. East Africa sent copra, gold, ivory, sisal hemp, hides; Southwest Africa copper, diamonds, lead, skins; Kamerun cocoa, ivory, palm kernels and oil, rubber, and timber; Togo cocoa, cotton, palm kernels and oil, rubber. Germany was but beginning her colonial apprenticeship. She blundered in many ways, in every way, until DERNBURG became Minister of the Colonies; yet, three years before the war, the exports from her Pacific and African colonies amounted to almost $25,000,000 a year.

The African plantations, so rich in possibilities, were hardly fairly begun. Southwest Africa is one of the finest sheep and cattle countries. The Germans so killed off and frightened off the natives that labor was scarce. Let us recall the letter of VON TROTHA, "the great General of the mighty Emperor" to the Hereros in 1904:

> The Herero nation must now leave the country. If the people do it not, I will compel them with the big gun. Within the German frontier every Herero with or without a rifle will be shot. I will not take over any more women and children, but I will either drive them back to their people or have them fired on.

Kultur in Southwest Africa killed half the native population, virtually wiped out the Hereros, who were either slain, man, woman, and child, or forced into the desert to die of thirst.

A vast colonial empire Germany had. Oppressively, cruelly, too often, bureaucratically always, she ruled it. She always regarded it as a coign of vantage whence to nurse military designs against her neighbors. Mr. ZIMMERMANN's "colonial demands," cut down even to a demand for the return of Germany's former colonies, will not be too warmly welcomed at the Peace Congress, if there is one, and our Anzac friends will never consent to certain surrenders or restorations.

MR. MORGAN AND THE MUSEUM.

The resolution adopted by the Trustees of the Metropolitan Museum in recognition of the services of the late J. PIERPONT MORGAN and of his son to the Museum, and, through the Museum, to the entire community, calls at the present moment for special comment. A chronologically arranged schedule of the Morgan gifts to the Museum is accompanied by a note explaining that they have increased its exhibition function to a point comparable to the richest museums of Europe, supplying designers and manufacturers of objects of art in this country with important examples of the greatest craftsmanships of Europe. Through these the artists, the manufacturers, and the public have come into possession of a body of documents to which they may refer, not for the ignoble purpose of slavish copying, but to increase their knowledge of types of design and methods of workmanship, to correct their taste and vision in working for the present by the best achievements of the past, and to accustom their minds to constant association with excellence in their own lines of endeavor.

The closing paragraph of the minute entered in the records of the corporation of the Museum connects this material with the spirit in which Mr. MORGAN planned to have it made of use to the community:

> Incalculable in value as are these gifts, they should not obscure the memory of Mr. MORGAN's service to American art and American education in art as President of the Museum. When he came to the Presidency the Museum had passed through the period of early struggles and local significance, and the point had been reached when the question was to be determined whether the original impulse was to spend itself, satisfied with a local and provincial success, or whether, on the other hand, the institution was to be developed into one of the great museums and educational influences of the world. Mr. MORGAN's Presidency decided that question.

Those who have followed the course of the Museum realize that to turn the latent energy of its collections into a powerful educational force, reaching to the most remote corners of the city in which it is placed and beyond to the area still barren of museum influences, was a greater service than even the giving of multitudinous and incalculably valuable objects to augment the collections. The two services united should go far toward making possible a development of industrial art in this country adequate to the immeasurable need brought about by the war. The necessary documents and the spirit of encouragement have been contributed. The Museum staff is redoubling its efforts to let both the special and general public know what it can and is eager to do for them. It now remains for the industries to recognize their opportunity and for the public to demand a standard of design and workmanship worthy of these traditions of the past made accessible and familiar to them by Mr. MORGAN's farsighted policy of giving.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Their Last Excuse Is Rejected.

Of course the pacifists and pro-Germans—if one must continue to make a distinction without a difference—will not have their opinions of the draft law changed in the slightest degree by the decision of the Supreme Court. They attacked that law for reasons entirely unrelated to its constitutionality, but as those reasons were either a vehement disinclination to fight Germany or an even more vehement disinclination to do any fighting at all, and as neither of those reasons could be avowed with safety, they could only raise the point they did, so they raised it. Presumably they knew that it would be swept aside, just as it has been, but they also knew that the Supreme Court is a large, dignified, and therefore slow-moving body. Even with sure defeat before them, therefore, they foresaw their reward—and a return for the fees paid to their lawyers—in the shape of delay. For them it is something that the question was kept open for several months. They could go on talking so much longer, which was no small advantage, and for the same length of time they could escape the tediums of the training camps and the perils of the front.

What they will do now remains to be seen. They are deprived of the precious privilege of declaring themselves within their constitutional rights in refusing to perform military service abroad, and this is not quite the time for following the familiar custom of beaten litigants and getting the real consolation that lies in denunciation of the court that has found against them. In the present instance that might have consequences seriously inconvenient.

The alternative before them is a cruel one. To submit to the ruling means going to war, a course which, as is well known, involves some danger of personal injury, and is not to be contemplated with even an approach to equanimity, while to resist is to gain the martyr's crown with no opportunity to wear it except in prison, and that is a prospect with no attractions whatever. Flight to Mexico is the solution of the problem discovered by some of the pacifists, but there is probably no country on earth where antagonists of war will be as coldly welcomed as there or feel less at home.

He Realizes the Value of Letters.

Former Supreme Court Justice CHARLES E. HUGHES is not one of the men who, from the indubitable assertion that our soldiers are not in France for the purpose of reading or writing letters, draw the conclusion that the less the soldiers do of either the better it is and that the poorness of the mail service between the American Expeditionary Force and home is a matter of no consequence. He has not made, so far as known, direct criticism of the irregularities and delays of which so many are complaining, but he took occasion in his speech at the opening of what is to be known as the Officers' Unit of the Union League Club to quote with approval and emphasis something he had heard said by General BELL, a man who has had considerable experience in the handling of soldiers and who probably knows about as well as anybody else both the reason why our troops are abroad and how their efficiency as fighters can best be maintained and increased.

What the General said, as repeated by Mr. HUGHES, was that "nothing will contribute in such large degree to the morale of the American forces abroad as to send over to them in every way we can messages full of personal interest." And this was followed by some excellent advice as to what letters to soldiers should—and should not—contain. We are not to tell them our own little troubles, nor should we worry them with lugubrious disquisitions on the public controversies that go on here. Instead, we are to write in such a way as to make them feel, not only that they are fighting for the flag, but that we are duly appreciative of what they are doing for us and that we are interested in all their experiences.

That is exactly right. People too often fail to realize the utter futility of exploiting their own grievances and hardships in their letters to soldiers. The latter are not in the position of men abroad for pleasure or on private business. Such men could hurry home in case of need, even if it were not a very desperate one, and it would often be their duty to do so. The soldiers are different. They must remain where they are, and it is by doing their duty there to the very best of their ability that they serve their families as well as their country in far higher degree than they could by returning, even if that were possible for them.

To Carry Mail by Airplane.

It is as a beginning of great things, rather than as a great accomplishment, that the establishment, next week, of an aerial mail service between this city and Philadelphia and Washington should be viewed. As flights, there is nothing startling or even surprising in the proposed journeys, except in the fact that it is purposed to make them regularly over a route already served, and served well, by other means of transportation. There is something really novel, however, in the intention to make systematic use of the airplane in an employment not military and in recognition of the fact that it is faster than any other vehicle of human invention and that in its present stage of development it is one sufficiently safe to make its powers practically available.

With more speed than any railway train, the airplane has over either kind of telegraphy the advantage of carrying weight, both live and dead. For the present it will render, probably, only what might be called emergency service, but supply always creates demand, and the chances are that with the possibility of sending letters and other documents, themselves, and not merely their contents, the number on which high fees for the sake of quick arrival at destination will willingly be paid will soon increase. There will be, also, an emergency passenger traffic in time.

And this innovation, unlike so many others, will have to overcome no popular antagonism. We all know that the airplane is not the "toy" that the telephone was at first thought to be, and the reality of its achievements as a means of quick communication will not be doubted as was that of the transatlantic radio telegraph when THE TIMES first utilized it in news gathering.

THE IRISH LEAGUE MEETING.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Thank you not only for your article in The Sunday TIMES bringing to the public notice the disloyal conduct of the Irish League on Sunday night, but also for your article in Monday's paper giving publicity to the letter written by me that same night to Mayor Hylan and sent by special messenger to his home address. As yet no acknowledgment or answer has been received, and I am making my next appeal to the Governor of the State.

I was interested to read this morning a letter from an Irish-American in Wilkes-Barre voicing almost exactly my feeling in the matter of the need of Irish loyalty at this moment of stress, when the Huns are pounding at the doors of Ireland and America as truly as at those of England, and her sons are answering to the call of conscription here for the defense of freedom. Why should the objections of a few in Ireland be forced to the front in our midst and be expressed in public in the metropolis of America?

The meeting was honeycombed with Germans, who must have gloated over the opportunity to weaken at such a critical time the unity and strength of New York.

I appreciate, having worked for many years among the poor of New York, that a large number were led astray by a few. Mayor Hylan not only knew what the nature of that meeting was to be, and he should have forbidden it, but he refused to see that the building was sufficiently policed to enable the officers to defend the rights of American citizens present in large numbers. If that had been ordered, when the critical moment came and the traitorous sentiments demanded the arrest of the speaker and the dismissal of the meeting, this could have been carried out. Instead, the loyal American citizens were disgracefully handled by the police and appealed to to leave the building to avoid a riot. It was only out of deference to Mrs. Oakman, (née Marquand,) who was my guest and to whom the officers appealed to induce me to go out, that I consented to leave the hall.

Y. M. C. A. Work for French Soldiers

In a letter published in THE TIMES of March 5 R. D. Holmes protests against the excess of "religion" and the absence of cards in Y. M. C. A. huts in France. I am not in a position to speak with authority of the work in either the British or American Army, but I hope that neither Mr. Holmes's letter nor the editorial to which he refers gives the impression that any such charge can be brought against Y. M. C. A. work in the French Army. In the "foyers," as the French huts are called, religious services and religious discussion are absolutely prohibited, while cards are not only allowed, but provided by the association. There is plenty of religion in these foyers, but it finds its expression in patriotic and humanitarian activity, not in organized services or Puritanical restrictions. I think this fact should be emphasized, for there must be many Americans who would be of use in this French work were they not afraid of seeming to yield too much to orthodoxy.

H. CARRINGTON LANCASTER,

He Explains His Attitude Toward America, Russia, and Germany.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Letters received recently from friends inform me that malicious rumors are being spread in certain quarters with the evident object of discrediting my name in the eyes of the American public by misrepresenting me as disloyal and anti-American. In view of such a pernicious campaign, (the purpose of which at this particular time is obvious,) will you permit me to say a few words through the medium of your paper?

I love, and have loved, this country ever since I first set foot on its soil, eighteen years ago. I owe to America a big debt of affection and gratitude. Here I have found my wife—the daughter of one of America's most cherished and beloved citizens. Our only child was born here. Nowhere has my art been more generously appreciated than in this country. Most of our best and dearest friends are Americans. What we owe to this country we fully realize, and we have been trying as best we can to prove it. I do not believe that gratitude and affection can be fully expressed in dollars and cents, but for the information of those who believe that no feeling is real unless its manifestation is tangible, I may mention that since America entered the war my wife has been successful in selling many thousand dollars' worth of Liberty bonds, besides which she and I have acquired for ourselves all the Liberty bonds we could afford. Is this pro-American or anti? We have been contributing liberally to several war charity organizations, and it is my intention as long as the war will last to donate at least one-half of my professional earnings to the American Red Cross and similar institutions. I am not quite sure that some of those who attack me as "disloyal" would be willing to "do their bit" toward America quite to the same extent.

Now for my attitude toward Germany. When the war first broke out in 1914 between Russia and Germany, I had my doubts as to which of the two was more to blame. I knew too much of the Czar's autocratic régime to believe that "the little father" would actually fight Germany merely for the protection of freedom and democracy. This skepticism I often expressed to American friends in the early stage of the European war. This is probably what originated the absurd charge of "pro-Germanism" against me. Much has happened since. Many a man's views have changed. Germany, through her actions in Russia, Ukrania, Finland, and Rumania, has destroyed any illusions I or any one may have had regarding her war aims, and has proved beyond doubt that hers is a war of conquest and annexation. Obviously against such domination all nations must unite, just as they united a century ago against Napoleon. No nation can be allowed to dominate the others after the war. On the other hand, events in Russia have proved that my original skepticism in regard to the Czar was justified. The Czar has been unmasked and overthrown, to the delight and satisfaction of the entire freedom-loving world. Just as at the beginning of the war I was "pro-Russian" and "anti-Czar," so now I am "pro-Russian" and "anti-Bolshevik." But at all times I have been and am pro-American. Those who are spreading rumors to the contrary are not acting in good faith. Having now clearly stated my attitude I shall pay no more attention to their intrigues.

Mr. Coffin's Work for Airplanes.

If the shoddy "scandal" and the Hog Island "scandal," with their happy endings, should teach us anything, they should teach us to reserve judgment when new rumors of scandal arise in connection with various branches of war production work, especially when such rumors asperse, either directly or by implication, the characters of men of hitherto stainless reputation.

From what they have read in connection with Mr. Borglum's report on the aircraft situation many persons have doubtless deduced that Howard E. Coffin is more than suspected of vague and terrible things.

Of the difficulties in aircraft production I know little more than what I have read in the papers. As with other branches of the Government, there was, of course, much ill-judged publicity in the beginning in connection with aircraft production, and this doubtless led our people and our allies to expect more than could be performed. That such was the case is most unfortunate, and it may be that Mr. Coffin erred in his early estimates of what could be accomplished.

But to question a man's judgment in certain particulars is one thing, and to impugn his character is quite another. To any one who knows Mr. Coffin a question as to his integrity and patriotism must seem nothing less than viciously absurd. I therefore ask you to permit me to assume, through the columns of THE NEW YORK TIMES, the role of prophet, declaring my belief that when the aircraft situation has been investigated it will be found that, though Mr. Coffin has not accomplished the impossible, nor even perhaps as much as some other very able man might have accomplished, he has nevertheless done his utmost for his country, that his utmost has been a great deal, and that he is deserving of the nation's gratitude.

Florida Claims a War Hero.

In your article of April 30 recounting the decoration of 122 American soldiers for valor on the battlefield in France you stated this regiment was "sons of Massachusetts." There is at least one exception, as you will note in the name of Roswell King, First Lieutenant. He is a native Floridian and our law partner at this time, having attended the Law School at the University of Virginia and was graduated at the Law School of the University of Florida, and, practiced with me here for six years, he now being 28 years of age.

"AMERICA."

(As the Kaiser would have it sung.)

I'd crush with might,
If I could have my way;
I'd take your land today
And then would make you pay
What I think's right!

My natives over there
Will thwart you in the air,
On land and sea;
As spies, they're on your hills
And working in your mills—
My heart with rapture thrills,
For they love me!

"Kultur" shall fill the air
And murder those who dare
Oppose its sway;
Let mortal tongues be still
Before the "war lord's" will—
The great and only "Bill,"
That's me, I say!

Our fathers' God is Mars!
The people bear his scars—
My sons go free!
Long may the land be bright,
With subjects cowed in fright,

TEMPLE WOOD IN MUSEUM.

New Indian galleries and a splendid room interior of carved woodwork from the Temple of Vadi Parasnath, Patten, are among the new features of the Metropolitan Museum of Art this month. This beautiful room, made entirely of carved wood, was a gift to the museum by the President, Robert W. de Forest, and his brother, Lockwood de Forest, in 1916, but up to the present time it had not been placed on exhibition. It is a remarkable acquisition to the museum, and as far as known nothing of the kind is to be found in any museum in this country or another.

It is a small room, approximately square, to which the carved interior has been fitted. The walls are formed entirely of grill work, it is lighted from the top by four windows, with elaborate balconies, and above is a domed ceiling, richly carved. It belongs probably to the sixteenth century, and in the fineness and delicacy of its carving is a masterpiece. There is remarkable detail in figure work, bands of elephants, bullocks drawing coaches, and lines of other figures. Through the suggestion of Dur Friedley, Acting Curator of the Department of Decorative Arts, there has been ingenious utilization of a small amount of space in this part of the museum, and three small galleries have been formed opening from Temple room. In one of these is shown a remarkable collection of Indian jewelry, which is unexcelled in craftsmanship and design, beautiful in coloring in its combinations of rich yellow gold, with turquoise, deep red Eastern coral and many semi-precious stones. There is an exhibition of metal work loaned by Lockwood de Forest; Indian sculpture miniatures, textiles and rugs, which are arranged to be shown to their best advantage.

Other rearrangements which will be interesting to the museum visitors are those in the rooms devoted to English furniture of the best periods and early American.

An interesting announcement has been made by Director Edward Robinson of the museum regarding the price paid in March for the portraits of M. and Mme. Leblanc, by Ingres, in the Degas sale. Mr. Robinson said that so many varied statements had been circulated regarding the price for which the portraits had been sold that he would depart from the usual custom of the museum and say that the museum paid for the pair 270,000 francs, ($54,000,) plus the Government tax. The portraits will remain in France probably until the close of the war owing to the danger of transportation.

In the Gallery of Prints there is now on exhibition an interesting Goyer exhibition, one complete series of the works of that master, the "Disasters of War," a vivid rendering of the horrors of which Degas was personally the witness in the wars of Napoleon. In a second of the print galleries is shown the acquisitions of this department since its opening, showing the remarkable number of masterpieces, practically priceless, which it contains.

An exhibition of the drawings of the masters of the Venetian and Bolognese schools are shown in Gallery 25 and will remain on view until the middle of June. Canaletto, Tiepolo, Guardi, and Carracci are among the artists represented.

ARTISTS AID THE BLIND.

An exhibition of nearly 800 works of art donated by American artists, art collectors, and art dealers, to be sold for the benefit of the American-British-French-Belgian Permanent Blind Relief War Fund, will open next Saturday at the Anderson Galleries, Park Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street, and will last for two weeks.

The fund, thus aided by the artists, maintains under the official direction of the French Government several American institutions in France for the rehabilitation of soldiers blinded in the war. In August last it sent out a request to artists to aid its work, and their response was overwhelming. The donations—oil paintings, water colors, etchings, and cartoons, some bearing famous names—poured in, accompanied by inspiring expressions of sympathy, which fill several pages of the catalogue of the exhibition.

All those in New York or within easy reach of the city were eager to give personal service as well as the work of their hands. Some not content with pictures or statuettes, sent money as well. The owners of the Anderson Galleries placed them at the disposal of the fund, rent free, and the following formed an Executive Council to manage the exhibition and act as a Hanging Committee: Harry W. Watrous, N. A., Chairman; Howard Russell Butler, N. A.; William A. Coffin, N. A.; Charles C. Curran, N. A.; Daniel C. French, N. A.; Francis C. Jones, N. A.; Carman Messmore, Hobart Nichols, A. N. A.; Chauncey F. Ryder, A. N. A.; George H. Story, A. N. A.; Robert W. Van Boskerck, N. A., and J. Alden Weir, N. A.

A large Honorary Committee of Artists was also formed, in which almost every name well known in the art world was represented. These will help to sell the pictures as they hang on the walls. Their efforts will be seconded by several women well known socially. Not to be behind, the British and French Army officials in New York, to enhance the interest of the affair, have promised to loan a fine collection of war relics gathered on the battlefields of France and Flanders.

ZIONISTS FAVOR SINGLE TAX

Mizrachi Organization Advocates the System for Palestine.

PHILADELPHIA, May 7.—The single tax plan of land control was adopted by the Mizrachi Zionist Organization, in convention here today, as the best system under which the Jews can return to possession of Palestine under the protection of the Allies.

The plan is that which, it is said, has the support of many of the biggest Jewish single tax adherents, including Mrs. Joseph S. Fels of this city, one of the originators of the plan, and Justice Brandeis of the United States Supreme Court. It was proposed by Bernard A. Rosenblatt, an attorney of New York.

Mr. Rosenblatt pointed out that land would take on greatly increased valuation as a result of the English occupation and the working out of the "Promised Land" idea, which consists of the colonization of the entire Holy Land by Jews. The plan suggested is that the land be assessed and valued at the figures at which it stood before the war in 1914, making allowances for improvements.

BUILDING LARGEST DRY DOCK

In the presence of 3,000 workmen and 1,000 other spectators, the second section of the 33,000-ton dry dock being erected by the Morse Dry Dock and Repair Company was launched at 6 o'clock last night at the foot of Fifty-fifth Street, South Brooklyn. When completed the dry dock will be 700 feet long and will be large enough to hold the largest ship that now sails the seas. It is being built in six sections.

MUSEUM'S TRIBUTE TO LATE J. P. MORGAN

Minute Says as an Art Collector He Ranked with the Princes of the Old World.

The Trustees of the Metropolitan Museum of Art have issued a booklet containing an appreciation of the collecting genius of the late J. Pierpont Morgan and of his gifts to the American public through the Museum. This was printed, it was announced, because "the Trustees of the Metropolitan Museum of Art wish to make a formal and, so far as possible, permanent record of the great service rendered to the Metropolitan Museum and to the American people, through the Museum, by the late John Pierpont Morgan."

The booklet also contains a schedule of these gifts, describing briefly the multitude of objects of art, ranging from pottery, bronze, and marble of 3000 B. C. to modern works, which are now in the Museum through his generosity. An introductory word describing this review of the Morgan gifts is as follows:

"Schedule: Arranged chronologically, showing the periods of art and the classes of objects covered by the gifts of Mr. Morgan and his son, and giving an idea of their great extent and variety, their incalculable value to the Museum—increasing its exhibition function to a point comparable to the richest museums of Europe—and their enormous usefulness to the company of designers and manufacturers of objects of art in this country, hardly a branch of which is without examples, beautifully supplied with most important examples of the greatest craftsmanships of Europe."

His Patriotic Citizenship.

"John Pierpont Morgan, born April 17, 1837, died March 31, 1913, was the most powerful and dominant personality in the field of finance during the period between the American Civil War and the Universal War of 1914—a period distinguished by the most amazing development of industrial organization and productiveness ever known in the history of the world. The conduct and control of great affairs during this time of intense activity brought to him a great fortune, continuous labor, and heavy responsibility; yet neither wealth nor pressure of labor and responsibility prevented the growth and exercise of very noble qualities of heart and leadership and human sympathy. He loved his country and his kind.

"Expressing himself seldom in words, but constantly in deeds, he was a giver to all good causes. Generous almost to a fault, modest and unassuming, he did good without thought of praise or recognition. He loved all forms of beauty, and with his largeness of nature and of purse became the greatest art collector of his time, and it will be that his name must always rank with those princes of the Old World who in former centuries fostered and encouraged genius. He was as unselfish with his treasures of art as he was with his fortune. He believed that the happiness of the people would be increased through the cultivation of taste and he strongly desired to contribute to that end among his own countrymen. In his last will he carried on to his descendants the influence of that belief in the wishes which he expressed regarding the disposition of his great collections.

"The one marked expression of this impulse during Mr. Morgan's lifetime was in his service to this Museum. He was one of the original subscribers to the preliminary fund raised in 1870 as the basis for the organization of the Museum, and from that time for all the remaining forty-three years of his life he was a generous supporter of the institution. He was one of the first fifty patrons whose names appear upon the list of 1871 as members of the Museum. He became a Trustee in 1888, and discharged the duties of that office for twenty-five years until his death. He was a member of the Executive Committee and of the Finance Committee of the Board from 1892 to 1894, a member of the Executive Committee from 1901 until his election as First Vice President in 1904, when he became an ex-officio member of the committee.

"He was elected President in 1904, and remained President until the time of his death. His recorded gift to the Museum began in 1897, and for the sixteen years which followed there was a rapid succession of valuable and princely gifts. In the Summer of 1913 his son, who bore his name and inherits his father's spirit, gave [illegible] the whole of his father's vast collection [illegible] in the Museum [illegible] son of [illegible] followed [illegible] Pierpont Morgan [illegible] of his father's [illegible] the purposes [illegible] collection, including more than 3,000 objects.

"The gifts of the father, and of the son in memory of the father, with the exception of some pieces whose proper classification requires them to be arranged elsewhere, are set forth by themselves in a wing of the Museum to be known as the Pierpont Morgan Wing. [illegible] is recorded as a part of this minute.

Gave Museum New Impulse.

"Incalculable in value as are these gifts, they should not obscure the memory of Mr. Morgan's service to American art and American education in art as President of the Museum. When he came to the Presidency the Museum had passed through the period of early struggles and local significance, and the point had been reached when the question was to be determined whether the original impulse was to spend itself, satisfied with a local and provincial success, or whether, on the other hand, the institution was to be developed into one of the great museums and educational influences of the world. Mr. Morgan's Presidency decided that question. His sure knowledge of the field, the largeness of his vision, and his faith, breathed into the institution a new life, communicated to it a new and powerful impulse, and set it upon a course of development the end of which no man can judge, but which must give it great power and usefulness for the people of our country and all the people in the New World [illegible] of art [illegible]."

The brief review of the Morgan gifts contains paragraphs under the following heads: Ancient art, including Assyrian, Egyptian, Greek, Etruscan, and Roman; Early Christian, Byzantine and Mediaeval; Renaissance, including sculpture, enamels, ceramics, jewels, [illegible] seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, of all types; [illegible] of the [illegible] Dutch, Flemish, French, German, and Italian.

PLEDGE TO WIN WAR ON LUSITANIA DAY

HONOR MEMORY OF CHOATE

Roosevelt Calls for Army of 10,000,000 if Needed, and Warns of Coming German Peace Drive.

Determination to fight to the finish against Prussianism was expressed by all the speakers and shouted uproariously by the audience at the Win-the-War mass meeting held last night at Carnegie Hall by the American Defense Society and American Rights League. The sentiment of a line in one of the vocal offerings of the Four-Minute Song Men, "We're out to lick the Kaiser if it takes us twenty years," was popular with the audience.

The meeting was also an anniversary memorial to the victims of the Lusitania, and Charles S. Fairchild, former Secretary of the Treasury, who presided at the meeting, declared that "from the moment the Lusitania was sunk this country was at war with Germany." Colonel Theodore Roosevelt and Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma also denounced the sinking of the Lusitania as the token of the German spirit, which finally made the people of America realize what they were facing.

"This should be a penitential day forever for America," said Colonel Roosevelt. "When the Lusitania was sunk we still failed to prepare, and the fact that we thus failed showed that our unpreparedness was as profound in the soul as in the body. Let us humbly thank our God that our people at last have awaked. It was the eleventh hour, but not the twelfth.

"If we had not waked, never after the close of this war would an American have been willing to look the citizens of another free nation in the face. Thank heaven, we have won the right to walk with heads erect, but I want to see at the end of this war Americans deserving to be greeted in England and France as the representatives of the armies of Great Britain and France are greeted here. We must not confine ourselves to applauding others in a war that is as much ours as theirs.

Wants Army of 5,000,000 Men.

"No American has a right to feel satisfied until we have in France so many million fighting men that the strain will have been taken off the French and the English Armies and transferred to us, for we deserve to bear it. I hope to see immediately provision for an army of 5,000,000 men, and tell the War Department that if they need them another 5,000,000 can be had on top of that.

"We have a gallant but small army on the other side. We have for the last six weeks been sending troops rapidly across, but perhaps most of them have as yet only been able to take the places of the English troops that have been sent to the front. That is not enough."

He demanded a speeding up of industrial work in support of the army and denounced profiteering by rich and poor. "If any riveter in a shipyard," he said, "drives only sixty rivets where he could drive 120 he has driven sixty for freedom and left sixty undriven for the sake of the Hohenzollern. There is only one way to get peace, and that is to bring the Hohenzollerns to their knees."

Colonel Roosevelt warned against the lure of the next German peace offensive, and declared that no tempting terms as to the west should induce the Allies to assent to a peace that would leave Germany in control of Eastern Europe and the Balkans. Freedom for the Czecho-Slovaks, the Jugoslavs, the Armenians, the Jews in Palestine, the Arabs, and the Syrian Christians and liberation of all the countries overrun by Germany during the war were demanded as essentials of a lasting peace, and the Colonel did not overlook the opportunity to call for a declaration of war on Turkey and Bulgaria.

Honor Memory of Joseph H. Choate.

Mr. Fairchild, opening the meeting, referred to the services of Joseph H. Choate in awakening American sentiment in the period during which we were coming into the war, and at his request the audience stood for a moment as a tribute to Mr. Choate's memory.

Mr. Fairchild plead for economy by all citizens, and said that the late James Stillman, returning from France last November, had told him that he (Mr. Stillman) had been so impressed by the economies and sacrifices which the people of France were making and expected to make for many years after the war, because France needed it, that he had himself given up all of his automobiles and every expenditure except what was necessary for his living expenses in order to have all his resources available.

Senator Owen referred to the careers of the monarchs who are said to be the Kaiser's favorites in history, and said that Frederick the Great had set Prussia on its way. "Frederick made all his wars for profit," said Senator Owen. "They were organized murder for property belonging to other people. The Hohenzollern policy has been to organize strong armies, to prepare themselves thoroughly, to pounce upon the unsuspected and take whatever is available. Viewed as a moral proposition, it is organized military robbery and murder for profit."

He read a resolution he recently submitted in the Senate for an absolute economic boycott of Germany by the world until she submitted herself to international law. The very stringent measures suggested were applauded vigorously by the audience, but Colonel Roosevelt, referring to them in his speech later, said: "Senator Owen's proposals will remain a scrap of paper until we smash the military power of Germany."

Signaler Tom Skeyhill of the Australian Army told of the harm done by unpreparedness in various stages of the war. Music was provided by Warren Proctor of the Chicago Opera Company, the 71st Regiment Band, and the Four-Minute Song Men.

CALLS IRELAND TO WAR AT LUSITANIA SERVICE

The third anniversary of the sinking of the Lusitania was commemorated by a memorial service held yesterday afternoon at Trinity Church, at which the rector, the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, declared that it was the Lusitania episode which really opened the eyes of Americans to what Prussianism really meant, and that the men of the allied nations now fighting against the Germans were "in very fact and truth soldiers of the cross." Representatives of a number of patriotic societies attended the meeting, besides several survivors of the sunken liner, and the auditorium was filled by a congregation in which were many men in uniform and many women in mourning.

Dr. Manning declared that no distinction could longer be drawn between the German rulers and the German people. "Those things which the rulers planned," he said, "are carried out because the people are willing to have it so. They stand unredressed and unrepented, crying out for the judgment of God and the execration of all true men.

"There are those who tell us that we must not dwell on the wrongs which Germany has done; that we must not feel hatred toward these deeds nor anger toward those who still commit them. This is not Christianity; it is religious Bolshevism, a cold pacifism, which is unwilling to see any difference between right and wrong or to take sides between good and evil."

After declaring the necessity for war to the end against Germanism as it has been manifested, Dr. Manning said: "We shall give not support, not sympathy, but stern and unqualified condemnation to those men in Ireland or any other country who will so far forget their duty to mankind and the cause of freedom as to refuse to take their places in the ranks. This is no time to dwell on old grievances or on past wounds. There is only one issue now; the man who is not the enemy of the Kaiser is the enemy of freedom. We call now upon all men of Ireland, without exception, to join with their brave countrymen who have fought so magnificently in this war, and with their brethren here in America, who are so nobly answering the call.

"The act which sent those men and women, and children on the Lusitania to their deaths," said Dr. Manning, "was not an act of war. It was in violation of all those rules of war which have been accepted by civilized men. It was the treacherous blow of an assassin..

"The sinking of the Lusitania, the shooting of Edith Cavell and Captain Fryatt, the dastardly spy system and secret propaganda carried on in all lands, the firing on helpless sailors in their life boats, the forcing of women and children to walk as a screen for advancing troops, the hideous cruelties practiced on prisoners of war, the unspeakable treatment of women, and the wholesale enslaving of men; those awful scenes in Belgium, the full horror of which we shall not know until the war is ended; these and similar things have revealed to us the Prussian mind and soul.

"We pledge ourselves afresh to give our time, our strength, our money, all that we are and have, to crush and destroy this foul and monstrous Thing which has arisen in the earth, which bears the name of Prussianism, and to put an end to it forever. We will not hear from any source whatever any word or suggestion of peace until the Prussian military machine is crushed and broken."

The Rev. Dr. Howard Duffield, pastor of the Old First Presbyterian Church and a voluntary chaplain in the army, like Dr. Manning, read the Scripture lesson. Among the other clergy present were Bishop Frederick Courtney, the Rev. Dr. C. L. Goodell, and the Rev. Dr. George F. Douglas. In the procession of clergy and choir the British and American flags were carried with color guards of American soldiers and sailors, and Canadian soldiers, and the military atmosphere was emphasized by the hymns, which were the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," "The Star-Spangled Banner," and "Onward, Christian Soldiers."

EMPHASIZE GERMAN GUILT.

London Papers Recall Brutality of the Lusitania Sinking.

LONDON, May 7.—The Lusitania anniversary is commemorated by the newspapers today with big headings and special articles recalling the crime which the British public is not likely to forget.

The Daily Graphic, in an editorial, laments that the public apparently is becoming dulled to the horror of the Lusitania atrocity. It asks why there is not a commemorative procession this year, as there was last year. If there is not, it adds, will its absence not be proof of the extent to which Germany's many crimes against humanity have deadened the world's sense of tenderness? It says:

"It is because the torpedoing of the Lusitania summed up in one cold-blooded act the savage ruthlessness of the German race that the anniversary of that foul deed should be celebrated when every other commemoration is forgotten."

"Germany has not changed since then," says The Daily Mail. "That is the important thing for all of us to remember. The 'repentant' Germany of which our pacifists prattle simply does not exist. She still glories in the sinking of the Lusitania and the butchery of women and children and will repeat that and every other atrocity again at the first profitable opportunity. That is only one of one hundred reasons why the war must go on until she is hammered into sanity."

In connection with the National War Bond campaign, Baron Rhondda, the Food Controller, who, with Lady Mackworth, his daughter, was aboard the Lusitania when she was torpedoed three years ago today, has sent the following message to the National War Savings Committee:

"Today is the third anniversary of the sinking of the Lusitania. Many events and many emotions have come upon us since then. One's memory is laden with incidents that have stirred the surprise and anger of the civilized world.

"It still will keep in remembrance the tragedy of the Lusitania, a tragedy enacted by an Emperor and a people who flung to the winds all restraint of honor and chivalry. The Kaiser will be known in time to come as the Herod of the twentieth century, who caused Rachel to weep for her children.

"Worse even than the sinking of the vessel was the sinister way in which it was planned and the shouts of exultation that afterward swept through Germany. A medal was struck—a medal in commemoration of a crime. To rejoice in doing evil is surely the depth of degradation.

"The sinking of the Lusitania made the world see plainly the inherent criminality of its foe. On the brow of Prussia was the mark of the beast.

"You will recall your first emotions on the news of the sinking of the Lusitania. Germany has not changed since. Let us not relax our efforts until we have destroyed the evil spirits who planned and rejoiced in such a crime."

BONNET ROUGE CASE NEARING ITS CLOSE

PARIS, May 7.—M. Duval, the director of the defunct Socialist and Germanophile newspaper Bonnet Rouge, who, with a number of other persons is on trial for treason, sprang a surprise on the prosecution when today his attorneys produced an affidavit, taken before the French Consul at Geneva and signed by Mrs. Ahmerd, proprietress of the International Hotel at Geneva. The affidavit set forth that Duval had stopped at her hotel in June, 1914, which was opposed to the contention of the prosecution that Duval's first trip to Switzerland was in May, 1915.

Efforts are being made to induce Mrs. Ahmerd to come to Paris, but apparently she is opposed to so doing. Police Inspector Faralicq is now in Geneva further to investigate an apparent discrepancy in Mrs. Ahmerd's original deposition, as compared with her latest testimony.

Among the witnesses today was M. Dumas, Chief of the Bureau of General Information at the Prefecture of Police, who twice gave Duval missions to Switzerland to collect information from Germany, paying him 200 francs for each report, although Dumas was aware that Duval had obtained funds for the Bonnet Rouge and knew that M. Marion, assistant manager of the Bonnet Rouge, who was introduced to Duval, had been condemned for swindling.

Lieutenant Bryant, attached to the General Headquarters Service for the Prevention of Propaganda Among the Troops, testified as regards the demoralizing character of the Bonnet Rouge at the end of June, 1917, when, he said, serious cases of lack of discipline occured in the army. His services were frequently demanded, he said. A closer censorship of the Bonnet Rouge was requested, he added, but Jean Leymarie, former Director of the Ministry of the Interior and later head of the Secret Service, never satisfied the request.

Interest in the trial is increasing, and M. Duval seems to grow in importance as the trial progresses. The authorities have decided to hold a sitting Thursday, which is a legal holiday with the object of ending the trial and arriving at a verdict on Saturday.

LIEUT. BAKER WINS FRENCH DECORATION

NOW WOUNDED IN HOSPITAL

News has just reached this country that Lieutenant Charles D. Baker of the 165th Infantry, formerly the 69th Infantry, N. G., N. Y., son of Stephen D. Baker, President of the Bank of the Manhattan Company of 40 Wall Street, has received the Croix de Guerre in recognition for his "bravery and presence of mind" while serving under fire with his command in the trenches. Lieutenant Baker, first came to public notice in the war when the story of his work on board a transport laden with mules for the American forces which almost foundered in a gale in the Atlantic was brought back to this country by a sailor on that ship.

Lieutenant Baker, who is now convalescing in an American hospital somewhere back of the lines, was wounded just two weeks after he had joined his regiment. It was on this occasion that he received the decoration. He was in the first-line trenches, in command of a sector, when the Germans started bombarding the Americans. For three days the enemy hurled nine-inch shells at the men of the 69th, who stuck grimly to their task. Lieutenant Baker, when the cannonade first started, was everywhere within the narrow limits of his command, encouraging his men to stand firm, at the same time warning them against being foolhardy.

He was in the trench when one of the shells burst near him, puncturing his eardrum. Through those three days, and suffering intense pain, the young officer stayed with his men, and neither the discomfort of his injury nor the entreaties of his men could persuade him to go to the rear.

"I know the men and they know me," he said. "I think they will be better off, perhaps, if I stick here. I am not going back."

When relief finally came, Lieutenant Baker's command showed a surprisingly small casualty list. His men were cheerful, in spite of the grueling fire which they had been standing up under for seventy-two hours. The citation which he received from the French read, briefly:

"First Lieutenant Charles D. Baker showed presence of mind and bravery during a heavy bombardment of nine-inch shells. Went calmly to his post in the trenches despite a destructive fire, assuring the safety of his men and locating the enemy's mortars which were firing on the positions."

Lieutenant Baker was graduated from Princeton in the class of 1913, and came to New York, where he entered the employ of the Bankers Trust Company. Two years later he decided that he should know something about the military, so he enlisted in Squadron A. He went with the squadron to the border, returning as Sergeant in 1917.

On his return he was commissioned First Lieutenant and assigned to the "Fighting Sixty-ninth." He went with the regiment to Camp Mills after the mobilization last Summer, but was detached shortly after to a Southern port, whence livestock, horses and mules, for battery and transport service were being sent abroad. Here Baker got his first taste of the bitter disappointments and hardships of military service.

While his regiment went to France with the Rainbow Division, he was put in command of a detachment of men who were to take care of 1,600 mules and horses on a transport. He found himself the ranking military officer on the vessel, and, as such, was responsible for the welfare of every soldier and every animal on board. The ship had misfortune, missing a convoy in one port and then being damaged and rendered unseaworthy by German agents while waiting for another. During the voyage a coal port, the bolts of which had been removed by German agents in a home port, got loose and the ship started leaking. Several hundred of the animals were drowned, and for a time it looked as if all hands would be lost.

On this occasion the coolness of the young officer and the care he took of his men attracted the attention of the ship's crew. One of them said that the young man came on board a quiet, unassuming chap, and left it with every man on board ready and eager to lay down his life for him.

When they finally got to France, Lieutenant Baker's quality of endearing himself to his men came to the fore more strongly than ever, and it is stated that his company made living up to the young officer's strict ideas of discipline a habit and a pleasure.

Lieutenant Baker has been extremely modest through every one of his adventures, so much so, in fact, that his family here have obtained practically all their news of him through letters from his brother officers, and men who returned from the front.

"I heard from Charles sometime in February," said Mr. Baker last night, "and in that letter he mentioned the fact that it had been a mighty rough trip going over. But I never had the faintest conception of what he had been through until I heard from one or two of the men who had been on the ship and who have returned.

"An officer who just came back told me that my son had been in the trenches and had been wounded, and a few days ago I got a letter from him. In this letter he told me that he had had an operation and come through it successfully. He didn't say that he had been decorated. I didn't know about that until I saw it in the papers, but he wrote mainly about the wonderful care they had given him in the American hospital. He says that doctors and nurses have been efficient in every case. He says also that the American hospitals for our men in France are equipped with the most modern appliances and are as comfortable as any at home."

Lieutenant Baker's younger brother, Stewart Baker, also a graduate of Princeton, is an Ensign in the Naval Reserve.

WILL REBUILD MURRAY HILL.

New Hotel Will Be 32 Stories, Surmounted by Tower.

The B. L. M. Bates Corporation, of which John McE. Bowman of the Hotel Biltmore is now President, announced yesterday that a thirty-two-story hotel, topped by a distinctive tower, would be erected on the site of the old Murray Hill Hotel, which passed into the control of Mr. Bowman on Sunday. Work will not start until the new Hotel Commodore has been put in operation.

According to the plans sketched yesterday by a representative of the company, land in Fortieth Street, now owned by Mr. Bates, will be added to the Murray Hill plot. There will be five underground floors,, connected with coresponding floors of the Belmont, and it is contemplated to operate both hotels with central kitchens and lighting, heating, laundry, and ice plants.

The plans call for restaurants on the main floor and top floor. The grand ballroom will also be on the top floor, with a roof garden near by. The tower will be surmounted by a structure in the form of a small temple with pillars, to house, it is said, an observatory and several clubs. The new Murray Hill and the Belmont will also be joined by a bridge. The two will be connected with the Biltmore, the Commodore, and Manhattan Hotels by the subway.

NIEMEYER TAUNTS VICTIMS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, May 7, (via London.)—THE TIMES correspondent learns on excellent authority that one of the twin brothers Niemeyer, commandants of the prisoners' camp in the notorious 10th Army Corps, which persistently refuses to remove prisoners' grievances, and for which reason reprisals are being taken in England, now boasts of having been in America since the war began and of having escaped disguised on the ship on which Count von Bernstorff returned. Niemeyer of the 84th Regiment brags: "You cannot escape. I know all about escapes and managed to evade the English and Americans."

In 1900, it appears, the twin brothers lived in Bremen, where they acquired notoriety for having erected a large, pretentious double house in a big park, but after a subsequent quarrel they built an enormous wall separating the houses and the park.

STILL LAMPOONS GERMANS.

PARIS, April 20, (Associated Press.)—The German administrators in Belgium have suffered another bitter disappointment in their efforts to rid themselves of the secret Belgian newspaper, La Libre Belgique, which has stung, ridiculed, and laughed at them ever since they occupied the territory of the brave little kingdom.

With every evidence of pleasure, the Germans announced recently that they had arrested three Belgian priests, Delee, Denis, and Martin, and three civilians, and that they had behind the bars the editors, publishers, printers, and distributers of the secret paper. One of the priests, Denis, was condemned to death, according to information received by the Belgian Government. The others received prison sentences aggregating many years.

Next morning a brand new copy of La Libre Belgique was in its usual place in the letter box of Baron von Falkenhausen, Governor General of Belgium, and the publication has appeared irregularly since. The death sentence upon Father Denis was commuted to life imprisonment.

GIANTS RETURN HOME TO RE-ENGAGE PHILLIES AND GARNER ONE MORE VICTORY

PHILS STILL TRYING TO HALT THE GIANTS

It begins to look as if the only way to make this National League race close will be to handicap the Giants by spotting the other clubs several runs before the games start. McGraw's club came back to the Polo Grounds yesterday for a little exercise before going west. The Phillies furnished the counter-irritant at the rehearsal, and the Giants won, 7 to 3. It was the first time this year that the Phils have been able to score on the Giants, so it can be seen that they are improving.

This was the seventh straight victory for the Giants and the seventh straight defeat for the Phils. The mystery of the early season is how Brooklyn happened to take that one game which the Giants dropped. Manager Pat Moran of the Phils has the reputation of being a man who does not stretch the truth, but when he sent forth the tidings a few weeks ago that he had a real ball club he showed that he would be a great hand to tell fish stories.

Defensively, the Phils were as porous as a mustard plaster. The Giants didn't have to hit hard to win. They just let the Phils throw the ball around until they made scoring easy. The Phils nicked Jess Barnes for a dozen hits, but made poor use of this batting investment. Barnes made up with his bat what he lacked in pitching, for with his two hits he drove in a couple of runs and set a fine example.

Umpires Are Questioned.

Charley Moran, the new umpire, had a crowded afternoon on the bases, and Charley Rigler, behind the bat, did not get through the afternoon unquestioned. You would think that Umpire Moran would have some sympathy for Pat Moran, being of the same name, but when the umpire called Wilhoit safe at first in the seventh Pat took exception to the ruling, and when he came out in the next inning to continue the discussion the umpire sent him back to the players' coop.

Rigler called Heinie Zimmerman out on strikes in the fourth, and Zim could not refrain from emitting several opinions of the umpire he has been entertaining for some time. The controversy resulted in the usual way, and Zim was put out of the game. If the miracle should ever happen that a ball player wins an argument with an umpire, said player ought to be the subject of a life-sized marble out in centre field, where all the world could gaze on a truly great figure of the Caucasian race.

Pat Moran has collected a crowd of players with phoney-sounding names. McGaffigan sounds like a good baseball name, and the lad who owns the title can play second base in fine shape. Two members of the Up family also belong to Moran, Pick Up and Tinc Up. Before the season is over Pat may sign the other two brothers, Slip and Cut. Moran used up every player on his bill of fare in trying to beat the Giants, but it now looks as if they would have to wait until next season to do it.

The Phils took a three-run lead in the first four innings, and actually believed they were going to win. Such optimism! Bancroft beat out an infield hit in the first, and was forced by McGaffigan. Mac stole second, and scored on Cravath's crack to right. Stock opened the fourth with a single, and Cravath flied to Fletcher. Whitted singled, and when Luderus banged another hit off Barnes, Stock scored and Whitted went to third. Meusel got another hit, and Whitted crossed the plate. Ordinarily, a volley of four hits would entitle a pitcher to a free ticket to the clubhouse, but not so with Jess Barnes. Burns and Hogg were easy outs, and after that the Phils did not get a run.

Phils Toss Away Game.

The Giants showed no sign of consciousness with the bat in the early innings, but they let the Phils start to throw the game away in their half of the fourth. Kauff walked in this tableau, and Burns rolled a bouncer to Bancroft. Banny then committed a double-barreled error, first fumbling the ball and then throwing it wild to McGaffigan. This put Kauff on third. After Zim fanned, a proceeding to which he so strongly objected that he was dismissed, Rodriquez died at first, while Kauff scored.

Holke was safe on McGaffigan's error in the fifth, and McCarty was hit by one of Hogg's rampant tosses. Barnes sacrificed the pair along, and Ross Young pushed them home with a singing single to centre. Kauff singled to left, sending Young to third, and when Meusel threw the ball to the grand stand Young registered.

It was easy sailing after that. With one out in the sixth, Fletcher got an infield hit and Holke walked. After McCarty fanned, Barnes sent Fletcher home with a single. Young walked and filled the bases, but Benny Kauff tried so hard to make a home run that he struck out.

In the eighth Holke opened with a two-bagger to left, and McCarty was safe on Stock's high toss to first. Again Barnes delivered a timely tap and scored Holke. Young walked and filled the bases, Kauff facing a full house for the second time. This trip Benny hoisted a sacrifice fly to Tincup in right, and McCarty tallied.

PITTSBURGH, May 7.—Pittsburgh again won from Chicago today with the score 2 to 1. Miller, pitching for the Pirates, was steady and kept the visitors' hits scattered, the only Chicago run being due to an error by Caton. The latter, although charged with three errors, played a brilliant game.

BROOKLYN BLOWS UP WITH A LOUD BANG

BOSTON, May 7.—Taking three games in a row from the Phillies evidently was too much for Wilbert Robinson's Brooklyn Dodgers. Today at Braves Field they were the victims in the major league's biggest setback of the early campaign, the Braves rising in their downtrodden wrath and peppering Larry Cheney and Dick Durning to their hearts' content for a 16-to-0 score.

Pat Ragan, an erstwhile Superba himself, enjoyed the matinée hugely. The eight hits registered against him were well scattered, and Robbie's men never were in the game after Johnston, in the first inning, foozled in his attempt to bring in a starting run or two with men on third and second bases.

Seventeen hits for a total of twenty-four bases was the extent of the Braves' walloping. Fourteen of the bingles were made against Cheney, who worked six innings, and the others against Left-hander Durning, who only a week ago was pitching for the Portland Naval Reserves against Harvard. The Braves got five runs against Durning and the others from Cheney.

The game marked the entry of Zack Wheat into the Brooklyn lineup, the first ball pitched after his advent being walloped out to him by Ed Konetchy. Zack got a base hit and seemed in trim for regular work.

WOMEN'S TOURNEY IN JUNE.

Local Feminine Golfers to Have Four-Day Meet at Apawamis.

Arrangements have been completed for the Red Cross tournament of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association, which is to take the place of the annual championship of that organization this season. The contest, which is to be a match play affair with an eighteen-hole qualifying round and match play for as many sixteens as are entered, will be held at the Apawamis Club, Rye, N. Y., June 10, 11, 12, and 13. This tournament is expected to be the leading event for the local women this season and most of the best feminine players already have signified their intention of playing.

The women's season will begin at Arcola, Friday, with a one-day tournament, in which the season's trophy will first be contested for. The best net and best gross will earn a leg on the cup. The one-day event, which was to have been played at Siwanoy June 20, has been postponed until the Fall, since the annual Westchester County championship for the men is to be played over that course in June.

Along with these changes Mrs. William A. Gavin has announced another handicap exhibition match for the Red Cross, to be played at Scarsdale June 2, with Jack Dowling, the diminutive professional at Scarsdale, as opponent. Mrs. Gavin will receive a handicap of nine strokes in this match.

LOVE'S CURVES LURE MACKMEN TO DEFEAT

PHILADELPHIA, May 7.—An excusable error by Frank Gilhooley at Shibe Park today prevented Slim Love from ringing up his second shutout over the Mackmen within ten days, but could not keep the big southpaw from registering his third victory within the same period. Slim set the Quakers down with three scattered hits, and breezed along to an easy triumph by a score of 9 to 1.

Love allowed the minions of McGillicuddy exactly the same portion of safe slams that they drew from his flinging at the Polo Grounds last week. It was a double and two singles then, and this was the extent of their hitting this afternoon.

Not until two members of the home team had been set down in the seventh inning did a hit bound from a Mackian cudgel, and neither this blow nor either of the two which folowed figured in the run-getting.

It required pitching of the near-hitless variety to hold the Mackmen down, for the lanky southpaw was a profligate in his gifts. He handed out two passes in the first inning, filled the bases on passes in the fourth, and added two more in the sixth and seventh innings. In the eighth he grazed George Burns's ribs with a pitched ball. But all this Santa Claus work failed to produce anything worth while because of Love's great pitching in the pinches and Hannah's unerrring aim when the Mackmen attempted to steal. The big catcher nullified three of Slim's walks by turning back prospective base stealers.

The Yankees bunched their punches in three innings, and were helped along in another by some loose playing on the part of the home team. A colossal clout by Hannah in the sixth inning dispelled the last hope of the home rooters that the Mackmen would be able to cut down the Yankee lead. With the Yanks four runs in front and Bodie on second base Hannah hit into the left-field bleachers for a home run.

Huggins's men began their scoring in the first inning, pushing a run over without a hit. Gilhooley walked, reached second on a fumble by Shannon, and third on a poor throw by Jamieson after the latter had snared Baker's line drive. Pratt's sacrifice fly to Jamieson sent the run over.

Gilhooley launched another drive in the third with a single to right. He moved up a base on Peck's sacrifice and counted on Baker's single to right. Pratt's out moved Baker along to second, and Pipp's single to centre sent him home.

Pratt opened the sixth with a double, Pipp sacrificed, and Bodie singled, another run resulting. After Miller drew a pass and was caught off first base, Hannah hit into the bleachers, and two more runs drifted across.

The Mackmen escaped a shutout in the sixth. Kopp walked, race to third on a wild pitch, and Gilhooley dropped Burns's fly in the sun field with two down, Kopp scoring.

In the ninth the Yanks added three more runs on Love's single, passes to Gilhooley and Peck, Baker's sacrifice fly, Shannon's error, and Pratt's single.

TROTTING CASES REVIEWED.

Knotty Amateur Problem Presented to National Association.

For the first time in its history, extending over a generation, the Board of Review of the National Trotting Association was asked yesterday to pass final judgment on a case developing out of an amateur race meet. The knotty questions involved had puzzled the League of Amateur Drivers, and the decision of that body had failed to please the man who made the protest or the owner whose horse was protested. At the close of the session in the Murray Hill Hotel yesterday the case had not advanced. The Solons were not quite sure whether they hold jurisdiction, and briefs are to be submitted this morning on that question.

Local horsemen are concerned in the case, which also involves the status as an amateur of Jesse Smith, who for years has handled the horses of James A. Murphy of the Nassau Driving Club. At the meeting of the Junior League of Amateur Drivers, held at Boston last Fall, Smith drove Mr. Murphy's Marion Toddington, 2:10, to victory over J. M. O'Sullivan's Linden Hall. A protest was entered by Mr. O'Sullivan on the ground that Smith did not comply with the conditions that called for amateur drivers.

The amateur league's ruling on the question was that Smith was a professional, but that the protest was filed too late. Mr. O'Sullivan appealed to the Board of Review as a court of last resort, and this was followed by an appeal by Mr. Murphy against his driver being classed as a professional. Provided the board accepts jurisdiction, the matter will be cleared up with other less notable cases at today's session.

BOXING OFFICIALS NAMED.

New Jersey Commission Appoints Referees and Inspectors.

The first boxing licenses under the new Hurley law in New Jersey were issued yesterday at the weekly meeting of the New Jersey State Athletic Commission in the State House at Trenton, N. J. Three were acted upon favorably. These included the Penns Grove A. C. of Penns Grove, the Troxler Institute of Newark, and the Eastern Athletic club of Long Branch.

Other business of the commission included the selection of inspectors and the appointment of referees to officiate at bouts. Fifteen officials were appointed, including nine referees and six inspectors. Two of the referees, Frank O'Brien and John R. Echardt, are from Philadelphia, the first named being connected with the Olympia A. A. The other ring arbiters selected included Patsy Kline, the former featherweight boxer of Newark; Frank Bruggy, Elizabeth; John Hall, Elizabeth; Walter Campbell, Newark; Henry Lewis, Newark; Howard Smith, Elizabeth, and Jim Sroogh, a former heavyweight boxer of Newark. The inspectors included Daniel Smeidler, Atlantic City; James J. Whelan, Newark; James J. Rush, East Orange; Lewis R. Wallace, Newark; Dr. C. Whitney Merrill, Elizabeth, and William K. Devereaux, Asbury Park.

ANGLE TITLE TO FRISCH.

Harry Frisch won the Metropolitan three-cushion billiard championship last night at John Doyle's Academy when he defeated Henry Frantzen in the final night's play for the title by a score of 51 to 36. The score for the two night's play was 100 to 86 in favor of Frisch.

In the final contest Frisch employed safety play to good advantage, and Frantzen did likewise except for this difference, that the safety was employed against himself rather than against Frisch. Many times after completing a carrom Frantzen found himself in an impossible position for a continuation.

CRESSON RUNS AWAY FROM YOUNG RIVALS

PIMLICO, Md., May 7.—Harry Payne Whitney's Cresson again proved her worth this afternoon when she tiptoed her field from end to end and won the Driving Park purse for two-year-olds without the semblance of an effort. It was merely an exercise gallop for the daughter of All Gold-Bonnie Star, which had proved herself Queen of the juveniles in her previous races here and on the other Maryland tracks. Unless some other owner quickly develops a youngster of merit, Mr. Whitney is likely to strike the New York tracks with the credit of having the best young filly in today's winner and the fastest juvenile gelding in Blue Laddie.

The Elkridge Steeplechase for four-year-olds resulted in a stunning surprise in the defeat of Melodrama and Gold Bond, which last year were among the leaders of the three-year-olds. Byers rode J. E. Widener's Nutmeg with consummate skill, and the Garry Herrmann gelding was able to stall off the belated rush of Melodrama and gain the verdict by half a length.

A field of ten smart sprinters appeared for the Parkeville Handicap, which carried $1,000 in added money. Rice rushed Mrs. R. L. Bresler's Jock Scot into the lead at the break, and kept him there, to win cleverly from S. Ross's The Porter, which was shuffled back at the start, but came within half a length of the winner in a strong finish through the stretch.

The summaries:

FIRST RACE.—For 3-year-olds and upwards, maidens, purse $700, mile and sixty yards. Claquer, 102 pounds, (Ambrose,) $6.10, $3.90, and $3.60, won; Fencer, 115, (O'Brien,) $7.60 and $6.20, second; Gibby, 102, (A. Collins,) $3.60, third. Time—1:47. I. W. W. RECEIPTS INCREASED Prosecution Attributes Bigger Revenues to Disloyal Campaign.

CHICAGO, May 7.—Counsel for the Government in the trial of 112 Industrial Workers of the World, charged with seditious conspiracy, introduced evidence today by which, they said, they expected to prove that membership of the organization increased and that its monetary receipts showed a corresponding gain following the declaration of war, as the result of the alleged conspiracy to obstruct the selective draft.

A statement prepared by R. H. Bailey, expert accountant in the employ of the Government, and introduced today as evidence showed that from early in April, 1917, until September 1, the period covered by the indictment, total receipts at I. W. W. headquarters amounted to $271,220.50. A gradual increase was noted from $25,048.81 in April to $86,809.26 in August. From $3,439.25 in April the initiation fee receipts mounted to $20,670.25 in July. Income from "other sources" was set down in the statement as $11,189.74 in April and $44,108.62 in August. This increase, the Government contends, was due almost wholly to an alleged disloyal campaign, which the defendants are charged with prosecuting.

An attempt characterized by the prosecution as "the third and last trump card of the defense" to disqualify as evidence tons of printed matter seized at I. W. W. headquarters in the Government's raids last Fall was blocked late at today's session. A motion by George F. Vandeveer, chief counsel for the defense, that the huge mass of matter be barred as evidence was overruled.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

An advance in the rate on call loans to 6 per cent. yesterday had no appreciable effect on the demand for stocks, which resulted in much broader activity on a rising scale. As in Monday's dealings, the steel shares again led the list, with numerous other industrials following with substantial gains. United States Steel was far and away the most active stock in yesterday's brisk market and advanced with surprising ease in view of the volume of selling that was absorbed. The issue closed at 108¾, which was the best price of the day and a new high for the year, with a net advance of 3¾ points, making a total advance for the first two days of the week of 6¼. The other steel issues were relatively as strong, Republic moving up 2¼, Bethlehem 3, Bethlehem B 3, and Crucible 1½. The railway shares were irregular and less active, but some of the equipment issues moved sympathetically with the steels. The market's tone was much better than at any time since the beginning of the Liberty Loan campaign, with some noticeable increases in the business offered by outside buyers. The professional traders showed less enthusiasm over the rise than the public.

To what extent the marked increase in activity and the higher prices reflected a natural relief over the satisfactory closing of the Third Liberty Loan campaign it is difficult to estimate. Experienced traders have been pointing out for weeks past that the technical condition of the market after the display of firmness it gave during the early weeks of the German drive was favorable to an upward move, and it would not have taken much stimulation in the form of pool orders to bring out a following among those who have ben waiting for the first sign of an awakening market before taking on stocks. The steel issues have been rather slow to reflect the favorable showing made in the reports for the first quarter of this year, and the assurance of capacity production for some months to come on the basis of Government orders now in hand.

Sentiment over the progress of war preparations has been improved measurably in the last few days with the successful performances in the shipyards and the apparent inability of the Germans to repeat their gains in the secondary offensive. The market of the last two days has been built very largely upon the demand for steel issues. It remains to be seen whether the movement will broaden to include other industrials which have not advanced proportionately with the market leaders. A reflection of the greater demand made by brokers' loans was an advance in call money to 6 per cent. for most loans yesterday.

LONDON MARKET IS FIRM.

Scarcity of Home Securities Restricts Business.

LONDON, May 7.—Money very plentiful, and demand quiet. Discounts quiet.

The stock market was firm throughout. There was a scarcity of home securities, which restricted business. Mining shares were buoyant under the leadership of Cornishings. Russian descriptions received increased attention. Mental industries were in good demand. Otis steels advanced 5 points. Oils ruled active and higher. Rubber shares quiet.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Trading in New Liberty Bonds.

In view of the many inquiries that have been made relative to trading in the new 4¼ per cent. ten-year bonds of the Third Liberty Loan, it is understood that the New York Stock Exchange authorities will issue a statement on the subject today. Although no official announcement has yet been made, the impression is that dealings in the new bonds will not begin before Friday, the day following the payment of the initial installment by the banks. It is understood that when trading does begin it will be restricted to the so-called "cash bonds" in denominations not higher than $10,000 that have been sold over the counter during the last three weeks of the loan campaign. In this district these cash sales aggregated about $135,000,000, and the total for the country is said to be about $235,000,000.

New York City Bonds Active.

Since the closing of the Liberty Loan campaign the market for New York City 4, 4¼, and 4½ per cent. bonds has been active and strong. It was reported yesterday that several large blocks were dealt in over the counter in addition to transactions on the Stock Exchange. The 4½s of 1963 sold yesterday at 96½, to yield about 4.69 per cent. compared with 93, the price quoted two weeks ago. The 4¼s, which a fortnight ago sold at 87¾, changed hands yesterday at 90 to 90½, the yield at the latter figure being 4¾ per cent. The 4s sold yesterday at 87½ compared with 85 bid, two weeks ago, their yield being 4.72 per cent. The advance in the price of New York City bonds is ascribed to the demand for tax-exempt securities and to the reports that this municipality was not likely to put out any long-term bond issues this year. The supply of tax-exempt bonds, dealers say, appears to be limited, while there is a considerable demand for them on the part of individuals, estates, and institutions.

A reminiscence of an earlier era is contained in the birthday celebration a few days ago of A. H. Rosenheim, 154 West Seventy-fifth Street. Mr. Rosenheim, who is 99 years old, is the only living purchaser of the first stock issue of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

Northern Pacific's Lifeline.

The Northern Pacific last year had a sheet-anchor to windward, as disclosed in its annual report, which for this one year at least was as effective in counterbalancing rising expenses and taxes and falling revenues as their coal businesses were to the Reading, the Lackawanna or the Delaware & Hudson. This was the 10 per cent. extra dividend declared last August by the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, in which the Northern Pacific owns practically a half interest. Despite a loss of $3,524,182 in operating income, the Northern Pacific came out at the end of the year with $2,554,674 more net income than in 1916, and one glance at the report shows whence the money came—$5,385,635 more dividend income than the year before, the exact amount of the road's share of the Burlington "melon." The report of the Great Northern, which received the other half of it, will be eagerly looked for.

Harris, Forbes & Co. of New York and the Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Bank and Halsey, Stuart & Co. of Chicago have purchased $2,425,000 State of South Dakota bonds. Of the total issue, $1,750,000 are 5s, dated April 15, 1918, and maturing $100,000 annually April 15, 1928 to 1937, inclusive, and $750,000 maturing 1938. There are $675,000 of 4¾ per cent. bonds, dated April 15, 1918, and due 1938. Both issues are optional on and after 1923. The 5 per cent. bonds are offered to yield 5 per cent. and the 4¾ per cent. bonds to yield 4.90 per cent.

Sugar Acceptances Go Well.

The initial offering of $6,958,000 of acceptances drawn under the $100,000,000 Cuban sugar credit was made yesterday by the selling syndicate composed of the National City Company, Bernhard, Scholle & Co., Salomon Brothers & Hutzler, and F. S. Smithers & Co. All the bills were sold in the open market in less than two hours. Applications from purchasers exceeded the amount available. The acceptances were sold on the basis of 4 3-16 per cent. discount for prime member banks in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, and Boston, with the rate a shade higher for the private banking houses and for the smaller out-of-town institutions.

Taxes on Loaned or Borrowed Stock.

In response to a request from Francis M. Riley, Special Agent of Internal Revenue, the Stock Exchange yesterday sent a letter to the members, calling attention to the returns to be made in respect to taxes on loaned and borrowed stocks. The Department of Internal Revenue, the letter stated, had ruled that no extension of time in filing reports on these taxes for the period from Dec. 1 to March 31 would be granted after May 15. The returns cover the lending and borrowing of stocks both on the Stock Exchange and the Curb. Mr. Riley has sent notice to the members of the New York Produce Exchange that the report of transactions for each month, including April, are now due and must be in by May 15.

They Must Have Steel.

An echo of the recent meeting of steel men, at which J. Leonard Replogle obtained pledges for the devotion of all their facilities to Government work, has come from the shipbuilding men at Philadelphia, and incidentally may explain why Mr. Replogle went at the steel men as he did. One of the big new yards in the Philadelphia district has keels laid on every way, but is only able to keep men working regularly on two-thirds of them, though the force is organized, and everything, so far as can be done at the yard, ready for full speed ahead. The one thing that is holding them back is the lagging steel shipments. Shipbuilders say that to obtain the fullest speed of production on the fabrication plan they must have a reserve of material in the yard at all times equal to ten complete ships, whereas most of the yards have now virtually no reserve at all.

The New Discount Company.

It was announced yesterday that the new discount bank which is being organized by the leading banks and trust companies in this city would be called The Discount Company of New York. The institution, it was said, would have a capital of $5,000,000 and a surplus of $1,000,000. It has not yet been decided whether banking institutions outside of the city would be invited to become stockholders. The President and other officers of the company have not yet been selected. Among those interested in the new venture are the Guaranty Trust Company, the Bankers Trust Company, the National City Bank, the National Bank of Commerce, the First National, the Mechanics and Metals' National, the Chase National, and J. P. Morgan & Co.

Shipping Discouragement.

The shipping shares generally failed to respond to the enthusiasm around them yesterday, several actually losing fractionally, apparently a symptom of disappointment regarding the operating terms the Shipping Board is giving the big companies. Even Marine preferred, with all the "pool" talk that is once more rife, gained only a quarter of a point on the day. Conversely, such shipbuilding shares as are on the market, notably American Shipbuilding, looked up in sprightly fashion.

Spot Cotton Hanging On.

The wide variations in Southern spot cotton quotations continued yesterday, but business looked up, New Orleans selling nearly 9,000 bales at 28.50. Other markets like Savannah retained their quotations at 32.50 or similar figures, but did no business. People who do not follow cotton very closely are puzzled to account for these wide discrepancies.

The point is that all cotton exchanges are required by law to make their quotations on actual sales by producers, on spot cotton, and cannot recognize sales at second hand. If the farmers won't sell their cotton at less than a certain price, that is the official quotation, even if nobody will buy it at that price.

BETHLEHEM PAYS DIVIDENDS

Owners of Common Stock Get Regular 2 1-2 Per Cent. for Quarter.

Like the United Steel Corporation, the Bethlehem Steel Corporation has provided for its war income and excess profits tax payments by purchasing Treasury certificates. This information, given by Eugene G. Grace, President, after the Directors' meeting yesterday, ended rumors that the company might need to borrow money for its taxes. The Directors declared the usual quarterly dividends of 2½ per cent. on the two classes of common stock, payable July 1 to stockholders of record June 15.

Mr. Grace said the corporation's steel plants made a record output in March and that the plants at present were working from 90 to 95 per cent. of capacity.

"At our shipyards," he stated, "about half the work is for the navy and the remainder for the Emergency Fleet Corporation. We have just passed the 50,000 mark in the number of employes at the yards, and by July we expect to have at least 60,000 men employed in the shipbuilding branch alone. We are doing everything in our power to give the best we have."

KENNECOTT COPPER EARNS $19,283,481

CAUSED BY ALASKA STRIKE

Net Surplus on Dec. 31 Was $8,596,443—$7,150,000 of $16,000,000 Short Term Notes Retired.

The Kennecott Copper Corporation's report for 1917 showed in its income account when issued yesterday the adverse effect of last Summer's strike in Alaska. The operating revenue of $16,026,105 was $12,726,752 less than the year before, and the net from all sources, before providing for interest charges and depreciation, amounted to $19,283,481, a drop of $9,269,126. The surplus available for dividends was $11,545,419, equal to $4.14 for each share of stock. In 1916 the balance reached a total of $27,661,713, equivalent to $9.92 for each share.

The heaviest charge against income was $6,036,036 for depletion of ore reserves. The report showed that 78,211,429 pounds of copper and 933,573 ounces of silver were received at the smelter during the year, of which 56,904,650 pounds of copper and 681,641 ounces of silver were sold. The carryover of 21,306,779 pounds of copper and 251,932 ounces of silver was inventoried at the cost of production.

Other income.........	7,466,285	6,092,089
Interest and taxes...	1,318,579	667,985
Depletion	6,066,086	......
Surplus	1,283,754	12,841,430

The aggregate surplus on Dec. 31 was $20,148,981, from which $11,552,538 was taken to cover the depletion of minerals during the year 1916, leaving a net surplus of $8,596,443. During the year the management retired $7,150,000 of the $16,000,000 short-term notes issued in March, 1917, for purchasing stock of the Utah Copper Company. The amount of Utah shares acquired was 182,000, bringing the total holdings in this company up to 616,504 shares as of Dec. 31.

At the annual meeting yesterday the reading of minutes of Directors' meetings showed that in November 10,000 Utah shares were bought for $843,675, and the purchase of 10,000 more was authorized at a price no higher than $80 a share. The annual statement showed that 1,041 shares of Braden Copper stock were bought through the issuance of Kennecott shares for them. At the end of the year the corporation owned 2,565,691 of the total outstanding issue of 2,590,706 shares of the Braden Company.

"In common with other mining districts," said the report, "the labor situation in Alaska was critical. A marked shortage developed in April and May, when the fishing industry, prospecting, Government railroad at Anchorage, and numerous small mining properties still in the development stage drew heavily on the available supply. On June 16 the men employed at the Jumbo and Bonanza mines at Kennecott went out on strike after giving forty-eight hours' notice of a demand for an increase of wages. By the end of July some 200 men, most of them unskilled in mining work, had been brought in from Cordova and Anchorage, and the strike was broken. On Aug. 2 the strike was declared off and conditions gradually improved, although the average efficiency was still below normal at the end of the year."

Costs advanced substantially because of high prices for materials and labor, the report stated, and certain extension work on plants was held back. It was suggested that the Braden Company would need additional funds to complete its 10,000-ton plant, and for this reason, among others, the Directors decided to conserve cash by lowering the dividend in the final quarter.

At the annual meeting C. T. Ulrich, Secretary, was elected a Director to succeed Thomas Cochran. The retiring Directors were re-elected.

The Braden Copper Mines Company, controlled by the Kennecott, earned a gross operating income of $13,041,924, an increase of $343,813 over 1916. After adding in outside earnings and deducting interest and depreciation, a surplus of $2,863,111 remained, compared with $6,945,764 the year before.

NORTHERN PACIFIC HAS PROFIT OF $29,502,685

Net Corporate Income, with Gain of $2,554,674, Equivalent to $11.90 a Share.

The annual report of the Northern Pacific Railway Company for the calendar year 1917, issued yesterday, shows an increase in the net corporate income of $2,554,674, to a total of $29,502,685, equivalent to $11.90 a share on the $248,000,000 of capital stock outstanding. Of this sum $17,360,000 was paid out in dividends, and the remainder, $12,142,685, transferred to the surplus account.

The increase in the net income of the Northern Pacific, however, was accomplished in spite of a decline of $3,524,182 in the net operating income of the railroad, due to a loss of $2,121,199 in net revenues and an increase of $1,405,604 in taxes. The gross revenues of $88,225,726 showed an increase of $7,944,382, and were the largest in the history of the road, but wages, maintenance of equipment, material, &c., increased by upward of $10,000,000.

The net income was increased by the various outside sources of revenue which the Northern Pacific possesses, notably its large interest in the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, remaining from the days of the Northern Securities merger. The Burlington last year, after a long wait and many petitions from the minority stockholders, declared a 10 per cent. cash dividend out of its very large surplus, and the Northern Pacific's share of this was $5,385,635, sufficient in itself to counterbalance the loss in operating revenues. The total increase in non-operating income was $6,110,896. The road during the year spent $11,447,673 out of capital account, $5,211,021 for additions and betterments, and drew on capital account for $2,278,809 of an expenditure of $4,259,615 for new equipment.

President Hannaford states that the terms of the Railway Control act, when applied to the Northern Pacific, will be sufficient to pay expenses, taxes and all fixed charges, maintain the 7 per cent. dividend, and provide a substantial margin besides.

HOCKING VALLEY EARNINGS.

Railway Has Net Income of $1,933,912, an Increase of $557,785.

The report of the Hocking Valley Railway Company for the calendar year 1917 shows a net income of $1,933,912, equivalent to 17.63 per cent. on the capital stock of $11,000,000, and representing an increase of $557,785, or, roughly, 40 per cent., over the net income for 1916. The gross operating revenues during the year increased by $2,496,014, or 30 per cent., to a total of $10,696,484, and net operating revenue, despite heavy increases in expenses, increased by $684,780, to a total of $3,287,811.

The largest item in the increased revenue of the Hocking Valley, as in that of the Chesapeake & Ohio, was the increased return on bituminous coal and coke. The road during the year transported 10,674,854 tons of coal and coke, as against 9,299,499 tons the previous year, and 4,191,981 tons of other freight. Increases in wages during the year amounted to about $625,000.

OLD DIRECTORATE RESIGNS

Suggestion of Committee That Mistakes of Past Be Forgotten Accepted by Resolution.

The adjourned meeting of Metropolitan Petroleum Corporation stockholders, called to untangle the company's financial affairs, developed yesterday into a love feast. The special purpose of the meeting was to receive a report prepared by a committee headed by Judge Delavan A. Holmes, which had examined into the relation of the Metropolitan and the Island Oil and Transport Company. Judge Holmes reported that the old Board of Directors had acceded to a demand to resign and had been succeeded by a new board representing holders of substantial amounts of stock.

The committee's report recounted the history of the corporation from its formation to the time when a part of its Mexican oil leases were sold to the Island Oil and Transport Company. On this land a great oil well was developed after the arrangement for the sale was made, and this development caused much ill feeling on the part of stockholders toward Richmond Levering, who organized both companies.

"It is clear to the committee," said the report, "that the reason the Metropolitan Petroleum Corporation of Delaware could not go ahead was the failure of Richmond Levering & Co. to complete the arrangement made on Nov. 27, 1915, to purchase $3,000,000 of the company's debentures."

In commenting on the committee's findings, Judge Holmes said that it was not to the best interests of shareowners to lay too much stress on the mistakes and failures of the past. The investigation showed, he stated, that A. B. Leach & Co. had raised $4,000,000 for the Island Oil and Transport Company, and with these funds a pipe line from the great gusher to seaboard at Tampico had been completed. The Metropolitan owned seven producing wells, which could be connected with the pipe line, and the Judge gave it as his opinion that the corporation had valuable assets. He asked the stockholders to bury the hatchet and co-operate to the end of building up the property.

"It frequently happens," he added, "that when people venture into the stock market and get their fingers burned, they raise a cry of fraud. I know because I have been there myself. I suggest that the Directors be empowered to negotiate with the Island Oil and Transport interests over the matters in dispute, and if these should come to nothing then it will be time for litigation. It will be for your interests to avoid litigation if it is possible."

The suggestion was accepted by the shareowners in the form of a formal resolution. The Directors were empowered to carrry on the negotiations and report results to the stockholders at a later date. The new board consists of Austin Brockmeyer of the Stock Exchange firm of Shippee & Rawson, Forrest Kaltenburg, Howard D. Ross of the Stock Exchange firm of Markoe, Morgan & Co., John Tutules, and H. W. Getting, Secretary of the corporation.

APPEAL TO RAILWAYS TO GUARD SECURITIES

Committee Desires to Co-operate with Any Agency Seeking to Produce Satisfactory Contract.

The National Association of Owners of Railroad Securities has issued a letter to the Directors of railroads, now under Government control and operation, calling to their attention the fact that they now have the responsibility of representing all classes of securities issued by their respective railroads as the contracting parties on behalf of the owners of the properties, in the execution of the proposed contract which each railroad is to make with the Government.

The sub-Executive Committee of the association has held several conferences with railroad men and financiers, as a result of which there has been appointed a special committee representing owners of railroad securities, the same consisting of S. Davies Warfield, President of the Continental Trust Company, Baltimore, Chairman; Gordon Abbott, Chairman of the Old Colony Trust Company, Boston; James Brown of Brown Brothers & Co., New York; Frederick H. Ecker, Treasurer of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, New York, and John J. Pulleyn, President of the Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank, New York. Samuel Untermyer and B. H. Inness Brown, the latter of the firm of Hornblower, Miller, Garrison & Potter, have been named as counsel to the commitee.

"A tentative draft of contract has been submitted by officials of the Government," the announcement says, "under which the railroads are to be controlled and operated as provided in the Railway bill passed by Congress, for a period which 'shall not exceed one year and nine months' after the war. This contract deals with questions concerning both the operations of the railroads and the conditions under which the owners thereof are to secure compensation for the use of their properties during the period mentioned. This draft of contract has been considered by a committee of lawyers representing the Railways Executives Advisory Committee.

"Upon the final terms of this contract depends the condition of credit generally, as pointed out by President Wilson in his address to Congress giving reasons for governmental operation of the railroads. The President then said:

"'One of the strong arguments for assuming control of the railroads at this time is the financial argument. It is necessary that the values of railway securities should be justly and fairly protected. * * * In the hands of many thousands of small investors in the country, as well as in national banks, in insurance companies, in savings banks, in trust companies, in financial agencies of every kind, railway securities, the sum total of which runs up to some ten or eleven thousand millions, constitute a vital part of the structure of credit, and the unquestioned solidity of that structure must be maintained.'

"To afford the opportunity for the pression of opinions on questions which will necessarily arise affecting not only the actual owners of railroad securities, but also having relation to the conditions necessary to maintain the solidity of the structure of credit, this committee has been composed of representatives of various channels for the investment of the funds of the people—savings banks, life insurance companies, investment bankers, large estates, and financial institutions. Several members of the committee also serve on Boards of Directors of railroads, and are familiar with the general railroad conditions and credit, but none are operating railroad executives.

"This committee desires to co-operate with the Government in the framing of the provisions of this contract, and to be helpful especially in the directions named by President Wilson.

"It is the desire of this committee to also co-operate with any agency which is aiming to produce a contract satisfactory to the various interests involved."

PACKING PROFIT $3,614,530.

The California Packing Corporation reports an operating profit of $3,614,530 in the year ended Feb. 28, 1918, and a total income, counting in the proportion of profits accrued from holdings in the Alaska Packers' Association, of $6,147,940. After deducting the preferred stock dividend, a balance of $5,555,672 remained, equal to $16.39 a share of common stock, compared with $9.36 in the preceding year.

J. K. Armsby, President, said in the annual statement yesterday that $1,570,244 was expended for new properties during the year and $440,667 was written off for depreciation. As the result of transportation delays an inventory of $5,927,430 and accounts receivable totaling $6,266,934 were carried into the current year. Notes payable, amounting to $4,871,350 outstanding at the close of the fiscal year, said Mr. Ormsby, have since been reduced to $1,544,000. During the year 2,261 shares of preferred stock were acquired for the sinking fund and good-will amounting to $306,116 on properties acquired was charged against the book value of the common stock.

THE COTTON MARKET

Close Barely Steady—Prices Range from 14 Lower in May to 6 Higher in July.

May cotton was in some demand at the opening of the local market yesterday, apparently by some of the short interests who, despite their recent successes, still retained disturbing memories of their disastrous experiences in covering short contracts in the spot month earlier in the year. They had no great difficulty, however, in finding all they wanted right after the call, while all the later months were fairly easy as a consequence of the continually improving weather and crop news.

The market was characterized by many followers as a "weather market" pure and simple. After the early decline there was a good rally toward the middle of the day, but it appeared to be founded upon nothing more substantial than short covering in a narrow market, and later prices were weakening again, with the close barely steady, ranging from 14 lower in May to 6 higher in July, most of the new crop months practically unchanged on the day. Spot cotton was quoted at a slight advance in sympathy with the demand for near positions and the unyielding character of Southern markets.

Liverpool sold to a notable extent, while one large Wall Street house with Western connections was reported a good customer, with many orders apparently for covering purposes. At its lowest point, the market was from 39 to 47 points off, but at this level was obviously overbought. It was a trading market, with no other features.

No exports were reported yesterday. Southern spot markets were from 25 points higher to 50 points lower, generally unchanged.

GRANTS BOND HEARING.

An application by the New York and Richmond Gas Company for permission to issue $2,214,400 in bonds was refused by the Public Service Commission in February. Later the commission won a legal battle against the company, which had failed to obey an order for an extension of its mains to New Dorp and Grant City. Then the company asked for a reopening of the hearing on the bond issue application on the ground that unless it had the money it would not be able to meet the expenses of laying the new mains.

Yesterday the commission granted the rehearing to begin on May 20. In refusing the original application the commission reported that the company had not proved its claim that the money was needed in part to refund an expenditure of $1,500,000, which had been spent for needed improvements.

COAL CONCERN PUNISHED.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—For supplying a Belgian relief steamer and other ships with a grade of coal that exposed them to the submarine menace, instead of a smokeless coal, the New York and Philadelphia Coal and Coke Company was ordered by the Fuel Administration today to contribute $1,000 to the Belgian Relief Commission and suspend operation for five days, beginning May 9. It will also refund $1.35 for each short ton of the low-grade fuel delivered.

Under a regulation issued April 1, the Fuel Administration directed that only low volatile or smokeless coal be furnished naval and other ships leaving Atlantic ports likely to pass through the submarine zone. The Administration announced that the company had violated this order in furnishing coal to the Belgian relief steamer President Bunge and other unnamed ships.

THE CORN EXCHANGE BANK
NEW YORK CITY

We desire to report to the depositors and friends of The Corn Exchange Bank that the individual and corporate subscriptions to the Third Liberty Loan made through us numbered 138,776 and amounted to $32,422,300 at close of business May 7th.

This hearty co-operation by the people is a magnificent exhibition of patriotism and we tender one and all our sincerest thanks.

Even more gratifying than the amount in dollars is the wide distribution of the bonds among the general public. The average of our subscriptions is $233. This is equivalent to a wholesale and widespread enlistment of the people in the forces of the United States, and is a sure sign of coming Victory.

Once more our officers and clerical force have given their services to the cause and are entitled to the highest praise for their labors and patriotism.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

The market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange yesterday closed strong and active. Prices were the highest for the day and for the present movement in many of the issues. Gains from 1 to more than 3 points were registered throughout the list at the close. In the final hour there was considerable profit taking with a resultant reaction, but the market subsequently rallied and recovered the fractional losses. The closing undertone was strong.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

It is expected that the Government report on the Winter wheat crop, giving the percentage of condition, will show a considerable improvement over last month, when the percentage was 73.2.

Two prominent private reports issued last week made the condition 83.4 per cent. and 86.3 per cent., respectively, with indicated yields of 577,000,000 to 600,000,000 bushels. Last year's final crop was 418,070,000 bushels. The average loss in acreage during the Winter for the last ten years has been 10.9 per cent., and private estimates have made the loss 10.1 per cent. to 12.1. Last year's loss was a record one, amounting to 31 per cent. The acreage sown last Fall was 42,170,000 acres, or the largest on record, slightly exceeding 1915, when the crop was 655,000,000 bushels.

RYE.

The local rye market was dull and nominal. In the West Chicago declined 7c to $2.50, while Minneapolis was 2c lower at $2.60.

CORN.

The corn market was again weak, the July position closing with net losses of 1⅝c. At the low point of the day July sold at $1.45⅞, or 3⅝c below the high point of Saturday. The visible supply showed a decrease for the week of 358,000 bushels, and the total was 16,111,000, compared with 5,525,000 last year. In the local cash market kiln dried No. 3 yellow was quoted at $1.55; No. 4 yellow at $1.47, cost and freight, New York.

OATS.

The oats market was weak and lower, closing only slightly above the lowest, with net losses of ⅝@2⅝c. There was heavy pressure in the May position, which reflected weakness in cash markets. The visible supply showed a decrease of 1,198,000 bushels for the week, but it was thought that much of these oats is now in transit. The local cash market was weaker; natural quoted at 83@84c, and clipped white at 85@88c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

There was only a moderate volume of business in the market for hog products, and net price changes were comparatively small and irregular. Lard was somewhat lower, while ribs and pork were steady. The decline in grain had a tendency to discourage buying. This was offset by firmness in the hog position and reports that the Government will shortly place export orders. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 25,000; estimated for Wednesday, 25,000. Kansas City received 9,000 and Omaha 15,000 hogs.

COFFEE.

Operators in the market for coffee futures yesterday were very limited and mostly confined to the December position, although there was a trade or two in September. Local trade interests seemed to be covering, while this demand was supplied by speculative interests. The market opened at advances of 3 to 4 points and closed irregular, 1 point net lower to a net advance of 4 points. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

The Cuban weekly statistics showed a decrease in exports of about 12,000 tons, but exports north of Hatteras were fairly liberal. The Sugar Committee reported sales of 21,500 bags Cubas, prompt shipment, at 4.985c, cost and freight; 140,000 bags Porto Ricos, May shipment, at 6.005c, cost, insurance, and freight, and 11,800 bags Santo Domingos for Canada, afloat for New York, at 4.749c, cost, insurance, and freight. Conditions show two or three refiners making daily distribution on new business; others withdrawn for the time being.

Leather Goods Called For.

Leather goods of all sorts, and particularly traveling paraphernalia, are in very great demand, according to reports from a number of dealers in this city. Week-end bags and suit cases, both large and small, are wanted, and black or tan is usually favored. Cases for toilet articles and so-called comfort kits are among the leading items in the Spring business. Though prices are high, the best qualities seem to be the most sought. Small patent leather shopping bags for women are also very popular.

Glass Trade Fairly Active.

There has been an unusual demand for heavy tumblers and packing jars in the glassware trade this year, and supplies have become very scarce, according to reports here. Mills are said to be from three to six months behind on orders, though they are gradually catching up. Household glassware and fancy shapes are fairly well sought, and cut glass is wanted in some sections, though the Fall of the year is the normal season for these lines. Blank shapes for cutting are also moving in liberal quantities. The uncertain future of alcoholic liquors has curtailed buying of barroom glassware very considerably.

Fall Business in Suits.

More manufacturers of coats and suits for women are coming out every day with early Fall lines, and it is said that there are more buyers in town now looking for Fall merchandise than there has ever been before so early in the year. Though the amount of business actually placed at this early date is, of course, not large, orders are nevertheless being taken. At this time, however, new styles and novel features are not as much in demand as the staple lines. Though buyers sometimes complain of high prices, they seem to feel that further advances later on are not improbable, and accept the present quotations without much haggling.

Navy Blue Hose Much in Demand.

Two things stand out in the current demand for women's silk hosiery of the better kind. One is the steady increase in the demand for navy blue hose, and the other is the improvement in the quality of the goods that are now being purchased by the so-called popular-priced stores. Several of these stores, which four or five years ago would not have taken a chance on merchandise of this kind that retails above $1.50 to $2, are now buying freely of stockings that will cost the ultimate wearer from $3 to $5 a pair. On the other hand, there has been rather a drop in some of the higher-priced stores in the consumer demand for hosiery that retails above $5 a pair.

Taffeta or satin used with crêpe de chine is said to be one of the most popular combinations of two materials in dresses for Spring and Summer. Black satin is very effectively used in some of the best selling models with wide front and back panels of green crêpe de chine. Following out the color scheme, the waist part of the dress is sometimes embroidered in flower designs with green silk. Other colors are frequently used instead of green, such as lavender, blue or old rose. In one such model seen, several bright colors were used, and the general effect was very pleasing. Buyers are said to be favoring such garments as those for the late trade.

Weather Helps Fabric Sales.

The coming of warmer weather has had a marked effect locally in increasing the retail sale of all kinds of seasonable merchandise, chiefly the kind that is used by women. One thing in particular that it has done has been to increase the business done by the fabric departments. On Monday the cotton dress fabric department of one of the best-known local stores did a business that, in money, was at least 33 1-3 per cent. greater than that of the corresponding day a year ago. A wide variety of merchandise shared in this trade, including ginghams, calicoes, fancy voiles, &c. Proportionate gains were also shown by the silk and by the wool-dress goods departments of the same store. Among the active silks were foulards, ginghams, and fancy effects that are used in lining capes.

Not a little objection is being raised by local manufacturers of several kinds of merchandise, including suits, coats, skirts, shoes, &c., against the growing practice on the part of buyers of requesting the making up of single articles. Sometimes this is asked because the buyer wants the merchandise for himself or herself, or some relative, but there is an increasing number of demands of this kind growing out of requests made of buyers by retail customers for a specially-made garment or shoe. If the customer is a good one, his or her business is held by passing the burden on to the manufacturer. Not only does the making of a single article of any kind increase its production cost, but it is said that to have half a dozen "specials" going through the shop at once disrupts the work on larger orders to considerable extent.

Will Set Questioners Right.

One of the many things the recently organized United Waist League of America intends to do is to raise the public's estimation of the waist industry and the men who are engaged in it. In other words, it is going to show the public that there is nothing of the "sweatshop" in the industry today, and that the manufacturers of this merchandise are every bit as worthy of a high standing in the commercial world as makers of automobiles, furniture, or other things. Not a little of the misunderstanding on this score in the past is attributed to the lack of knowledge on the part of the average person concerning the waist industry. To "educate" the public in this respect, the league intends to make salient facts known through the daily papers, fashion journals, trade publications, &c., as well as to supply information concerning styles, service, and other things of interest.

Gray Goods Prices Picking Up.

Second hands continued to dominate the local gray goods market yesterday as sellers, and in some cases they obtained better prices for their offerings than have been paid for quite some time. For instance, Northern spot lots of 38½-inch 64-60s sold from second hands at 18 cents, while similar goods in the South brought 17½ cents from the same sources. Second hand business was also done on this construction, Southern make, for October-December delivery at 17 cents. July lots of Southern 39-inch 68-72s sold from second hands at 18½ cents, and half a cent more than this was paid for spots of the same construction in the North. Twenty-two cents was paid for June-July shipments of 37-inch 3.95-yard drills during the day, the sellers again being second hands. Mill asking prices on print cloths closed this way:

AMERICANS REBUKE FRENCH SOCIALISTS

PLAN NOW PROBABLY DEAD

Paris Believes That American Common Sense Has Prevailed Over the Desires of Misled Frenchmen.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 7.—The American labor delegates left for a visit to the French front this morning after having administered to the French official Socialists a sharp but much needed lesson. The French Socialists, as a party, have all through the war displayed a persistent desire to resume contact with the German and Austrian Socialists through the medium of an international conference in order, as they profess, to be able to convince the enemy Socialists by argument of the necessity of accepting allied conditions of peace and overthrowing Prussian militarism.

The British Labor Party has twice definitely refused to admit the feasibility of this proposal, and resolutely holds aloof from all contact with the Kaiser's Socialists. The arrival of the American labor delegates here was eagerly looked forward to by the French Socialists, who had great hopes of being able to convert their American colleagues and rope them into the movement to bring pressure to bear, especially on the French Government to secure the consent of the allied Governments to the holding of an international conference with the enemy Socialists.

This was the basic idea of the French representatives at the conference yesterday between the American labor delegates and the members of the Confederation Generale du Travail, the great French revolutionary labor organization. M. Jouhaux, General Secretary of the confederation, made the proposed international conference practically the sole note of his speech. France, he asserted, had no hatred for the German workers themselves, and he pointed out that if the conference took place it could have only one of two results. Either the workers in the enemy countries would refuse to join in the efforts of the workers of the allied countries for the liberation of the world's peoples, in which case the war must continue, or they would accept the allied view of what was right and would act with the allied peoples for the good of humanity.

"We don't hate the German workers any more than you do," he said in so many words, "but to give them our hand now would be looked upon by them only as a sign of weakness."

After reminding the congress of the hypocritical professions of the German Socialist Party before the war, Mr. Frey said flatly he entirely agreed with Samuel Gompers that American labor men would refuse to meet the German delegates under any circumstances so long as Germany was ruled by an imperialistic Government.

Mr. Frey's blunt words left Albert Thompson practically without a word to say. M. Thomas urged the same arguments as Jouhauy, but all the satisfaction the French labor men got was a promise from James Wilson, President of the American delegation, to report the matter to the American workers when he returned home.

The Americans' straight pronouncement has left the official Socialist journal l'Humanite absolutely dumb this morning as to yesterday's conference, so much so that the editorial on the conference confines itself to regrets at the present differences between the American Socialist and labor parties. Not a word of comment is printed on the definite refusal of American labor to be dragged into useless discussions with the enemy Socialists.

On the other hand, in his paper Victoire, Gustav Herve, before the war a revolutionary Socialist and anti-militarist of the deepest dye, but now a pro-war patriot of undoubted sincerity, scores the assault by Albert Thomas "against the pure and strong conscience of American labor men" as nothing short of shameful.

American labor, in the opinion of Paris this morning, has finally scotched the unwholesome hankering of French Socialists to meet their boche brethren and plain American common sense has once more swept away a difficulty that has troubled many French patriots.

LONDON, May 7.—George H. Roberts, Minister of Labor, speaking at Norwich yesterday, declared he was still strongly opposed to any conferences with the laboring class in Germany. He mentioned the presence in England last week of representatives of the American Federation of Labor. These men, he said, had come to England with definite instructions to resist every manoeuvre to bring them into contact with enemy citizens.

The Minister said he had been criticised because he opposed attempts to arrange conferences with the German Socialists. He could not differentiate between one class or party in Germany and another. He knew the German Social Democrats and they changed according to the course of the war. When things seemed to be going well for the Germans they talked of indemnities, but when things were less hopeful their stomachs contracted, and their consciences expanded, and they began to talk of peace. Mr. Roberts said he had made this declaration to his friends from America:

"Stand firm. Do not be lured into any conference where Germany is represented, because if any German Social Democrats are allowed to attend a conference you may be sure they simply are there as representatives of the Kaiser. I would sooner go to visit the Devil in Hell than to meet them."

Victory, Mr. Roberts concluded, must rest with Great Britain and her allies as assuredly as the tides would continue to ebb and flow.

SEES LIVES STAKED ON SHIPPING OUTPUT

An appeal to make our shipbuilding program 100 per cent. efficient was made yesterday afternoon by Edward A. Filene, Chairman of the War Shipping Committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. He declared that we are shipping men overseas without sufficient shipping to meet a crisis, but that in the staking of the lives of our boys he was confident America would respond to the demand and supply the necessary shipping. Mr. Filene spoke at a lunch in the Bankers Club, 120 Broadway, given under the auspices of the Merchants' Association.

There were present fifty persons, representing shipbuilders and commercial organizations. William Fellowes Morgan, President of the Merchants' Association, was toastmaster, and Bainbridge Colby of the United States Shipping Commission also spoke.

Mr. Filene said that in his opinion ship production will not exceed the U-boat destruction of shipping before next Spring, and that in the meantime we must speed up. It takes four tons, he said, to supply every single man in the field, and that would mean in the case of 1,000,000 men 4,000,000 tons. We have not that tonnage, he said, and 5,000,000 men at the front would mean 20,000,000 tons.

BURGLARY SUSPECT KILLS OLD POLICEMAN

John McGuire, one of the oldest members of the Pelham Manor Police Force, was shot and killed yesterday morning while trying to arrest a negro, whom he believed to be implicated in the recent burglaries at Pelham Manor and Pelham Heights. Herman Rokohl, a wealthy cigar manufacturer, was badly beaten with the butt of a revolver by a burglar who had entered his home.

Several hours after Mr. Rokohl had reported the attack on him Lieutenant McGowan of the New Rochelle police force arrested a young white man, who gave his name as John Brennen of New Rochelle, and who was later identified by Mr. Rokohl as the burglar who had attacked him. Brennan, the police think, was a member of the gang which invaded the Pelhams, which include at least four men, and divided their operations.

Mr. Rokohl, who is 74 years old, though badly battered by the other burglar, was able to tell a complete story of the visit of the intruder to his home. His sister, Mrs. Fredericka Wedemeier, was asleep on the second floor, when she was suddenly awakened by a flashlight. She screamed and the burglar ran out into the hall, where he ran into Mr. Rokohl, who had been aroused from his sleep. Despite his advanced age Mr. Rokohl put up a plucky fight, and wrestled about the hallway for some time, but the burglar drew his revolver and pounded his victim over the head. Though badly hurt Mr. Rokohl kept up the battle until he was knocked down. Then the burglar ran downstairs and out the kitchen door.

MEMORIAL FOR MEN OF 69TH

A reception for the members of the old 69th Regiment, incorporated in the 165th Infantry, and other soldiers of the Rainbow Division sent back to this country by General Pershing to aid in the Liberty Loan campaign was held in the Hotel Astor last night by the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick. Ex-Governor Benjamin B. Odell, ex-Senator James A. O'Gorman, John McCormack, Chauncey Olcott, and others praised the men for their valor and urged all Americans of Irish birth to support the war.

Ex-Governor Odell said that he favored a plan to erect a tablet or some other memorial at one of the entrances of Central Park to the members of the regiment who had died in battle. His proposal was greeted with enthusiasm, as was the announcement that Lieut. Col. William N. Haskell, the regular army officer who commanded the 69th in the border service, had been assigned to his old command in France.

QUOTES FROM GIBBS IN PATRIOTIC DRIVE

AUTO TOUR TO THE PACIFIC

Woman Seeks to Foster a Better Understanding of the Part Our Allies Are Taking in the War.

Under the auspices of the National Security League, and co-operating with the Bureau of Education of the Department of the Interior in its nation-wide campaign of Americanization, Mrs. Edwin C. Arnold of this city, accompanied by her husband, who is connected with the Council of National Defense at Washington, is making an automobile tour from the Atlantic to the Pacific Coast to Americanize enemy aliens, newly arrived immigrants, and such Americans she finds along the path of her travel who need the beneficent influence of home propaganda.

Mrs. Arnold started her tour from Pleasantville, N. Y., passing through this city, and had reached Washington yesterday. With her husband, who was formerly the advertising manager of the Methodist Book Concern, she is making the tour at her own expense.

In connection with her addresses before American audiences Mrs. Arnold is making use of the dispatches of Philip Gibbs to THE NEW YORK TIMES from the British battlefront, because, she says, Mr. Gibbs's articles serve better than anything else she knows one of the purposes of her trip, the fostering of a better understanding of the part our allies are playing in the war, at the same time countering anti-British feeling where it exists due to incomplete instruction. Before she came to New York some time ago Mrs. Arnold was a high school teacher in Fremont, Neb. She is the founder and first President of the Society of the Daughters of Nebraska in New York.

"The Bureau of Education has recently outlined a national program for the Americanization of all aliens in our midst," Mrs. Arnold said, "and this immense work is to be carried on in connection with every force available and through every possible channel. Thus far we have been our own worst enemy through neglect in this field, and should we lift one finger to turn from us the great industrial forces of foreigners among us the Kaiser could call the work completely his own. Un-American labor falls far short of the ideal; we have talked and preached enough. Now we must go out and do.

"Just because a person has the rights and privileges of American citizenship does not prove his right to the title. Among us it has been said there are many persons who have grown up with an ill-conceived animosity to all things British. The thoroughbred American of the present generation and even the oldest inhabitant who grew up with the average American common school education is now experiencing the uprooting of this subtle prejudice, which has no more cause for existence in this day than has a belligerent feeling between North and South.

"The obliteration of this prejudice, where, of course, it exists, is being effectively accomplished as Americans more and more comprehend what the British have done and are doing for humanity in the world conflict. Out of this war there has come the best possible corrective, naturally adapting itself to our present needs. The panoramic glimpses of the British part in the great struggle, with their frequent lapses into details of human interest, which come from the pen of Philip Gibbs, both hearten us to our own part in the fight for humanity, and, without intent, lend themselves to the doctrine which we ourselves are preaching—the gospel of hearty and generous co-operation with our allies.

"Though other British writers often touch our sympathy, I do not think there is any one who will dispute that Mr. Gibbs is entitled to first honors in striking home here in America with the first real and best effort to depict British character at its fighting best, struggling side by side with our own soldiers for the cause of the entire world. I have been making use of his dispatches on my tour, quoting here and there from them in emphasis of a point or stressing by citations from his articles reasons for genuine and whole-hearted co-operation. If I am heckled by discontents when speaking from the automobile, I frequently refer to the dispatches, some fifty or more clippings of which I always carry in a portfolio."

In her tour Mrs. Arnold makes it a point to visit factories employing aliens to disseminate information on American citizenship and the purposes and aims of the United States in the war.

"If every American would donate a little individual effort toward the Americanization of aliens," she says, "there would be no need of a centralized movement. Americans can do this at little expense of effort."

HURLEY AND SCHWAB TO SEEK BIGGER FUND

House Committee Today Will Hear Their Plans for Expansion of Our Shipbuilding.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Edward N. Hurley, Chairman of the United States Shipping Board; Charles M. Schwab, Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, and other officials will appear before the Appropriations Committee of the House tomorrow and present a schedule of the moneys needed for shipbuilding in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919. It was stated today that the schedule would call for a large expansion of the shipbuilding program as contemplated when the original estimates were made, but no definite statement could be obtained concerning the amount which would be asked.

That a large sum of money would be requested was forecast recently after Major Gen. Goethals, representing the War Department, made unexpected demands on the Shipping Board for tonnage to carry men and munitions to France. At the same time Mr. Schwab and Mr. Hurley pledged themselves to put through the program outlined if the resources of the nation could be assembled.

The capacity of tonnage under contract will be increased where this can be done without causing delay and additional contracts will be let. Two and three shifts of men will be put at work in every yard where this is possible. Mr. Schwab, who is Chairman of the board of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, has expressed the belief that the steel can be supplied for the expanded program and he has been in touch with the steel interests on which the nation must depend.

JAS. A. OSBORNE PROTESTS.

In the criminal branch of the Federal District Court, Harry Walters, the former National Guardsman, who is the Government's chief witness against Dr. Philip Becker of 145 West Eightieth Street, charged with conspiring to aid men to avoid military service, testified that he had been offered $1,000 by a man named T. C. Beit, who represented himself as an agent for James W. Osborne, Dr. Becker's counsel. Walters didn't say what he was asked to do for the $1,000, and stated that he didn't believe Mr. Osborne or Dr. Becker had authorized Beit to make any such proposition to him.

Mr. Osborne jumped to his feet when Walters gave this testimony, and objected to its introduction as having no bearing on the case. Judge Rufus E. Foster ruled that Mr. Osborne himself had opened the way for such testimony by asking Walters if the Government, through any of its agents, had promised him anything for his aid in entrapping Dr. Becker. The jury was sent from the room while the bribe offer was discussed.

"That is ridiculous," said Mr. Osborne, after the jury had left. "I positively never told Mr. Beit to make any such offer, nor did my client. Mr. Osborne admitted that he had employed Beit as an investigator. When the trial was resumed Walters said that after being discharged from the army as physically unfit, he became a party to Dr. Becker's plan to get drafted men out of the service by giving them drugs that would produce apparent symptoms of Bright's disease. He did this, he said, "for the money in it." The trial will be continued today.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon Is 82.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Ex-Speaker Cannon of Illinois was 82 years old today, and the occasion was made subject for a demonstration by his colleagues when the House convened at noon. Representative Madden of Illinois, Republican, called the attention of the House to the birthday anniversary, and afterward Mr. Cannon spoke for ten minutes, declaring he was more convinced every day that American patriotism was not confined to one party.

WILL HONOR DR. GRANT.

Church of Ascension to Celebrate 25 Years' Service of Its Pastor.

On Ascension Day, Thursday, May 9, the Rev. Percy Stickney Grant will complete twenty-five years of service as pastor of the Church of the Ascension, Fifth Avenue and Tenth Street, and a special service will be held on Thursday evening to celebrate the event. Bishop Greer will deliver an address on "Progress in the Church in the Last Quarter of a Century," and he will also officiate at a confirmation ceremony. George Gordon Battle will speak on "Progress of Religious Thought Among Laymen in the Last Quarter of a Century." Dr. Grant will speak on developments in the parish during the last twenty-five years, and Joseph S. Auerbach will address the meeting "For the Neighbors."

Dr. Grant took charge of the church in 1893. The annual income at that time had shrunk to $25,000; today it approaches $60,000. The church buildings and the grounds are now valued at close to $55,000, and the church has an endowment fund of $221,000, the annual income from which is $10,000, and the contributions from all other sources amount to $47,000, but the church has not been able to pay annually $2,500 for the interest on mortgages and floating debts, the indebtedness being $57,000. It is purposed to raise a fund of $100,000 on Ascension Day to pay off this indebtedness and to add an appreciable sum to the endowment fund.

A Recruiting Party.

TO U. S. OFFICERS

At the commencement of the present war, Cox & Company's Bank established a subsidiary in France under the name of Cox & Co. (France), Ltd., through which Officers in uniform can cash checks on Cox & Co., up to the equivalent of £5 (about $25) at any one time, without the formality of establishing identity and signature—a convenience which no other Bank can offer, and which obviates the necessity of carrying ready money or easily-lost letters of credit in the war zone.

To cover the whole of France, a special arrangement was made with the Bank of France, whereby the same privileges were extended to Officers in uniform by all the many hundred Branches of that Bank in places where no branch of Cox & Co. (France), Ltd., existed. The same facilities were also provided throughout Italy, at all branches of the Banca Italiana di Sconto.

These facilities, of which practically all British Officers and a number of United States Officers already in Europe avail themselves, are now accorded to all Officers of the American Expeditionary Force, Military, Naval and Air Services, who open banking accounts with Cox & Co.

Founded in 1758—thirty-one years before George Washington became the first President of the United States—Cox & Company's Bank has been inseparably associated with British military enterprise ever since; it has held the appointment of Bankers and Official Agents to the entire British Household Brigade, as well as to the bulk of the Cavalry and Infantry, from the time of the Battle of Waterloo up to the present day.

BEFORE SAILING FOR EUROPE, instruct your Banker to give you a draft or to cable you a transfer to Cox & Company, Charing Cross, London. Current accounts are conducted without charge, and interest at prevailing rate is allowed on deposit accounts. International exchange at finest rates.

When one of your employees becomes incapacitated through accident or illness, it means a money loss to your business, both through continuing the sick man's salary and through the loss of his earning ability.

You can now protect the time of your valuable men against both accident and illness on the most favorable terms ever offered.

--against the loss of your own time through accident or illness.

You do not hesitate to protect yourself against loss by insuring your property holdings. Yet property is something which can be replaced as long as you are able to earn money.

Your own time once lost, can never be replaced. Every day you lose through accident or illness is a day's income lost. Here's a form of insurance protecting you against financial loss through loss of time at a lower cost than ever before.

It Pays You:

$5,000.00	increasing to $7,500 for loss of life, sight or limbs, from ordinary accidents.
$10,000.00	increasing to $15,000 for loss of life, sight or limbs, from travel accidents.

Under another plan, which costs $24.00, You Get:

When writing for further information, please be sure to use your regular business letterhead, state your age and business, and whether you wish to take out a policy protecting yourself or a policy protecting you against the loss of time of your employees.
